COUNCIL OF 6 TO RULE BRITAIN

SUPREME COURT MAY RULE TODAY ON FATE OF TVA

Last New Deal Issue Now Up for Test.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The fate of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the government's vast economic and social experiment in the Tennessee river basin, will be decided by the Supreme court tomorrow if present indications are fulfilled.

Last of the New Deal issues now ready for the court's ruling, the test of the constitutionality of the act creating the TVA is regarded as of outstanding importance. Stripped of legal language and technicalities, the real fight is over whether the government shall compete in the hydro electric field against private enterprise.

Awaited with Interest.

Holding the act invalid would be another serious blow to New Deal aspirations, would bring cheer to the "rugged individualists" and presumably cause a jump in the price of securities of private utilities. If, however, the court sustained the government, New Deal hopes would brighten materially, and, contrastingly, business and industry might be dismayed.

The Supreme court finding, regardless of its outcome, appears likely to be one of the issues of the coming national campaign.

Month Since Arguments.

Surmise that the court will hand down its ruling tomorrow was generally expressed in Washington today, inasmuch as 32 days will have elapsed since the arguments upon the TVA, whereas the court generally has taken only about four weeks to settle other New Deal cases. But, of course, the nine justices may say nothing whatever on the matter, in which case no decision could be had before Feb. 3, to which date the court will recess tomorrow.

The TVA case arose when minority stockholders of the Alabama Power company sought to restrain that corporation from selling transmission lines to the TVA. The government was beaten in the trial court but won in the Court of Appeals.

DEFICIT WORRIES GROW

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—With government spending increasing and a future tax burden of more than 26 billion dollars already in sight the financial condition of the federal government is causing much public discussion and some uneasiness.

Incidents in the last fortnight are chiefly responsible for this development. First was the deceptive character of the President's budget for the fiscal year 193? which, while promising decreasing deficits and boasting of diminishing appropriations, turned out to be a proposal of increasing spending.

Billions to Be Added.

Then the invalidation of the AAA processing taxes by the Supreme court threw the Roosevelt budget about a billion dollars farther out of balance than ever. This was followed by the veterans' bonus legislation, already passed by the house and due to be passed by the senate tomorrow, which proposes to tap the treasury for another 2 billion. The President is expected to return the bill without his approval, but it is a virtual certainty that congress will repass it over the veto.

In the midst of the senate consideration of the bonus there was made public secret testimony by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau before the senate finance committee which occasioned considerable anxiety regarding the future of the government's credit.

Coolidge Resignation Cited.

On top of all these incidents came the resignation of Under Secretary of the Treasury Jefferson Coolidge because he could no longer give tacit assent to New Deal financial policies which he regarded as unsound and certain to undermine still further the credit of the government.

The ease with which loans have been floated to finance the New Deal is no evidence of an impregnable condition of government credit, in the opinion of conservative financiers. The treasury has relied almost exclusively upon short term issues to

THE MAD DOG TURNS

Youths Scoff at Morals as Key in Picking Mate

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The old man made double standard of morality has been abandoned and "disposition and personality" have become the important basis of marriage among today's youth as reported in a New York university survey today.

The fathers and mothers of these same young folks still stand by the old moral standard stanchly. The survey was unusual in that it covered not only young men and women but the parents of a large number of the same young persons.

It was made by Dr. Ray Erwin Baker, professor of sociology. The questions, over a period of six years, were put to 624 students, equally divided between sexes. They were asked of 105 fathers and 155 mothers.

Finances of Little Concern.

From the young people's point of view, Dr. Baker found that economic status was a matter of small concern. Good looks were not considered essential.

But the youngsters were "adamant on disposition and personality"—set against marrying a person unattractive in those two respects.

They preferred good morals, but weren't emphatic about that. They were not afraid of marrying into an "inferior" family, and two-fifths of the young women and three-fifths of the young men were willing to break across the lines of their religious faith in selecting a mate.

Girls Want Superior Mates.

More of the girls than men wanted mates to be superior to them mentally.

Parents agreed with the young people on need for attractive personality and disposition, although rating it a little lower. But on moral standard, children and parents were far apart. Parents also were more against marrying into an "inferior" family, and parents rated health of higher importance than did their children.

$25,000 HAVEN FOR HOUNDS NEW PROJECT OF WPA

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A "haven for homeless hounds," the nearest thing to a dog heaven architects could conceive, will be ready for occupancy here soon.

A WPA project costing $25,000, it will have all the modern conveniences that any dog would want, including plenty of board and daily shower baths given by attendants.

REPORT SIMPLE NEW REMEDY FOUND FOR ASTHMA, HAY FEVER

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Harry B. Wilmer, medical director of Abington Memorial hospital, announced that a group of staf physicians there discovered a treatment for allergic patients commensurate in importance with the discovery of insulin for diabetics.

Allergic complaints—asthma, hay fever, hives, and eczema—were traced to a condition directly opposite to that existing in diabetes, Dr. Wilmer said.

The hospital physicians have found, he said, that allergic patients have a high sugar tolerance, but an inordinate amount of sugar is burned away because of metabolic inefficiency resulting from an insufficient secretion from the cortex of the suprarenal gland.

This, he added, produces sugar starvation in the blood, causing such ailments as asthmatic seizures, hives, eczema, and hay fever.

The treatment announced by Dr. Wilmer consists merely of the injection of the cortical hormone of the suprarenal gland.

"In a short time," he said, "the supplementary supply of cortical hormone through injection, by relieving the drain on the suprarenal gland, so rests it that it can attain normal functioning."

Filipinos Cheer Bandit Leader as Public Hero

MANILA, Jan. 20.—[Monday]—(AP)—The Philippines' foremost "public enemy," Bandit Chief Nicolas Encallado, became a provincial public hero today and a defender of the government—at a cost of 20 lives and some criticism directed at President Manuel Quezon.

Turn Out to Cheer Him.

Throngs turned out to welcome the erstwhile leader of a band that killed 11 persons and lost 18 of its own members in one of the bloodiest bandit episodes in recent Philippine history.

Thirty-six hours previously 200 constabularymen were hunting Encallado. There was a reward of $5,000 for him, dead or alive.

"Quezon thanked me for surrendering," said Encallado, addressing the throng. "Quezon opened a new vista in my life. He taught me to serve my country instead of fighting the government."

Daughter Forces Surrender.

Encallado's married daughter, Aurelia, 31, persuaded her father to surrender on a promise of leniency. Quezon then received Encallado and freed him temporarily on his promise to return to the jungles and round up the rest of his band.

Public reaction in Manila appeared critical of Quezon's releasing the bandit after such a long and bloody manhunt.

PRESIDENT OF ECUADOR EXILES THREE CRITICS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 19.—President Federico Patz, curbing agitators and critics of his government, ordered the banishment of Dr. Carlos Espinosa, Gregorio Cordero, and Amilcar Aguirre to the distant Napo region.

Labor organizations are opposing the execution of the sentences because Cordero is prominent as an attorney in several labor disputes. Patz, however, asserted the men must go and that any others who agitate will be sent with them.

He declares that he is really showing these agitators consideration because he is giving Cordero's family 200 sucres [normally about $40] monthly and he has appointed Dr. Espinosa as surgeon to the garrison at Archidona.

Bonus Attitude

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Varied interpretations on President Roosevelt's bonus stand were placed today on one of his quotations from Theodore Roosevelt. Speaking at the dedication of New York's memorial to his White House predecessor, the President quoted these words of T. R. spoken at Springfield, Ill.:

"A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterward. More than that no man is entitled to, and less than that no man shall have."

The bonus bill, calling for payment in baby bonds, is expected to be passed by the senate tomorrow.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The memory of Former President Theodore Roosevelt was honored here today by a great crowd which gathered to attend the dedication of a 3 and a half million dollar memorial to him.

Almost all branches of the Roosevelt family, including the President and Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., bitter political foes but united on this occasion of the gathering of the clan, were present. The President paid tribute to his predecessor, who was his fourth cousin, in glowing terms, describing him as "a great patriot and a great soul."

The dignity of the occasion was somewhat marred when the radical little mayor of New York, Fiorello H. La Guardia, chose the occasion to deliver a shouted attack upon "the judges" who "thwart the will of the people." The mayor's political oratory pleased the President, who smiled frequently during the speech, which was accompanied by much table pounding and arm waving.

16 Years in Planning.

The great memorial hall facing Central park has been 16 years in the planning. It is 67 feet wide by 120 feet long, with a great vault reaching 100 feet above a marble mosaic floor. The exterior is of pink granite with a façade modeled on the triumphal arches of ancient Rome.

Three great mural paintings, with a total area of more than 5,000 square feet, depict the outstanding achievements of Theodore Roosevelt. All the events of his tumultuous career, from his picturesque participation in the Spanish-American war and his explorations in the African jungle to his spectacular occupancy of the presidential chair, are set forth.

In this imposing structure, President Roosevelt devoted most of his speech to quotations from the man who was being honored. Some listeners interpreted a portion of his remarks as another comparison of himself with an illustrious predecessor, just as the President seemed to attribute to himself many of the qualities of Andrew Jackson in his Jackson day dinner speech.

Recalls T. R.'s Struggles.

For example, the President who in his opening address to congress spoke of his battle against the forces of "entrenched greed," recalled today the struggles of Theodore Roosevelt with the great corporations of his day.

"We still remember," he said, "how those whom he denounced with such righteous wrath winced under the stigma of such flashing epithets as 'malefactors of great wealth,' 'the wealthy criminal class,' and the 'lunatic fringe.' He had a gift for pungent phrases and boiled down his whole political philosophy into such a homely and popular maxim as 'speak softly but carry a big stick.'

"With clearness of vision, of energy, of unfaltering faith, he labored through his entire strenuous career to transform politics from a corrupt traffic to a public service. With a very passion for justice and equality before the law, he sought with voice and pen, with every resource at his

"HOW'S SQUIRE?" SUBJECTS ASK AT PALACE GATE

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 19.—(AP)—All day they came in twos and threes to ask: "How is the king?" "Any news?" And, perhaps more often "How's the squire?"

At no time was the number large, but from early morning until darkness fell across the snow-encrusted Norfolk countryside a steady stream of anxious subjects came to the gates of Sandringham house, seeking the latest word about their sovereign.

Young or old, anxiety was written on most of the faces.

Bent old farmers taking their Sabbath rest, mothers pushing perambulators through the snow of King George V.'s estate, they came to the big house. To them their sovereign is affectionately known as "the squire."

Gates Are Gathering Points.

Two gates, one standing stern and regal, surmounted by its royal crest and symbols, the other less pretentious, were the gathering points.

Facing the roadway lined with firs and pines which winds its way around the little hill at the nearby village of Dersingham stands the Norwich gate, main entrance to the royal grounds.

Today the gate stood open, giving a clear view of the royal residence down the graveled driveway some 200 yards away.

Two Officers Inside.

Two blue uniformed members of the constabulary, tall, husky and ruddy-faced, were there, one just inside the gates stamping his feet to keep them warm, the other in the roadway directing trafic.

Tonight—every night—these huge gates were closed and locked. Two large lamp standards are placed on either side, but neither was lighted.

Hour after hour today inquirers after the health of the king walked and rode to the Norwich gate, but there was no news there—only a good view of the royal house with three or four brightly colored pheasants pecking through the snow in search for food near the driveway, an occasional rabbit hopping along through the underbrush, and smoke curling lazily upward in the weak January sun from more than a dozen chimney tops.

Typical Rural English Scene.

Except for the drama of life and death being enacted within the sick room it was just the typically rural English scene of which the monarch is so fond.

Occasionally there was a fleeting glimpse of an unidentified face passing an upstairs window in the front of the house.

There was no view of the sick room windows. They are on the side of the house screened from the road by tall pines and bushy cedars.

Read Bulletins at Gate.

Bulletins on the king's condition, the news his subjects are seeking, are available down the road at the jubilee gate near the garage and servants' quarters.

At this gate are posted the bulletins typed on royal note paper and bearing the crest and simple wording: "Sandringham house."

Still another gate was watched this morning—the entrance to the gray stone, square towered little church of the estate, where the king sits in his royal crested front pew and worships on the Sundays when he is well.

A number of villagers and others who had come from a distance, including many newspaper men and photographers, congregated there at 11 a. m., hoping to see the queen, the prince of Wales, and other members of the family on their way to church.

But no member of the royal family appeared.

MEET AT KING'S BED TO SET UP BODY TO GOVERN

BULLETIN.

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 20 (Monday).—(AP)—King George had a more restful night last night, his physicians announced today in an official bulletin, issued at 9:45 a. m. (3:45 a. m. Chicago time). The bulletin said: "The king has had a more restful night. There is no substantial change to record in his majesty's condition."

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The privy council was summoned tonight to meet tomorrow in Sandringham house, where King George V. of Great Britain lies seriously ill. A council of state will be appointed at this meeting to act for the 70 year old monarch during his illness, or to proclaim the prince of Wales king in case his father dies.

The decision to summon the privy council followed a conference of the prince of Wales, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, and Viscount Hailsham, the lord chancellor, at 10 Downing street. The heir apparent drove about 100 miles from Sandringham to London with his brother, the duke of York, after a private consultation with his ailing father.

Doctors Fear Prolonged Illness.

Court circles declared the meeting of the council did not mean that grave developments are expected in King George's condition. They said the step was taken because the king's doctors have indicated his illness was likely to be prolonged.

It is expected that a council consisting of Queen Mary, the prince of Wales, the duke of York, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Viscount Hailsham, the lord chancellor, and the archbishop of Canterbury will be appointed.

These same persons were members of the council which served during King George's illness in 1928 and 1929. When that council of state was appointed the king held the privy council in his room of Buckingham palace. The councilors waited in an adjoining room for the signing of the necessary order. The same procedure is expected to be followed at tomorrow's meeting.

Council Acts for King.

The council is authorized to summon and hold meetings of the privy council, to sign documents, and to perform other duties on behalf of the monarch during his illness. Any three of the councilors also are empowered to call a meeting of the privy council in the event of the king's death to proclaim the prince of Wales the new monarch.

Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council; Viscount Hailsham; Sir John Simon, home secretary, and Sir Maurice Hankey, clerk of the privy council, have been summoned to Sandringham for the meeting of the privy council. They are due to arrive there in the morning.

The duke of Kent, the king's youngest son; Lord Dawson of Penn, one of the king's physicians; the archbishop of Canterbury, and Lord Wigram, private secretary to King George, all members of the privy council, already are at Sandringham.

Whether the prince of Wales and the duke of York will attend the meeting was a matter of speculation. Some quarters insisted that Wales will remain in London tomorrow and keep in touch with Prime Minister Baldwin.

King's Condition Unchanged.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 20 [Monday].—Doctors and nurses kept vigil at the bedside of King George V. early this morning, and it was reported at 2 a. m. there had been no change in his condition, although he had slept.

The venerable monarch's mighty empire waited and worried, barely encouraged by the news that came at 7:45 p. m. from the monarch's somber, snow-besieged country home.

"The king has passed a quiet day. There is no change in his majesty's condition."

Responsible persons, however, viewed the lack of change as at least somewhat reassuring because, they said, it showed King George was no weaker.

They interpreted the bulletin along with the noon announcement that the king was "maintaining strength" as meaning that the monarch's illness has reached a static condition.

Gets Fresh Supply of Oxygen.

A fresh supply of oxygen for the treatment of King George's bronchial catarrh, which has been made doubly serious by a heart weakness, reached here on an afternoon train.

No further bulletins were planned during the night, it was learned at 10 p. m.

While the king slept peacefully through the afternoon the prince of Wales, who will be king if his father dies, hurried to London with his brother, the duke of York.

Queen Mary, for the first time since King George's illness, left Sandringham house before dark for a short walk in the snow-coated gardens with the princess royal, the wife of the earl of Harewood and the only daughter of the British monarchs. Not since Friday, it was learned, had the queen been out of earshot from the king's sick chamber.

Shortly before the issuance of the 7:45 p. m. bulletin, signed by three doctors, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Sir Frederic Willans, the archbishop of Canterbury arrived at Sandringham house. He was followed by the duke of Kent, youngest son of King George.

King "Maintains Strength."

At noon officials at Sandringham house had announced that "in spite of a restless night, his majesty the king has maintained strength."

Nevertheless, the gravity of the king's condition was patently demonstrated by the fact that his medical advisers failed to inject a cheering note, despite the knowledge that world-wide alarm had been created by previous bulletins.

Throughout Saturday night servants were on duty at the royal country house, situated on a 7,000 acre Norfolk estate, and either Nurse Black, who attended the king in his previous illness, or Nurse Davies, constantly was at hand. His physicians at all times were within call.

Lone Phone Rings Constantly.

The lone telephone rang constantly in this tiny village, and the first postmistress and her assistants had been on constant duty since the bulletin Friday night informed the world of the king's grave condition.

This quiet rural spot on England's northeast coast had become, suddenly, the nerve center of the world.

As the Sabbath dusk fell the bell in the old square tower of Sandringham's eleventh century church, which peeps out through, tall, snow-coated fir trees, tolled again to bring villagers and tenants to pray for the recovery of their beloved sovereign.

To them he is "the squire."

As the worshipers left the church, the faces of the men were grave and tears streamed down the cheeks of many of the women.

LLOYD GEORGE ENDS STAY IN AFRICA DUE TO ILLNESS OF KING

Lloyd George, who celebrated his 73d birthday Jan. 17, had been in French Morocco since shortly after the November general elections, in which he again won the Carnarvon seat which he has held for nearly forty-six years.

He had been working on a new volume of memoirs and playing golf.

FATHER MISSED TRAIN, SO KING'S CLOCKS RUN FAST

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 19.—(AP)—For a short time tonight it was tomorrow at Sandringham house while it was still today in the rest of England.

For years the time pieces at the royal home have been half an hour fast—ordered, so the story goes, because King Edward VII. once missed a train.

Some of the clocks in the nearby village of Dersingham are similarly always 30 minutes fast. A number of former servants of the royal family keep the clocks that way to remind them of old times.

Shot in Street Fight; Ex-Convict Fires Bullet

James Galineas, 25 years old, 766 Sebor street, was shot in the abdomen and seriously wounded early today in a fight in front of the Oriental barbecue, a saloon and restaurant at 502 South Halsted street. Peter Pantelis, 30 years old, 433 South Halsted street, an ex-convict, was arrested soon afterward and admitted doing the shooting. He claimed that he fired in self-defense when Galineas and another man attacked him. Pantelis was released from Joliet penitentiary six months ago after serving 6 years on a charge of operating a confidence game.

WAYLAND BROOKS CALLED NATURAL LEADER OF PARTY

Judge Bristow Tells Trend Back to Republicanism.

Circuit Judge George W. Bristow of Paris, Edgar county, who has been sitting temporarily in the Superior court here, disclosed yesterday that there is a strong trend back toward Republicanism in his sector of the state. The people there, he said, want the Republican party returned to power both in the state and in the nation.

WAYLAND BROOKS.

The jurist spoke from a personal knowledge of political conditions in five central eastern counties, a tour of which he recently completed. The counties—Clark, Coles, Cumberland, Edgar, and Vermilion—comprise his judicial circuit.

Calls Brooks Leading Candidate.

Throughout the trip, according to Judge Bristow, he found sentiment for a restored, full strength Republican party. For a party standard bearer in the state Wayland Brooks, Chicago lawyer who has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, is finding considerable favor, Judge Bristow said.

"My tour convinced me that Brooks is leading as the strongest candidate with the great mass of the people," said the judge. "They are convinced by his record that he now is the natural standard bearer for the party.

Look to Brooks as Leader.

"The people down my way realize that Brooks had both the capacity and courage to lead the way for Republicans during the last two years. The people want a restored, full strength Republican party, and they see in Brooks a man upon whom the people of the whole state can unite for governor."

Mr. Brooks announced his candidacy for governor on Jan. 10, in direct response to an appeal from a delegation of downstate young Republicans who called on him at his home. They bore a petition containing 5,000 names gathered in two days' time from 120 downstate communities.

Has Widespread Support.

Mr. Brooks had received widespread support both in Cook county and downstate. A number of influential newspapers commented editorially, urging the young lawyer to make the race. During two previous campaigns he made many friends downstate.

Mr. Brooks has also received important backing from a bloc of Chicago ward committeemen, who indorsed him two weeks ago at the home of former County Treasurer George Harding. Since then other committeemen have pledged their support.

Brooks' headquarters announced that petitions for his nomination are in the mails and will be circulated throughout the state early this week. County headquarters will be established and "Brooks-for-Governor" clubs will be formed in every county in Illinois.

CAPTURED AFTER HE KILLS WOMAN IN FIGHT TO ESCAPE POLICEMEN

Wesley Owens, colored, 27 years old, was arrested by policemen of the Wabash avenue station early yesterday after he shot and killed a colored woman in a battle to prevent his arrest. The woman was Mary Haley, 27 years old, 5620 South Michigan avenue.

The shooting took place in an old building, condemned as unfit for habitation, at 5927 South State street. Into this place Owens and several other persons had moved as squatters. The gunman was seized in the rear of the building as he fled after firing.

Owens had attempted to hold up Investigator Edward T. Crowley of the state's attorney's office, a brother of First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley, in front of the building. Crowley fought and a bullet fired by the man grazed his head. When Owens fled into the old structure Crowley summoned policemen and they were searching through the dark hallways when the holdup man opened fire and a bullet struck the woman in the abdomen.

4 Youths Tracked in Snow Admit 3 Estate Robberies

Four Wheeling youths arrested Saturday night when Lake county deputy sheriffs tracked them through the snow after they looted the summer home of Edward L. Ryerson, two miles south of Half Day, confessed yesterday that they robbed two other summer estates on the Des Plaines river between Wheeling and Half Day. The prisoners are Elden Belzer, 21 years old; his brother, Raymond, 19 years old; William Rutkofski, 24 years old, and his brother, Edward, 18 years old. The other estates robbed were those of Attorney Cecil Barnes, 1153 North Dearborn street, and Isak Anderson, 1035 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

BARRETT HOUSE IN WIMPOLE ST. BEING WRECKED

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Wreckers have begun to demolish the historic old house at 50 Wimpole street where the original drama of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" took place in real life almost a century ago.

This was the house where Elizabeth Barrett lived from 1842 until her marriage to Robert Browning in 1846, and where she wrote "The Cry of the Children," one of her most notable poems. While she was lying seriously ill there her cousin, John Kenyon, brought the brilliant young poet, Browning, to see her for the first time.

With blinding blizzards, sleet storms, gales and arctic cold, winter asserted its sway last night over virtually all of the country from ocean to ocean and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border.

By early morning the widespread cold, which yesterday held the western plains states and central west in its grasp, is expected to reach Chicago. Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted temperatures of 5 or 6 degrees in the city and of zero in the suburbs. The cold may continue with occasional snow for several days, according to Mr. Lloyd.

Whip Atlantic Coast.

From Maine to Florida, a nor'easter, rising sometimes to a velocity of 75 miles an hour, whipped up mountainous seas and imperiled ships. From Maryland to Canada and inland to Ohio, the driving storm deposited blankets of sleet and snow, disrupting transportation in many cities and assessing a heavy death toll in highway accidents. Nevertheless, trains and air lines maintained the transcontinental schedules.

Last night, the region looked forward to arctic cold which promised to aggravate the blizzard damage.

Parts of Ohio struggled under their worst snowstorm in many years. Operators in the eastern Ohio coal fields feared that highway drifts 16 feet high would prevent 10,000 miners from working today. The blizzard was the third to descend on the state in a month.

Heaviest in Fifteen Years.

At Pottsville, Pa., the snowfall was said to be the heaviest in fifteen years. Continuing at a late hour last night, it caused suspension of all transit and motor travel in Pittsburgh. Nearly a foot of snow fell.

New York City suffered severely—attributing eight deaths to the weather. A crew of 20,000 men, many taken from the relief rolls, toiled to keep the streets open for trafic. The storm began early in the morning with a mixture of snow and cutting sleet. The freezing combination covered highways in every direction. Such stretches of the Storm King highway along the Hudson river and of the Albany post road as were not impassable were badly tied up.

Upstate New York Isolated.

Country roads in upper New York state and the Adirondack mountains were piled high with drifts, cutting off the countryside from the world.

All New England shivered in the first severe blizzard of the season. A foot of snow fell in Boston, and a two foot blanket tied up North Adams, Mass., in the Berkshire mountains.

In Washington, congressmen donned beaver hats and plowed through heavy snow awaiting the coldest weather of the season this morning. Mountaineers in western Maryland were marooned in their cabins as the snow piled higher during the night with the prediction from the weather bureau that "the worst is to come."

Two Ships in Distress.

Twenty vessels tied up in the Delaware breakwaters during the day. Two ships radioed coast guard headquarters at Washington that they were in distress. One, the tanker Amolco, off Cape Hatteras, asked a cutter to remove her seriously injured engineer. The other craft, identified as the Csikos, reported being blown aground at Cape Fear River, Del.

The chill gales carried near freezing temperatures into the south—in the southeast, with rain. Brownsville, Tex., second southernmost point in the land, had a low of 32 degrees. Abilene, Tex., reported 4 above zero; Kansas City, Mo., 2 below.

Cold Wave Close to Home.

With near zero temperatures nearby, Chicago stayed in the lower 20s until 6 p. m. because easterly winds off Lake Michigan served as a buffer. Nevertheless, for the first time this year, the Chicago river froze over from the mouth to the Michigan avenue bridge. In fifteen years, according to bridgetenders, the river has frozen only half a dozen times.

17 PERSONS DIE, SCORES HURT IN DIXIE TORNADOES

Georgia, Alabama and Florida Suffer.

Chipley, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A weekend toll of seventeen deaths was caused by a series of off-season tornadoes which struck three southern states, leaving extensive property damage and scores of rural residents injured.

Simultaneous with the arrival of bitter cold in the deep south, the tornadic winds dipped first into north Alabama, killing four persons yesterday and shifted to the southeast, causing thirteen deaths in the vicinity of the Georgia-Alabama-Florida state lines last night. The extent of the death toll was not learned until today, when calls for help came.

A family of six was wiped out by the terrific winds which roared into the northern Florida near here, two were killed in nearby Alabama, and five lives were taken in southwest Georgia.

Storms Cut Wide Paths.

After skipping from the extreme northern part of Alabama to the extreme southern part, the winds cut a wide path near here and passed on into Georgia, where the victims included five colored persons whose tenant homes were blown away.

The dead in the storm near here were Dan Dykes, 25 year old farmer; Mrs. Dykes, 23; their four children, Johnnie, 10; Evelyn, 6; Willie, 4, and Kelly, 16 months.

When word of the storm came Red Cross officials, headed by Russ Davis, chairman of the local Red Cross, and a group of CCC workers hurried to the rescue.

Davis said bodies of the Dykes family were found a quarter mile from the home. The baby was found a mile and a half away, the body dashed against a tree.

Passenger Train Derailed.

An Atlantic Coast Line passenger train en route from Montgomery, Ala., to Jacksonville, Fla., ran into a washout near Pansey, Ala., early today injuring a number of passengers slightly. Seven cars of the train were derailed.

11 Fishermen Are Drowned as Hurricane Hits Mexico

TAMPICO, Mexico, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A hurricane swept in from the Gulf of Mexico today killing at least eleven fishermen and causing extensive damage. The eleven were members of the crew of the small fishing boat Acorda, which was overturned outside the harbor by heavy waves. Two other boats were missing and it was feared their crews had been drowned.

INVALID 79 YEARS, DIES.

Oil Heiress Is 16

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Park avenue today learned that Ruth Moffett, 16 year old daughter of James A. Moffett, vice president of the Standard Oil company, and Warren Johnson, 24, son of Harry Taft Johnson of Bronxville, were honeymooning. The young couple acknowledged they had eloped Saturday night and were married in Harrison, N. Y., without parental knowledge or blessing.

ORDERS INQUIRY INTO FATAL FIRE ON WEST SIDE

Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan ordered an investigation into the fire which caused one death and injured two persons early yesterday when it damaged a two story flat building at 2175 Mango avenue.

Irving Slanec, 38 years old, who lived on the second floor of the building, was trapped by flames and burned to death as he reentered the building to save some of his possessions. His brother, Elmer, 32 years old, who lives across the street, was badly hurt when he fell from a ladder in attempting to rescue Irving, and their mother, Mrs. Anna Slanec, 65 years old, incurred severe burns.

Three others who lived in the building escaped without injury when two police dogs owned by the Slanecs awakened them. They were William Trosci, 30 years old; his wife, Servi, and their son, William Jr. The origin of the fire, which caused damage estimated at $4,000, was not determined.

Policeman James Sullivan Heads Benevolent Group

Policeman James Sullivan of the homicide squad was elected president of the Police Benevolent association yesterday by a vote of 245 to 147, defeating Sergt. Jack Flannigan of the motorcycle division. The election was made necessary by the recent retirement of Lieut. Stephen O'Mara, who was president of the association for many years. Thomas P. Heaphy, Sullivan's running mate, was elected vice president. He defeated Jack Dalton, 198 to 195. Other officers elected were Humphrey Hennessy, recording secretary; Thomas Regan, financial secretary, and Percy Waddington, treasurer.

LINDY RANSOM NOTE HANDLING STIRS NEW QUIZ

Report Go-Between Gave Letter to Underworld.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Morris Rosner, underworld go-between who lived in Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's Sourland mountain home for days after the kidnaping of the airman's son and before the $50,000 ransom was paid, today was revealed as the central figure of a new angle of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's inquiry into the guilt of of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

MORRIS ROSNER.

Rosner received the original ransom note from the aviator's own hands, the governor had been informed, and exhibited its secret symbol signature to the underworld.

Other startling facts regarding the theory that subsequent ransom letters were forged as a result of this indiscreet display were learned today from other Hoffman aids and investigators for Hauptmann's attorneys.

Report New Inquiry Plan.

The new disclosure came on the eve of tomorrow's session of the New Jersey legislature, with talk of a move to impeach the governor and a counter-request for a sweeping legislative investigation of the entire case.

"Gov. Hoffman has learned with surprise that the state police, under Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, are investigating the Lindbergh case at this very moment without acquainting the governor with the facts," William S. Conklin, Hoffman's secretary, said today.

From other sources it was learned that in addition to the attempt to trail "J. J. Faulkner," mysterious depositor of $2,980 in Lindbergh ransom money and supposed author of a recent letter to Hoffman absolving Hauptmann, state police also are checking on a suspect whose name and photograph Ellis Parker, Burlington county chief of detectives, has given the governor.

Action Hinted at Hearing.

The first intimation that Rosner, a former realtor, was the subject of a defense inquiry came at the federal habeas corpus hearing last Tuesday.

During his futile argument before United States Circuit Court Judge J. Warren Davis in Trenton, Neil Burkinshaw declared that among the reasons Hauptmann's conviction should be in effect set aside was that the state had suppressed vital evidence about the original ransom note.

The letter left in the nursery the night of March 1, 1932, was declared in the Hauptmann murder trial to have been turned over by Lindbergh to the state police on March 2, 1932, and never afterwards to have been in the possession of any one else.

Burkinshaw told Judge Davis that within the last few weeks Hauptmann's chief counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher, had been given information that the original note had been placed in the hands of a "third person" before the second ransom note addressed to Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon was received on March 9.

Hoffman Gets Report.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz admitted the original note was not kept under lock and key by state police.

The report on the handling of the original note, placed before the governor, is to the effect that Lindbergh entrusted it to Rosner. Not only was Rosner permitted to make mathematical measurements of the symbol signature, the governor has been told, but also he was allowed to have a tracing of the script.

The governor and his investigators now are seeking to determine whether Rosner showed the original letter to Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, New York racketeers appointed by Col. Lindbergh as his underworld contact men, or whether he only gave them tracings of the handwriting which might have been forged to the subsequent letters.

Governor's Home Guarded.

KILLS SELF WITH POISON.

Gustave Beckman, 40 years old, 1355 Sedgwick street, a chauffeur, died yesterday after swallowing poison in his home. His wife, Elizabeth, 38 years old, told police he had been in ill health and several times had tried to take his life.

GOV. HOFFMAN FACES REBUKE BY G. O. P. FOR HAUPTMANN REPRIEVE

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, once regarded as a probability for the Republican nomination for Vice President, may be dropped for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention.

Opposition to the governor as one of New Jersey's "Big Four" is reported. A meeting of the Republican state committee will be held Tuesday and a decision may be made then as to whether he will have the support of the party organization for election as delegate-at-large at the spring primary election.

Resentment over the governor's action in granting a reprieve to Bruno Richard Hauptmann has convinced certain influential New Jersey party leaders that the governor should be rebuked by leaving him off the national convention delegation. Hoffman could run in the primary election, but would be unlikely to win without organization support.

If he should be named by the state committee he would be likely to face opposition at the primary election. Leaders doubt that he would be elected, even with organization support.

ARRAIGN COURT SLAYER TODAY ON MURDER CHARGE

John W. Keogh, once wealthy loop property owner, who shot and killed Attorney Christopher G. Kinney in the courtroom of Circuit Judge John Prystalski and fired three shots at the judge last Monday, will be arraigned before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle in the Criminal court today on a charge of murder. The state has announced that it will seek an immediate trial and ask the death penalty.

Keogh, held at the county jail, also appeared anxious for a speedy trial. On Friday he upset the state's attempt to prove him insane by pleading his sanity before a jury so effectively the state experts were overruled in the jury's vote. He took this deliberate course which may lead to the electric chair to bring his campaign for reapportionment in Illinois before the people, he said.

Keogh has been regarded as a monomaniac on the subject of reapportionment. In several suits he has charged that the failure of the legislature to reapportion since 1901 has made illegal the government and courts of Illinois. He killed Kinney and fired at Judge Prystalski to bring this fact before the public, he said.

BRITISH FORCES NEAR RED SEA AT WARTIME PEAK

New Naval Guns Set Up at Port Sudan.

[Copyright; 1936; By the Associated Press.]

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 20 [Monday].—A high government source told the Associated Press today that both Makale and Aksum, key points of the Italian northern front, were virtually surrounded by thousands of Ethiopian troops. Unconfirmed reports said the holy city of Aksum, occupied by the Fascist invaders early in the war, was already partly retaken.

ABOARD THE GIUSEPPE MAZZINI, en route from East Africa to Italy, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Great Britain continues, with increasing rhythm, the building up of her armaments in the Red sea.

At Port Sudan, the principal port for the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and through which much of the growing Sudanese cotton trade flows, are found two big naval guns newly planted at the entrance to the harbor. Workmen were digging emplacements for other guns alongside of them.

Residents of the port said the British forces there had been increased by nearly 1,000 men. In the harbor were two light cruisers. Three airports have been leveled.

Hold Passengers on Board.

Although this ship docked at Port Sudan for three hours, Italian passengers, comprising practically the entire passenger list, were not permitted to leave the ship. Port Sudan is a British port and this was the ship officials' response to British sanctions. Some thousands of lire probably would have been spent by the passengers, had they disembarked.

At Suez was another light British flotilla. Half way between Suez and Port Said, at Ishmail on the Suez canal, there was a beehive of activity. Barracks were being built extensively. Skeletons of hangars were rising. A large machine shop was under construction.

Port Said sheltered another group of British warships, cruisers and destroyers.

Strongest Since 1918.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Within the shadow of the pyramids, reliable sources revealed tonight, Great Britain has concentrated her most powerful war machine since the world war.

The disclosure came as the empire's new foreign secretary, Capt. Anthony Eden, left for Geneva to face a critical league of nations council session tomorrow, leaving behind a British nation worried about the illness of its king.

The Egyptian area, informed persons stated, now holds nearly half the British regular combat army, between forty and eighty thousand troops. They are supported, recent reports indicate, by 157 warships and between 700 and 800 military planes.

Moved Quietly.

While negotiating in Paris and other European capitals for military support in the event an emergency arises out of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict in the Mediterranean, Britain has been quietly moving her army to Egypt. The Cameronia, the Scythia, the Vandyck and other Atlantic liners have been pressed into service as transports.

Egyptian troops, whom the British consider excitable, have been withdrawn from the frontier as a precaution against incidents.

Reliable sources disclosed Premier Mussolini of Italy was known to have between 60,000 and 80,000 troops in Italy's colony of Libya, adjoining Egypt. It is against these troops that Great Britain has coupled military preparedness with her political efforts at Geneva.

Paris advices said France's Atlantic fleet was preparing to anchor at Casablanca, Morocco, climaxing three months of steady preparations to aid Great Britain in the case Italy attacks because of sanctions. The French Mediterranean fleet at Toulon was loaded with its last munitions and ready to weigh anchor at dawn tomorrow for a cruise to Corsica.

Claim 125 Mile Advance.

In southern Ethiopia, Mussolini's air and land legions were reported by Italian sources to be pursuing the fleeing warriors of Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie. A Saturday communique from Rome said 3,000 Ethiopians had been slain in the engagement on the southern front and that the Italian forces had advanced about 125 miles.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, cheered by the reported southern victory, dispatched patrols to prick the enemy in the north into a big battle.

Il Duce matched Eden's declaration of allegiance to collective security with a similar expression, but refused to let the principle interfere with Italy's colonial security.

Talk of European War Fades As League Council Meets

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Geneva's diplomats, facing consideration of vital world problems when the league of nations council convenes tomorrow, generally saw tonight a lessened danger that any European war will grow out of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Foreign Secretary Capt. Anthony Eden of Great Britain, it was believed, is coming to Geneva to meet the foreign ministers of other powers more tranquil than previously over the African war. Some even wondered if Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, inspired by Premier Mussolini, would make a move to reopen peace proposals.

Doubt Action on Oil Ban.

Many officials felt the long talked propotals for an oil embargo against Italy would never see light at the coming sessions.

Aside from the Ethiopian war, the council will, it was believed, consider Japan's bolt from the international naval conference with its probable effect on world armaments and the political and economic position of European nations in the far east.

It was presumed also that consideration would be given to rumors that Germany will occupy the Rhineland, demilitarized under the treaty of Versailles.

Efforts were apparent tonight to prevent the quarrel between soviet Russian and Uruguay over alleged communist activities in South American legations from developing into a major league problem.

At International Red Cross headquarters meanatime the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross ambulance center in Ethiopia by Italian airplanes and reports of other such raids raised the question as to whether the Red Cross emblem should be exhibited during future Ethiopian activities.

Must Agree to Respect Sign.

Red Cross officials frankly admit there is no possible way of forcing obedience to Red Cross principles, and explain that the belligerents themselves must agree to respect the Red Cross emblem.

Official communiques issued by the Red Cross international committee indicate that twenty-five national Red Cross organizations have offered assistance in various forms to the Ethiopian Red Cross in its project of caring for the wounded. The Italian Red Cross refused all offers of foreign assistance. The contributions from abroad to Ethiopia took the form of money, material, and the dispatch of Red Cross corps to the scene of hostilities.

Turkey has sent one hundred thousand packages of individual bandages. The Red Cross of Latvia has sent thirty cases containing two hundred and twenty-five thousand ampouls of iodine. The Spanish Red Cross has forwarded nine cases of various medical products. The Japanese Red Cross sent sanitary material sufficient to care for ten thousand Ethiopian wounded.

ANCIENT ATHENS TEMPLE IS FOUND UNDER ANOTHER

[Copyright; 1936; By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, Jan. 19.—An hitherto unknown temple has been discovered at the western end of the Acropolis below the foundations of the Temple of Victory.

While strengthening the base of the tiny temple which is at the seaward extremity of the hill beside the famous marble staircase, an architect cleared away the face of the cliff and came upon untouched foundations.

Though the find is still undated, it is thought possible it is a Temple of Victory preceding the landmark known today. A Turkish cistern, used by garrisons of the sultan, was over the foundations. It had been filled in by earlier archeologists without further investigations.

One Killed, Many Hurt as Gale Hits West Samoa

PAGO PAGO, Samoa, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Western Samoa attributed one fatality, many injured and extensive damage today to a 50 mile gale Thursday night and Friday. Many native houses collapsed. Crops were damaged. The motorboat Tiafau with 16 passengers and a crew of four capsized en route from Apia to Pago Pago to connect with the liner Monterey. The craft brought its passengers into port 12 hours late.

SENATE ATTACK CALLED SMOKE SCREEN BY NYE

Sees Effort to Defeat His Neutrality Plan.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Chairman Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.] of the senate munitions investigating committee tonight charged that criticism of a reference he made to Woodrow Wilson was a "smoke screen to cover a general attack" on legislative proposals of his committee.

For three days last week senate Democrats poured upon the North Dakotan's head condemnation of his reference to the wartime President as a "falsifier." Nye charged the falsification was in connection with diplomatic moves of the allied nations, of which Wilson and his secretary of state, Robert Lansing, secretly were aware.

Expects Law to Pass.

While Nye was retorting in a formal statement to the senate critics, Chairman Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] of the senate foreign relations committee expressed conviction that neutrality legislation would not be endangered by the quarrel over the Nye charges.

"We will report out a bill along the lines of the one we originally contemplated," said Pittman.

Senate leaders, nevertheless, were on the alert for the almost certain renewal of the incisive debate that paralyzed senate business last week and threatened to engulf neutrality legislation.

Blinded by Ruse, Says Nye.

Nye said in his statement that "it is incredible that such a transparent ruse could succeed in blinding congress to the facts of a problem which directly affects the lives of millions of living Americans."

Maintaining that he "always entertained the highest regard for Woodrow Wilson" and that he was convinced the wartime President's central purpose from 1914 to 1917 was to keep this country out of war, Nye contended that the "falsifier" incident was disclosed during routine study of documents.

"The question of giving the President discretion to join other nations in economic or military steps arising out of hostilities elsewhere was one which the committee could not avoid had it wanted to," he said.

MEXICO LETS PRIESTS READ LETTER FLAYING SOCIALISTIC SCHOOLS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A pastoral letter forbidding Catholics to send their children to government schools was read in churches in all parts of Mexico today, and church officials said the government made no attempt to interfere.

The letter, openly challenging the government's educational program, warned Catholics they would be committing a mortal sin if they allowed their children to attend schools where socialistic education is taught.

No disorders of any kind were reported in connection with the reading of the pastoral letter, signed by Msgr. Pascual Diaz, archbishop of Mexico. Attendance records made public since schools here opened Thursday for a new term showed no falling off in attendance, although the pastoral letter had been circulated in printed form since early last week.

AGA KHAN PITS WEIGHT AGAINST GOLD; $125,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Aga Khan was weighed today in the scales against a heap of gold. The treasure needed to balance his generous weight is valued at about $125,000. Part of it will be distributed to the poor. This ceremony is part of the celebration of Aga Khan's golden jubilee as head of the 5,000,000 Ismaelian Mohammedans of India and Asia.

The main celebrations were held in Bombay, where a thousand Khojas, as Aga Khan's followers are known, assembled. The leading men and women of all communities were present.

The anniversary of the accession of Aga Khan to the inamate fifty years ago at the age of 9 years is being made the occasion for festivities in the remotest parts of Asia.

Armed Trio Rob Grocery and 2 Oil Stations of $80

Three armed men held up two gasoline stations and a grocery on the north side last night, escaping with a total of $80. At the grocery, that of Albert Ackerman at 3309 Armitage avenue, the trio obtained $60. At the Addison-California gasoline station, 2800 Addison street, they took $15 from William Dornquast, attendant. A few minutes later they compelled Robert Sielisch, attendant in the Parkview gas station at 2729 Irving Park boulevard, to surrender $5.

ITALY JAILS U. S. DOCTOR; SETS HIM ADRIFT IN BOAT

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The American legation was informed today that Dr. George E. Reeves, former American medical adviser to the late King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, had been imprisoned recently for eleven days by Italian authorities at Massawa, Eritrea.

Information reaching the legation stated the doctor, clad only in a bathing suit, was allowed only bread and water rations and was threatened with lashings.

Advices from Reeves, now stranded at Port Sudan, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, said his arrest apparently was provoked by suspicions he was either an Ethiopian or English spy after he had landed at Massaua from Djibouti, French Somaliland, in a storm battered schooner with a cargo of foodstuffs and liquors. Finally, it was reported here, he was towed seven miles to sea and set adrift without gear or food, and was rescued later by British coast guardsmen.

TELLS OF LAND WHERE NO ONE CAN CATCH COLD

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—There is a place where you can't catch a cold—the antarctic.

Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, who ought to know, said so today while praising the "wonderful flight" of Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon across Antarctica to Byrd's Little America camp.

The explorer was interested in a report, carried in connection with Ellsworth's rescue, that Ellsworth was suffering from a slight cold.

"You can't catch cold in Antarctica," he said. "You have to bring it in. The cold—it gets down to 80 degrees below—kills all the bugs.

"We had one man catch cold on the first expedition when he opened a box. On the second expedition we flew in some supplies, and several men caught cold when they opened the boxes. There hadn't been time for the boxes to get cold."

Carloads of Diamonds

A SEVERE and unexpected cold wave emptied the fuel bins of a great city hospital.

Coal was to be had at the mines, hundreds of miles away. Could it be delivered in time?

The question was put to the Illinois Central. Instant was the response. A passing train was stopped at the mine. Soon across the snow-swept prairies sped the carloads of precious black diamonds.

It was a welcome avalanche that thundered into the hospital's bins, just in time.

COAL isn't a perishable commodity, but there are times when it has to be handled as fast freight. It is the pride of the Illinois Central that it can—and does—provide the type of service needed to meet an emergency.

No wonder only Thompson's makes a chicken pie like this.

Smart wives aren't surprised when hungry husbands speak well of favorites found at Thompson's. They, too, eat here when downtown shopping.

And they agree that such fine food at such low cost would be beyond belief—if long ago they hadn't tried it for themselves.

NAZI POLICE RAID HOME OF PASTOR, FOE OF PAGANISM

Rev. Mr. Niemoeller Tells of Violence.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Following the distribution of a pamphlet by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, leader of the Confessional synod, charging the Nazis with aiding and abetting new heathenism, the GSP [secret police] raided Niemoeller's home. This was announced by the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller himself after his sermon in Dahlem church today.

He added: "The GSP used violence in the raid." But he refused to explain what he meant by violence.

The homes of other oppositional pastors were raided yesterday and today and copies of Niemoeller's pamphlet were confiscated wherever they were found. The pamphlet declared th Nazis already have created a state church with the aid of the secret police.

Charges Lack of Patriotism.

Hans Kerrl, minister of church affairs, in a long interview stated today that the aim of National Socialism was to use the "truly religious elements as a foundation of the state, but the state does not mind the faith that a religious man embraces."

Kerrl charged that the pastors in opposing him "showed a tendency to consider the national needs of the country as a matter of secondary importance," which the oppositional pastors deny.

Kerrl asserted that "if the oppositional movement developed in foreign countries they would also take measures against it and they would only be doing their duty."

In Catholic churches the priests read a pastoral letter written by their bishops in a session in Fulda. The letter deals with "holy matrimony" and praised the Nazis for the work in encouraging big families. Sterilization, which has been the object of many heated controversies between Catholics and Nazis, was just mentioned in passing, but the bishops made a certain concession to the Nazis by stressing that only thoroughly healthy persons should marry.

They praised the health policy of the Nazis.

The bishops also prepared a statement on political matters, but this was withheld because of negotiations which were started between Catholic dignitaries and the German government yesterday and which are expected to last at least a week.

NAZIS TAKE JEWS' PASSPORTS; HALT TRAVELS ABROAD

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Munich police have begun to confiscate the passports of Jews to prevent their going abroad. A house to house search was under way today.

Unofficially it was stated that Jewish merchants have been selling their wares abroad and leaving the proceeds there instead of bringing the money home.

Most of the homes searched were said to be those of merchants. Passports have been returned with the travel permit canceled.

AUSTRIA TO MAKE OTTO EMPEROR, PRINCE REVEALS

2 Conditions Fixed for Restoration.

VIENNA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg told the congress of the patriotic Fatherland Front today that the Austrian régime plans to make the Hapsburg Archduke Otto emperor, but that two conditions must be met before the monarchy can be restored.

ARCHDUKE OTTO.

Otto, the vice chancellor declared, must agree to carry on the authoritary conception of government founded by the late Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, murdered by Nazis in 1934.

Austria's neighbors, Von Starhemberg added, also must approve Otto's return.

May Restore King in Year.

The prince gave no hint as to when the restoration might be attempted, but some leaders of the Fatherland Front said it might be tried in "about a year."

"While restoration is an internal affair," Von Starhemberg asserted, "there will be no coup d'état, and nothing will be undertaken without the approval of our neighbors."

The vice chancellor was sharply critical of what he said were German efforts to dismiss the Hapsburgs as a "degenerated dynasty."

Says Austria Wants Peace.

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, another speaker, gave renewed assurance of Austria's desire to maintain peace in Central Europe.

The meeting of 2,000 Fatherland Front leaders demonstrated great enthusiasm and plans were made to make the session an annual event, resembling Italy's meeting of the Fascist grand council.

Arrives in Plane

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—"Deposited by President Franklin D. Roosevelt" reads a sign over an inconspicuous cage at the National zoo, marking the recovery to health of Cinnamon, a lynx caracal.

One day in 1934 the President received a telegram that a hunter in Italian Somaliland had shipped one of these rare animals. After 18 weeks in transit it arrived by plane in the capital. Dr. William M. Mann, zoo director, took it to the White House.

The President and Dr. Mann saw the animal was nearly dead. Mann said he thought he might be able to cure it. Mr. Roosevelt expressed hope that he would. The zoo director hurried away with the animal, not to the zoo, but to his own cozy apartment.

Dr. Mann and Mrs. Mann nursed the cat until, recovered, it was transferred to the zoo.

ALLEN DEFIANT; NO U. S. MEN AT POLLS, HE SAYS

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gov. O. K. Allen today defied the federal government to send agents into the state for Tuesday's Democratic primary election and told commissioners they could "kick President Roosevelt out if you want to."

As the battle for the political empire of the late Senator Huey P. Long neared a climax, Gov. Allen said at a political rally at Opelousas that "no federal officer can have anything to do" with the primary.

"They are not going to have commissioners at the polls to vote these poor relief workers like cattle. You can kick them [federal agents] out of the parish [county] if you want to. You can kick President Roosevelt out of the parish if you want to."

FUNDS SOUGHT TO MOVE JEWS FROM GERMANY

British Group Bringing Plans to America.

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A daring attempt to remove several hundred thousand Jews from Germany in a mass exodus will be discussed during the next several weeks by a British delegation and philanthropic leaders of this country.

Scheduled to arrive here Tuesday are Sir Herbert Samuel, former British high commissioner for Palestine; Viscount Bearsted, chairman of the Shell Transport and Trading Co., Ltd., and Simon Marks, owner of a chain of British department stores.

Their first public appearance will be in St. Louis next Saturday night, Jan. 25, where they will speak at the general assembly of the National Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds.

National Meet Next Month.

The national conference on Palestine will meet in Washington on Feb. 8 and 9 to hear them.

Many Jewish leaders regard Palestine as a haven and the formation of a Jewish state there as a solution to the entire problem, although there are some dissenting voices.

The question of financing the removal of between 250,000 and 400,000 Jews is the biggest stumbling block. The British delegation shapes its proposal on a huge fund with which to buy German manufactured products. Jews emigrating from Germany would carry the German goods with them in lieu of their own capital, and would sell them abroad to recapitalize themselves.

Tax Takes 60 Per Cent of Wealth.

The total wealth of German Jews now is estimated at about $2,000,000,000. A government tax on their wealth would reduce the amount an estimated 60 per cent. Other laws prevent the removal of the remaining capital except in the form of purchased goods.

Coupled with the problem of removing those who still have money is the more acute one of removing those of the upper middle class who have no money to exchange for German goods.

Sheriff E. F. Prater is expected to testify that Van Vlack confessed he shot two officers pursuing him after the kidnaping, and later sent a bullet through his former wife's head while she was asleep. Miss Hook was abducted in Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 23, soon after she obtained a divorce from Van Vlack.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A recommendation that the league of nations council send an investigating commission to the Free City of Danzig will be placed before the council by Sean Lester, Irish league commissioner for Danzig, it was disclosed tonight. His report, which will be presented to the council session which opens tomorrow, was said to urge an inquiry into alleged violations of the free city's constitution by the Nazi controled senate.

WIFE WHO SLEW MATE READY TO 'TELL ALL'; HINTS UNWRITTEN LAW

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—On the eve of her trial, pretty Mrs. Daisy Alexander Root said today she would "tell all" in her defense against charges she shot her husband over a red haired "cigaret girl."

Reports were current also that the defense would introduce in evidence a diary of the slain man and might possibly plead the "unwritten law."

Brenton Root, 32 years old, was slain the morning of Nov. 3 as he lay in bed at his lodgings.

The defendant's mother-in-law arrived here yesterday with a suitcase filled with letters, charts, diagrams, and ledger sheets by which she said she hoped to prove her son's industry and love for his home and family.

SURVEY SHOWS 150 EDUCATORS SCORE NEW DEAL

View Policies as Unsound and Deceptive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The American Liberty league tonight made public a survey of the opinions of more than 150 leading educators showing that the majority hold the policies and actions of New Deal brain trusters to be unsound economically and unconstitutional.

"That professors of highest standing believe that New Deal policies lack sound basis in economic theory is clearly shown," the league said. "The school of thought with which New Deal professors are identified forms only a small minority.

"Its doctrines do not find acceptance with the overwhelming majority of the academic profession. The use of the term 'brain trust' in connection with the activities of the administration has given a false impression of the actual situation respecting the attitude of professors as a whole.

Respected Ones Rap Theories.

"In short, there are professors and professors. Evidence is plain that the professors whose judgment is most widely accepted do not countenance the theories upon which the New Deal is predicated."

According to the league analysis, a composite of professorial opinions shows the following:

1. New Deal measures threaten the integrity of the constitution.
2. Centralization of power tends toward tyranny.
3. Present régime typifies coercion as against voluntary coöperation.
4. Visionary schemes launched in the name of economic planning are cruelly deceptive to the people.
5. Control of industry under the NRA was based on false economic theories.
6. Emphasis on reform has retarded recovery.
7. Regimentation of agriculture under the AAA has caused a new set of difficulties and maladjustments.
8. The people of the entire nation are being taxed to provide cheaper electricity for those in the Tennessee valley area.

Violates His Own Platform.

9. The policies are in violation of the President's asserted principle of producing ample revenue without discouraging private enterprise.
10. Failure to balance the budget offers a menacing threat of disastrous inflation.
11. Banking policies are designed to give political control of a despotic character and to facilitate the absorption of treasury deficits.
12. Monetary changes have created a distrust in the government's good faith and injected unsound elements into the currency structure.

The league cited public statements of noted professors whose utterances have been analyzed. Among those quoted are Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell university, an original brain truster who parted company with the New Deal; Prof. H. Parker Willis, former secretary of the federal reserve board; Dr. Neil Carothers of Lehigh university; President Robert C. Clothier of Rutgers university, and President William M. Lewis of Lafayette college.

DEMOCRAT FIGHT OVER MINNESOTA DELEGATES SEEN

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Minnesota Democrats today sought to settle intraparty strife that threatened to send two rival state delegations to the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia next June.

The state central committee, headed by Joseph N. Moonan of Waseca, has called a state-wide convention Feb. 1, when delegates to the national gathering will be selected.

At a meeting here Saturday 150 Democrats, headed by National Committeeman Joseph Wolf of Staples, urged Moonan to cancel the convention and issue a "new and just" call. Should Moonan refuse, the rival group planned to call its own convention.

meet current uncovered expenditures, and at the present time less than half the outstanding debt is represented by long term bonds. Furthermore, nearly half the obligations of the government are held by the banks which would be seriously affected if the government bond market were to fall.

The existence of a huge floating debt and the lack of a broad investment demand for government securities, it is contended, emphasize the danger of present tendencies. Only a halt of government spending and radical retrenchment would dissipate the uneasiness over the current trend.

Analysis of Budget.

That we shall be facing a future tax burden of more than 26 billions by June 30, 1937, is the result of an analysis of the President's budget and other financial factors by the United States News, presented in the following balance sheet of the public debt:

LIABILITIES.
Public debt	$31,351,000,000
Work relief for 1937 [estimated]	1,000,000,000
Soldier bonus payments [estimated]	2,000,000,000
Contingent liabilities [HOLC bonds, FCA bonds, etc., as of Nov. 30, 1935]	4,530,000,000
Total	$38,881,000,000
ASSETS.
Cash in treasury	$ 1,504,000,000
Recoverable assets [government loans as of Nov. 30, 1935]	4,493,000,000
Contingent assets [Home Owners' loans, farm loans, etc., as of Nov. 30, 1935]	4,530,000,000
Allied war loans [Finland]	8,000,000
Stabilization fund [from gold profits]	2,000,000,000
To be raised by future taxation	26,346,000,000
Total	$38,881,000,000

Relief Costs Excluded.

Excluding the cost of relief, which he left for later consideration, the President in his budget estimated that the deficit in the next fiscal year would be about 1 billion dollars, compared with an estimated 3 billions 200 millions for the current year. But Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, before the senate finance committee, said that if the bonus were passed on top of the invalidation of the AAA the deficit for the next fiscal year would be about 5½ billions, the largest in the six years since the federal government ceased to balance its budget.

The treasury secretary said that with the bonus voted it would be necessary for the treasury to raise 11 billions 536 millions to finance the government in the next 17 months. For refinancing maturing notes and bonds it would be necessary to raise 5 billions 800 millions, for relief approximately 2 billions, for the deficit in budgeted operations 1½ billions, for the bonus 2 billions, and for AAA contracts 236 millions. On the basis of these calculations the secretary estimated that the public debt by July 1, 1937, would stand at 35½ billions, the largest in our history and ten billions more than at the close of the world war.

Morgenthau in Doubt.

Mr. Morgenthau told the committee he could not predict whether the bonus payment would embarrass the treasury.

"One day there is confidence," he said, "and the people who buy bonds are with you, and then over night something happens and then they won't buy."

Senator Josiah Bailey [Dem., N. C.] asked what would happen if the treasury were unable to borrow the 11½ billions needed in the next 17 months.

"The minute I cannot raise the money required to finance the government," Mr. Morgenthau replied, "that minute you will have complete chaos." Referring to the AAA decision Mr. Morgenthau said: "Since Monday a week ago I do not think anybody in the United States can say what the picture is going to be. So many things have happened that affect the treasury that I certainly am not smart enough and I haven't met anybody who is smart enough to say what is the future of the government bond market."

The President said in his budget message that on the basis of existing laws it will not be necessary to levy additional taxes at this session of congress. Senator Bailey suggested that the implication is that the passage of the bonus will require additional taxation. Mr. Morgenthau declined to assent to this reasoning.

"I believe," said Senator Bailey, "you will go along with me to this extent: That if we keep on taking the pitcher to the well too often, we will come back some time with no water in it." Mr. Morgenthau replied: "If you do not mind, sir, I would rather let you make that statement than have it made by me."

FLETCHER IN ACCORD WITH ROOSEVELT ON WORD 'BOONDOGGLING'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, agreed with President Roosevelt today that "boondoggling is a grand word."

Said Fletcher:

"I certainly am in accord with Mr. Roosevelt on this word. It describes in the best way possible what the Democrats are doing and will do. I'd even say it was a swell word."

The President said yesterday at Newark that "if we can boondoggle our way out of the depression that word is going to be enshrined in the hearts of Americans for many years to come."

THREE INJURED CRITICALLY IN AUTO COLLISION

Four persons were injured, three of them critically, when the two automobiles in which they were riding collided at the intersection of Chicago avenue and Dearborn street early yesterday.

James Welch, 27 years old, 610 Forest avenue, River Forest, who was southbound in Dearborn street in one of the cars, and Edward Shaw, 37 years old, 1120 Fry street, a Municipal court probation officer, and Louis Cepa, owner of an undertaking establishment at 2246 West North avenue, who were eastbound in Chicago avenue in the other, were taken to the Passavant hospital suffering from skull fractures. Welch's wife was less seriously hurt.

An unidentified man about 60 years old was fatally injured last night when he was run down at 55th street and Austin avenue by an automobile driven by Frank Soukup, 30 years old, 5747 South Francisco avenue.

Mrs. Anna Hedin, 79 years old, 1219 School street, died last night in St. Joseph's hospital of injuries she received Jan. 10 when she was struck by an automobile driven by William Schmidt, 1800 Hudson avenue, as she crossed Racine avenue at School street.

At 6 p. m. yesterday 59 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 745 were injured and 50 killed in traffic accidents within the Chicago city limits.

BANNED STAMPS CREATE ANOTHER NEW DEAL PUZZLE

All Dodge Query of What to Do with Them.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—In the absence from the city of Postmaster Albert Goldman, disposition of those "thousands of letters" held up because they were stamped with cartoon posters ridiculing the New Deal, remained an insoluble mystery tonight.

No one at the postoffice professed to know what would be done with them and inquiry at the postmaster's home in the Bronx brought word that he was out of town and would not return before early next week.

The stamps were held unmailable in a decision given to Postmaster General James A. Farley by his departmental solicitor, Karl A. Crowley, at Washington yesterday.

Believe Return Also Barred.

The presumption in uninformed quarters was that they might be returned to the senders in cases where a return address made this possible. It was pointed out today, however, that this would involve further mail service, since they would have to be sent back to postoffice substations in most instances, and this, it was believed, would run counter to the ruling.

Meanwhile, Lambert Fairchild, chairman of the Republican national council, which is sponsoring the stamp series, estimated that the Farley ban would increase the sale of the tiny posters by a good 500 per cent. Certainly, he said, the committee had no intention of stopping their sale.

Fairchild pointed out, however, that the cartoons were "primarily intended for use within letters, rather than upon them, as a glance at our printed literature will show."

Ban May Be an Aid.

He thought, he said, that the effect of the little posters which "reflect upon the mentality and acts rather than upon the character of those portrayed, as well as their foresight" would be enhanced more by pasting them upon letters than upon the outside of envelopes, such as the postmaster general now frowns upon.

The council chairman was not disposed to question Farley's authority to bar the stamps from the post office department which he now heads, although he said it was not clear whether Farley is functioning in his capacity of postmaster general or chairman of the Democratic party.

Traces Power of Cartoon.

As to the cartoons themselves, Mr. Fairchild was far from convinced that they are out of place in the present order of things in American political life.

"A cartoon is an exaggerated illustration of a point of view and as such is a most trenchant political weapon," he said. "Thomas Nast proved that back in the '70s when he drove William Marcy Tweed, the then Democratic boss, as far from his control of New York politics as we propose to drive Franklin D. Roosevelt from his dictatorship of national politics.

"We regard the light-minded and happy-hearted Roosevelt as a greater threat to the nation's welfare than the corrupt and venal Boss Tweed ever could have been. It is the winsome boyishness and undeniable personal charm of this man Roosevelt that makes him dangerous."

Radio Campaign Launched.

Chairman Fairchild went on to say that the cartoon series was only a small part of the campaign which his council is launching in an effort to oust the New Deal order of things at Washington. The council has arranged to launch a radio campaign on a mutual broadcast system hookup beginning at 5:45 p. m. on Feb. 2.

In his announcement of the issuance of the stamp series about two weeks ago, Mr. Fairchild summed up the aim of the undertaking by saying:

"Point the finger of scorn at this inept, scatter-brained administration and we will laugh it out of office."

LIGGETT SLAYING SUSPECT TO GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Widow of Publisher to Be State's Chief Witness.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—When Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld goes on trial tomorrow morning as the slayer of Walter W. Liggett, the widow of the slain publisher, who is the state's principal witness, will not be present in the courtroom.

Mrs. Liggett, under severe strain from the weeks of worry since she saw her husband machine gunned Dec. 9, revealed this today, saying she regards Cann's trial as "the most terrible ordeal I ever have faced."

"But I will have to find the strength to stand it," she added. Mrs. Liggett does not plan to enter the courtroom until after the jury has been selected and the time comes for her to tell the story of the slaying. She has identified Cann as the slayer.

Select Jury Today.

Tomorrow's proceedings will consist mainly in the selection of a jury.

Peter S. Neilson, assistant county attorney, who with Frederic Pike and Roy Frank, assistant attorneys general, will conduct the prosecution, will question prospective jurors for the state.

Neilson today said his questioning would proceed on eliminating persons acquainted with alleged underworld characters, with the numerous defense witnesses, or with any one connected with the liquor business, either during prohibition or at present. This latter was the subject of a campaign in which Liggett charged hoodlum control of a large share of off sale and on sale licenses in Minneapolis, a campaign generally considered here as the direct cause of his murder.

Widow to Be First Witness.

Following selection of the jury Mrs. Liggett is expected to be the first state witness. She will be called to testify to details of the slaying, which occurred in early evening as she and her husband and their daughter, Marda, 10, drove into the alley at the rear of their apartment.

Supporting her identification of Cann will be the testimony of Wesley Andersch, who told police he was almost run down by the killers' car as it moved up the alley.

More than 50 defense witnesses are expected to testify in support of Cann's alibi that he was in a loop barber shop at the approximate time of the slaying.

HAROLD T. HALFPENNY, LAWYER HERE, HEADS YOUNG G. O. P. WORK

Harold T. Halfpenny, Chicago lawyer, was appointed state director of young Republican activities for the Republican state central committee yesterday by John H. Searing, Carbondale, chairman of the state organization. He succeeds Paul Prehn of Champaign.

Mr. Halfpenny, who is 29 years old, graduated from the University of Illinois law school, and was admitted to the bar in 1930. He is a member of the legislative drafting committee of the American Bar association and of the criminal law committee of the Illinois Bar association. He was the first state president of the Illinois Young Republican league, and was one of the organizers of Young Republicans, Inc. Before coming to Chicago, Halfpenny was a resident of Streator.

"One principal task," said Halfpenny, "will be to enlist in the Republican party the young people who do not want their opportunities cut off by regimentation under the New Deal."

POLL SHOWS BIG CHICAGO SWING FROM NEW DEAL

Chicago returned a larger percentage of votes against the New Deal in the poll conducted by the Literary Digest than the national average of voting against administration policies, according to figures made public in Chicago yesterday by the magazine. The final returns also show that opposition to the New Deal has gained considerably here since the magazine's poll in 1934.

The final returns, according to the release, show a total vote in Chicago of 80,655, of which 28,094, or 34.83 per cent, were marked "yes," and 52,561, or 65.17 per cent, were marked "no." The question answered was: "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt 'New Deal' to date?" The final percentage in the nationwide poll was 62.66 against the New Deal.

In a similar poll conducted by the magazine in the spring of 1934, with ballots sent to the same list of names, the total vote for Chicago was 65,324. This was divided 37,325, or 57.14 per cent, in favor of the New Deal, and 27,999, or 42.86 per cent, in opposition. The percentage that year in the national balloting was 61.15 in favor of the New Deal.

ROBBERS STEAL STORE SAFE.

Burglars entered a Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at 5610 West Madison street early yesterday and hauled away a Brinks Express company safe containing $1,159 and $81 in checks. A. Vollendorf, the store manager, discovered the burglary.

UNION OF CHINESE FACTIONS SEEN IN RETURN OF EXILE

Gen. Hu of Canton to Get Nanking Post.

HONGKONG, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gen. Hu Han-min, powerful Cantonese political leader, arrived today from Europe, recalled by the Nanking nationalist government in an apparent move to unite anew North and South China.

All Chinese parties hailed his return from voluntary exile in France as indicative of stiffening anti-Japanese policy and a healing of the Nanking-Canton rift, caused in 1931 by what Canton leaders considered the "weak-kneed" foreign policy of the Nanking government.

The Nanking régime sent an imposing welcoming delegation as did the Canton political council, keen rivalry arising as both factions apparently sought to use Gen. Hu for party prestige.

Gen. Hu was reported to have accepted already a Nanking appointment to a high government post, but he refrained from committing himself and announced he would remain in Hong Kong for the present.

UNITE AGAINST REDS

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 19.—Col. Yoshiho Ishii, assistant chief of staf and spokesman of the Japanese garrison in North China, described Moscow's activities in the far east in such graphic manner yesterday he created the impression that the imperial Japanese army has succeeded in negotiating an alliance with China against the soviet union.

Neutral diplomatic circles doubt Nanking's concurrence, but the feeling prevails that Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan, chairman of the Hopei-Chahar political council, as well as Yin Ju-keng's so-called East Hopei anti-communist council, have agreed to a joint Chinese-Japanese drive to "uproot all vestiges of communist political and military power in China."

Tells of Menace.

Not since 1927 when the United States and England intervened at Shanghai and blocked a Red wave in the Yangtze valley has the communist situation been more serious in China, according to Col. Ishii, who deplored the fact that occidentals in China are complaisant and inclined to ridicule the Red menace, believing that the Japanese army leaders are exploiting it with the double purpose of obtaining increased appropriations in the Japanese diet and of stampeding China into an alliance.

Col. Ishii charged that communist inspiration is behind the student demonstrations which recently have developed in China against Japan.

"Mengkukuo," meaning Mongol country, will be the name of the new autonomous régime set up yesterday at Changpei, 30 miles north of Kalgan in Chahar province. Mengkukuo constitutes the fourth puppet administration the Japanese have carved from Chinese territory. The first was Manchukuo in 1931, with additions later; the second, Yin Ju-keng's East Hopei autonomous government, and the third, Gen. Sung. Cheh-yuan's Hopei-Chahar political council.

Charge New Border Attack.

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The official soviet news agency in a dispatch from Ulan Bator [Urga], Outer Mongolia, said tonight Manchukuan soldiers had made a new penetration of Mongolian territory.

The report stated the invasion occurred Saturday, the same day that the Outer Mongolian government delivered a new note to Manchukuo, demanding cessation of alleged incursions by Japanese and Manchukuan troops into Mongolian territory.

Twenty Manchukuan soldiers, the dispatch stated, entered Mongolian territory in the vicinity of Bulun Dersun and fired on Mongolian border guards. The latter returned the fire, it was reported, and the Manchukuans retreated across the border.

FACES 14 YEARS IN PRISON FOR RED PLOT IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A high police official asserted tonight Harry Berger, who claimed he was an American and who was charged with communistic activity, probably will be sentenced to at least 14 years in prison before he is deported.

This official said Berger and the woman arrested with him, who called herself Machla Leucsky Berger, his wife, would not be executed for their alleged participation in the November rebellion only because Brazil does not allow the death penalty.

[The state department in Washington disclosed yesterday that the pair obtained their American passports by submitting false evidence of citizenship.]

Berger and the woman, the police official said, may also be taken before a court martial on charges of subversive activities in the army ranks. High Brazilian sources recently accused Berger of being in supreme charge of communist activities in South America and said he had prepared identical plans for operations from Mexico City.

MARQUETTE CLUB REUNION WILL BE HELD ON JAN. 29

Members of the old Marquette club of Chicago, which was active in political affairs from 1886 to 1912, when it merged with the Hamilton club, announced plans yesterday for a reunion on Jan. 29, President McKinley's birthday.

Arrangements for the reunion are in charge of a committee headed by Charles U. Gordon, former Chicago postmaster and one of the eight surviving presidents of the club. The reunion will be held at the Hamilton club and will consist of a reception and luncheon at which tribute will be paid to the memory of President McKinley.

The club was formed in 1886 by young Republicans on the north side, and it sponsored the candidacies of Gen. Benjamin Harrison and McKinley. It gave a dinner which was attended by McKinley and his entire cabinet.

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 19.—President Harmodio Arias this evening told THE TRIBUNE he would not be a candidate for reëlection. He added that a second term is not only against the constitution but absolutely immoral, and he insisted that candidates in the future be made to comply with their election pledges.

NEW YORK CENTRAL

PENSION SETUP IS TOMORROW'S ASSEMBLY TOPIC

Conference Committee to Be Named at Once.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Members of the Illinois general assembly will return to Springfield tomorrow for meetings of the first and second special sessions now running concurrently. Many of the legislators have expressed hopes for an early adjournment. They have been in session for two and sometimes three days a week since Oct. 28 with the exception of a Christmas holiday recess.

Both houses meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The first matter on the program, according to the present schedule, is the appointment of a conference committee by Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, senate presiding officer, and Speaker John P. Devine to settle differences over the bill that would set up county welfare commissions to administer the old age pension.

The Questions at Issue.

The senate favors empowering the county judges to make the appointments. The house refused to adopt that idea the other day and stood on its proposal to permit the state welfare department to make the appointments from nominations submitted by the county judges. The other major question for the conference committee is whether the state is to pay one-half or all of the administrative costs of the pension.

The conference committee is expected to begin its deliberations immediately after its appointment with members, hoping that a vote on its report can be taken on Wednesday. House members will be free for the conference, but there are several issues pending in the senate which, if called up, would require the presence in the chamber of the senate conferees.

Chicago Tax Still on Deck.

One of the dissentious issues is the proposal of a downstate-farm bloc group to compel Chicago to levy seven millions annually for poor relief. Efforts to adopt this new tax burden were defeated last week by a close vote, but consideration was postponed leaving the proponents an opportunity for another roll call.

The senate is the major scene also of action on the question of how to raise $7,500,000 to supplement sales tax relief funds until May 1. Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's spokesman in the legislature, has a bill to appropriate the money from the state's general revenue fund. His is said to be the only proposal under which the money could be raised immediately.

General Fight on IERC.

There are several bills pending to abolish the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Money now distributed by the IERC would, under these plans, be handed to county boards by the governor and other state officials. Members of the IERC say that they are not fighting against the proposal to disestablish their state-wide organization.

GOV. HORNER MAPS CAMPAIGN IN TALKS WITH ALLIES HERE

Gov. Horner remained at the Congress hotel yesterday conferring on his campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination against Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, the choice of the state organization. The talks are preliminary to the work of organizing the Horner forces in Chicago for the primary. Horner headquarters will be opened at the Sherman hotel some time this week, according to Daniel Sullivan, state administrative auditor and close political adviser to the governor.

When the governor returns to Springfield today he will have before him the request of two Democratic legislators that he call another special session of the legislature to consider a permanent registration system, a plan to restore control of Chicago parks to the state and the repeal of Chicago's home rule over public utilities. He has not given any answer yet to the two legislators.

SIX GO ON TRIAL TODAY IN $35,000 ROBBERY HOAX

Meyer Bogue, ex-convict, and five associates charged with the fake $35,000 jewelry robbery in the loop on Dec. 8, will go on trial today before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court. All except $2,500 of the gems have been returned to the victim, Milton Jackson, New York jewelry salesman.

Bogue confessed that he arranged the robbery in order to solve it and retain his $50 a week job as an informer for the Jewelers' association. Beside Bogue, the others who will go to trial are James Brezak, also an ex-convict; Patrick Sullivan, a bartender; Harry Malin, Meyer Gordon, and Irving Hornstein. Gordon and Hornstein, jewelers, are charged with negotiating to purchase the jewelry.

A seventh defendant, Frank Pishaw, clerk in a loop jewelry store, has been granted a separate trial by the court.

AUTO FUMES KILL JANITOR.

JUDGE DEFENDS GIVING MEYERING PROBATION JOB

Finnegan Declares Action Valid and Regular.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan, chairman of the Circuit court committee on probation, denied yesterday that there was any irregularity in the appointment on Thursday of William D. Meyering, former sheriff, as chief probation officer.

The appointment was termed objectionable by several leaders, among them Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission. Several judges challenged the validity of the appointment on the ground that they were not consulted.

Judge Finnegan said the law provides that the judges of the Circuit, Superior, and Municipal courts shall have the power and duty of naming of all probation officers. In the meeting at which Meyering was chosen there were four or five Circuit judges, a dozen Superior judges, and eight or nine from the Municipal bench, he asserted—a total considerably less than half of the judges who were eligible to take part.

The choice of Meyering was not dictated by politics, according to Judge Finnegan, who commented that the Democratic organization was not consulted. Superior Judge James J. Kelly, a personal friend of Meyering, nominated him, and no opposition arose, according to Judge Finnegan.

While sherif, Meyering followed the custom of allowing the judges to appoint their own personal bailiffs. Consequently he remained on friendly terms with the bench after he broke with the Democratic organization four years ago when he opposed Horner for governor and Courtney for state's attorney.

Despite the movement to unseat him, Meyering is expected to take charge today of the probation office, which is in the Criminal courts building on the west side. His record as sherif, according to his critics, was not such as to merit the present position. His sponsors, however, said they expected strict attention to duty from him and they said his financial condition was such that he appreciated an appointment to a position paying $5,000 a year.

HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE.

Joseph Morsetto, 54 years old, former inmate of the Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Chester, was held by the Chicago avenue police yesterday on charges of burglarizing the offices of Frank Stock, 303 West Division street.

command, to obtain for men everywhere their constitutional guarantee of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Again, some listeners thought they detected a personal note when Mr. Roosevelt, again speaking of the late President, remarked:

"Everything about him was big, vital, national. He was able to see great problems in their true perspective because he looked at the nation as a whole. There was nothing narrow or local or sectional about him."

In addition to Col. Roosevelt, son of the late President, other members of the family who attended the dedication services were two sons, Kermit and Archibald Roosevelt, Mrs. Richard Derby, a daughter; and at least a score of other relatives. Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of the 26th President, was unable to attend but heard the program by radio in a hospital where she is recovering from a broken hip.

Reads Inscribed Quotations.

In his address, Mr. Roosevelt quoted frequently from Theodore Roosevelt, reading some of the quotations inscribed on the walls of the structure.

"Conservation means development as much as it means protection" was one of the statements of his predecessor which Mr. Roosevelt particularly approved. It was, he said, a text which "ought to be emblazoned in every treatise of the care and perpetuation of our national resources."

When "T. R." said that "a great democracy must be progressive or it will soon cease to be great or a democracy," he was warning the nation, according to Mr. Roosevelt's interpretation, that "eternal progress still is the price of liberty."

The President also liked Theodore Roosevelt's statement on corporations and trade unions. The latter declared that "each should be favored as long as it does good, but each should be sharply checked where it acts against law and justice."

Al Smith Among Absent.

The President concluded by quoting from "Pilgrim's Progress." Putting "T. R." in the character of "Mr. Valiant-For-Truth," the President quoted this line: "My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage and my courage and skill to him that can get it."

Notably missing from the platform, where sat scores of state and former state officials, was former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, during whose terms as governor the memorial plans were conceived and a legislative appropriation of 3 and a half million dollars provided.

After Gov. Herbert H. Lehman had presented the memorial, in the name of the state of New York, to New York City, Mayor La Guardia spoke, and his speech took on a distinct political tinge. With an unmistakable reference to the troubles of the New Deal with the Supreme court, La Guardia quoted from a message sent by Theodore Roosevelt in 1908 to congress.

"Judges to Interpret Laws."

"The legislators and executives are chosen to represent the people in enacting and administering the law," he quoted Theodore Roosevelt. "The judges are not chosen to represent the people in this sense. Their function is to interpret the laws, but they are to be blamed when they fail to recognize under a government like ours the deliberate judgment of the majority as to a matter of legitimate policy, when duly expressed by the legislature. For the courts to arrogate to themselves functions which properly belong to the legislative bodies is all wrong, and in the end works mischief."

On Feb. 21, 1912, before the Ohio constitutional convention at Columbus, La Guardia continued, Theodore Roosevelt said:

"I believe in pure democracy. With Lincoln, I hold that 'this country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it.'

"I am emphatically a believer in constitutionalism, and because of this fact I no less emphatically protest against any theory that would make of the constitution a means of thwarting instead of securing the absolute right of the people to rule themselves and to provide for their own social and industrial well-being."

The President smiled broadly as the stocky little La Guardia waved his arms and shouted his attack upon "the judges." Col. Roosevelt looked grim.

Col. Roosevelt, in a brief address, confined himself to "an appreciation" of his father's many qualities and the relation of some personal memories.

After the address the President and his party, accompanied by Postmaster General Farley, left New York by train for Washington, arriving there this evening.

Nears Firing Squad

Shooting Suspect Identified by Victims of 28 Robberies

Francis Brennan, 27 years old, 6038 Drexel boulevard, a bartender, was identified yesterday by 28 managers and clerks of chain stores, delicatessen stores, and gas stations as the man who had robbed them. Showups were held at the Chicago Lawn station and the detective bureau. Brennan has been sought since Dec. 19, when he shot and slightly wounded Raymond Strang, 28 years old, 5704 South Hoyne avenue, in a tavern at 5601 South Damen avenue.

4 GENERATIONS OF ROOSEVELTS ATTEND CHURCH

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—In the heart of New York's towering structures of finance and industry President Roosevelt today heard a sermon emphasizing human rights above property rights.

Mr. Roosevelt drove through a snow storm to the Church of the Incarnation at Madison avenue and Thirty-fifth street to attend Episcopal services with four generations of Roosevelts.

The Rev. John Gass, rector, who offered prayers for the President and congress and also for King George of England, who is ill, delivered the sermon which declared the supremacy of God in all relations of mankind.

Accompanying the President to the services were his mother, his eldest son, James, and his wife, Betsy, and two grandchildren, Eleanor and Curtis Dall.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT DEMOCRATS SEEK AIR LANE OUTLET

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Morris A. Bealle, magazine publisher, said today that proceedings of the anti-Roosevelt convention of southern Democrats would be broadcast through Dr. John R. Brinkley's radio station at Reynosa, Mexico.

The convention will be held at Macon, Ga., on Jan. 29 under the sponsorship of Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia and John H. Kirby of Houston, Tex., New Deal critics.

Charging that major radio chains had placed a "ban" on the convention, Bealle said he asked the federal communications commission yesterday for a permit to hook up Macon with the Brinkley station.

FCC officials said such applications usually require two weeks to go through commission channels. Anticipating delay, Bealle said that "should the permit be refused or the application 'lost,' our attorneys are prepared to go into the courts immediately and ask for a writ of mandamus compelling the commission to act in accordance with the constitution of the United States."

16 Drowned in Boat Wreck During Storm in Samoas

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Sixteen persons were drowned today in a motor launch disaster during a violent storm in the Samoa Islands. The storm destroyed 75 per cent of the islands' banana crop.

Night Club Concession Owner Robbed of $500

Abe Hassen, 442 Wellington street, who has concessions at a number of night clubs, and his employé, Harry Edelman, were robbed of $500 early yesterday in front of the Builders' bank at La Salle street and Wacker drive. Two armed gunmen approached them as they were about to place the money, collected from the concessions, in the night depository. Hassen attempted to flee, and one of the bandits fired several shots at him.

Take these 3 Simple Steps to Better CONTROL OF COLDS

1. To Help Build RESISTANCE to Colds

Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep. (During the colds season, gargle night and morning with Vicks Voratone Antiseptic, especially designed for safe daily use to aid in defense against infection which may enter through the mouth.)

2. To Help PREVENT Many Colds

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To Help END a Cold Sooner

VICKS VAPORUB

If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians; further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full description of the Plan in each Vicks package—or write for details of Plan and trial samples of Vick Colds-Control Aids. Address: Vicks, 110 Milton St., Greensboro, N. C.

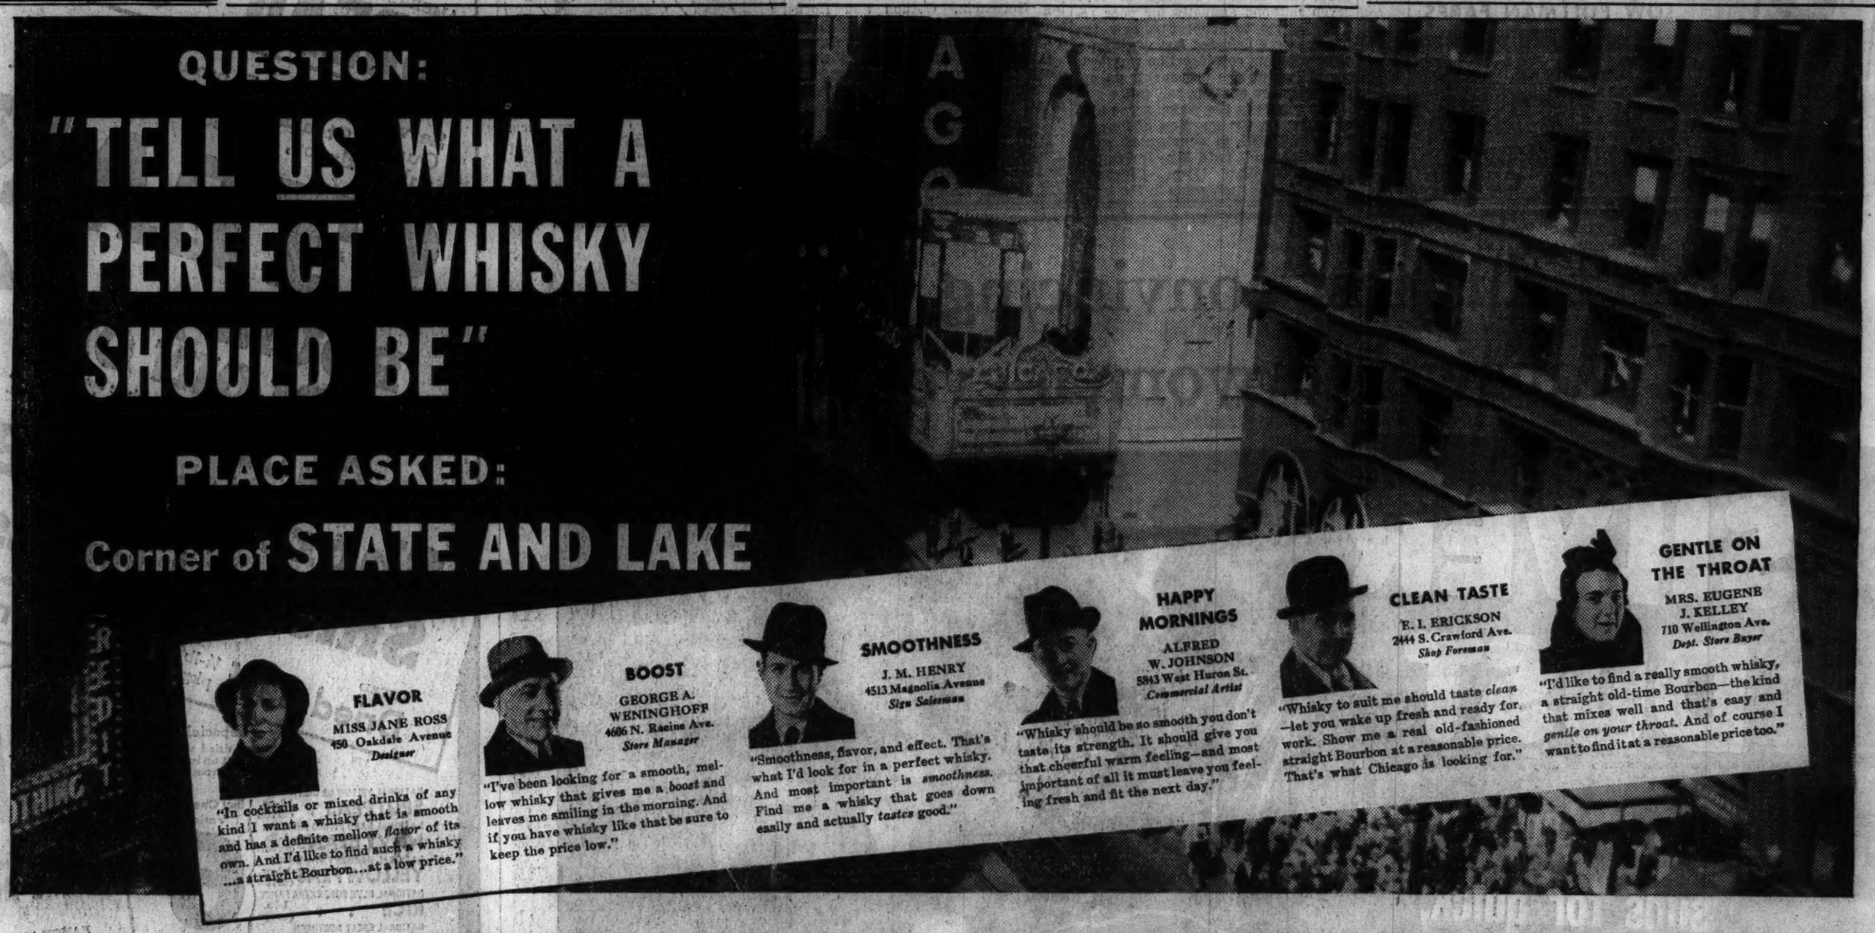
QUESTION:

"TELL US WHAT A PERFECT WHISKY SHOULD BE"

PLACE ASKED:

Corner of STATE AND LAKE



FLAVOR — MISS JANE ROSS, 450 Oakdale Avenue, Designer: "In cocktails or mixed drinks of any kind I want a whisky that is smooth and has a definite mellow flavor of its own. And I'd like to find such a whisky ...a straight Bourbon...at a low price."

BOOST — GEORGE A. WENINGHOFF, 4606 N. Racine Ave., Store Manager: "I've been looking for a smooth, mellow whisky that gives me a boost and leaves me smiling in the morning. And if you have whisky like that be sure to keep the price low."

SMOOTHNESS — J. M. HENRY, 4513 Magnolia Avenue, Sign Salesman: "Smoothness, flavor, and effect. That's what I'd look for in a perfect whisky. And most important is smoothness. Find me a whisky that goes down easily and actually tastes good."

HAPPY MORNINGS — ALFRED W. JOHNSON, 5943 West Huron St., Commercial Artist: "Whisky should be so smooth you don't taste its strength. It should give you that cheerful warm feeling—and most important of all it must leave you feeling fresh and fit the next day."

CLEAN TASTE — E. I. ERICKSON, 2444 S. Crawford Ave., Shop Foreman: "Whisky to suit me should taste clean—let you wake up fresh and ready for work. Show me a real old-fashioned straight Bourbon at a reasonable price. That's what Chicago is looking for."

GENTLE ON THE THROAT — MRS. EUGENE J. KELLEY, 710 Wellington Ave., Dept. Store Buyer: "I'd like to find a really smooth whisky, a straight old-time Bourbon—the kind that mixes well and that's easy and gentle on your throat. And of course I want to find it at a reasonable price too."

It all sums up this way—what Chicago wants is a truly fine whisky—made the expensive way—the traditional way—yet sold at a reasonable price.

Well, here it is, Chicago—Old Hickory.

A truly clean flavor for you, Miss Jane Ross—for Old Hickory is clean clear through—each bottle safeguarded by 125 separate tests and inspections.

Smoothness for you, Mr. Henry—Old Hickory's so smooth you hardly realize its strength...every drop aged at least a full year in charred Ozark oak casks.

And for you, Mrs. Kelley, a whisky that's gentle on the throat—Nature's true test of what fine whisky should be...gentle as only really clean whisky can be.

All these things in a single whisky?—And at a really reasonable price? Yes, it can be done. It has been done. Your "shopping around" days are over. In highballs—cocktails—and "straight"—Old Hickory is Chicago's whisky. Continental Distilling Corp., Philadelphia, Pa.

N. ZEALAND GETS SAD LESSON OUT OF HER OWN 'WPA'

"Made Work" Plan Ends in Complete Failure.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Jan. 19.—If government action could end unemployment and if the spending of huge sums in taxes could smooth a way to thin the ranks of the teeming army of jobless, five years of effort in New Zealand should have discovered these things. Instead they have revealed disillusion and dismay.

The country has everything to make for success in a new and gigantic social experiment of the type it tried in 1930 when it declared that every man was entitled to work which would enable him to live. New Zealand has a highly literate population, a statistical service which is the best in the world, complete information as to every phase of industry, a good standard of living and a national discipline which makes it possible to try anything once.

Parallels Situation in U. S.

And the only result of these things has been that the unemployment relief plan has broken down on all three fronts on which it has attacked the problem. It has failed in agriculture, it has crashed on the policy of "made work," and most of all it has been sunk when it tried to stimuate general business.

The general situation here in many ways closely paralleled that in the United States. The unemployment total here, accurately gauged by a system of registration and inspection, was equivalent to 12,000,000 Americans. The annual sums made available by taxation for relief of these sufferers of the depression totaled around $20,000,000, which in terms of the larger nation would be two billion dollars. To this must be added the large sums raised by local authorities for improvement works to absorb the unemployed of city and country. The whole problem of putting the out of work back in jobs was allied with a long range plan grandly announced as ending the depression and providing insurance against future economic upsets.

Roosevelt Policy Duplicated.

Step by step the coalition government in this country duplicated the Roosevelt policy. The currency was inflated by devaluing the New Zealand pound as the dollar had been devalued. Debt protection was rushed through the legislature for the farmers. Rigid production quotas were laid down for farmers so that over-large crops might not upset values in export markets.

With the inevitable differences between a powerful industrial country and one whose manufacturers have never been able to peek out from behind a towering tarif wall, economic and legislative equivalents might be found aplenty. But there was one major difference. Whereas President Roosevelt placed trust in the NRA, New Zealand, which had had a wage and price structure of similar nature for forty years, began the depression by abandoning it. In manufactures she cut costs by cutting wages, lengthening hours and removing the restrictions a generation of union labor struggling had succeeded in imposing.

Offers Wage Bonuses.

To such a country an industrial future naturally commended itself as a way to emerge from the depression and take up the slack in employment. Plans were laid, an industrial advisory board was appointed and bank credits were ready for expansion.

As a preliminary step the government announced generous wage bonuses on any building projects during the winter months. Home materials had to be used where possible and plans had to be approved. With these provisos, pay rolls on building works would receive a subsidy of 33 cents in the dollar. The first winter the response to this was slow, but growing. The second winter the building campaign soared to enormous heights. The employment board estimated that the equivalent of a billion and a half dollars, which would not have been spent, was poured into the building industry.

The third winter the total grew to over two billions and the unemployment board hurriedly reversed its policy and said that in future the wage subsidy would be paid for dwellings only. The barrage of criticism, which had been directed against the scheme, was proved to be justified. Huge new office buildings were being erected by corporations which made large earnings. They were encouraged to leave them in the country because of the adverse exchange rate. Paid for in part with government money these buildings were then competing successfully with other structures in already overbuilt cities. Chain stores, operating in selected fields, rushed up new blocks of buildings to out-display their competitors.

Building Problem Increases.

The short run relief of the building subsidy ended in increasing the problem of the overbuilt city areas. If every inhabitant had gone to the movies three times a week there still would have been empty seats. The subsidy was used to recondition old buildings and turn them into new movie theaters operating on low schedule prices. This sent existing theater corporations into the hands of the bankers.

This, the most spectacular "success" of the government's industrial relief policy, was followed by immediate failure everywhere else. Efforts to stimulate a mining industry, which scarcely needed any aid beyond the existing high level of gold prices, ended by grub staking small parties of miners. They scratched around in abandoned mines, sure of a small allowance for food, owning blankets and clothes, and happy to escape from the depressing towns.

Beyond that almost nothing was achieved. There was talk of new encouragement for hemp manufacturers, of development of a large canning business for famous but little exploited shell fish, and of using the large deposits of brown coal for a coal oil plant. The millions needed for these schemes kept them just that—talk and nothing more.

Industrial Chief Quits.

But meantime the industrial advisory was hard at work preparing blue prints for a new industrialism, exploring avenues, and compiling figures. Suddenly there came the news that J. Pierce Luke, chairman of the board, had resigned. He had had enough. In two years of effort, he said, the board had never once gained recognition of the government for any of its plans; its work was obviously wasted and the only thing to do was to quit. No new chairman has ever been appointed and nothing more has been heard of the board.

The goverment, in fact, was now bewildered. It was finding the truth of the statement of G. D. H. Cole, the British Socialist writer, who in 1929 said:

"Every politician agrees that it is better to provide work than maintenance, but every government in office, despite all professions, has hitherto ended by providing maintenance rather than work. For whatever may be the ultimate cost to the community of leaving the unemployed to decay in idleness, from the standpoint of the government maintenance in the short run comes a great deal cheaper than employment."

In New Zealand the government was being pushed to the point where it was finding that the British dole, so long condemned by New Zealanders, was, in fact, the inevitable consequence of recognition of the "right to work."

ENGLISH CHURCHMAN DEFENDS INCURABLE'S RIGHT TO EASY DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The right to euthanasia, or an easy death, was defended today by Canon Peter Green of Manchester in an article in "Social Welfare," magazine of the Manchester and Salford Council of Social Service.

"Personally," he wrote, "I should like, if I were suffering from an incurable illness likely to be long and painful, to be allowed to get a second opinion from a specialist, who would give me a certificate that there was no hope of cure and the likelihood of prolonged suffering.

"I should then make a sworn declaration that I wished to end my life. Then I could make my will, say goodby to my friends, receive the last sacraments of the church and take a dose of painless poison in a cup of tea.

"So I should die with a clear mind, and I and my friends would be spared much needless distress."

SOME SENATORS GET MAD.

When a congressional investigating committee falls afoul of a citizen, misfortunes descend on him. Be he rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, it is all one. Any inquisitor can be at once legislator, prosecuting attorney, judge, and headsman. The victim has no privileges or immunities. He has no protection against insolence or brutality. For the time being his citizenship is a worthless thing and all he can do is take the ordeal as manfully as he can, hoping that when the investigators are through with him some of his friends will be able to recognize him.

Apparently even the decent minded men in congress are seldom outraged by the conduct of their more savage members. They do not protest. They allow the prerogatives of their body to be misused and the citizen to be abused. Some of the most flagrant instances of this abuse are on the doorstep of Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and recent ones have occurred in the hearings of the munitions committee with him in charge.

Exception has at last been taken to the procedure, but it is to be observed that the indignation was not aroused by the skinning of a citizen but by a few aspersions Mr. Nye cast upon Woodrow Wilson. Nye said that there was documentary evidence indicating that Wilson falsified when he told the senate, in connection with the Versailles treaty, that until he got to Paris he had no knowledge of the secret treaties between the allies dividing up the war loot in advance.

Nye said that there was proof that Balfour at a family dinner in the White House had revealed a great deal more than Mr. Wilson wanted to know and that in this fashion and in others both the President and his secretary of state, Lansing, had been apprised of the concealed agreements and understandings in Europe. For these statements Mr. Nye got what he has richly deserved on other counts.

Our government is still concealing facts and hiding public documents regarding the world war in a fashion which has no justification. Even in the present tempest some of Mr. Nye's alleged proof had to be bootlegged around the senate and was not made public, therefore the country does not know his full case. It can be said that, although falsification may be an overstatement, what the North Dakota radical said of Wilson and Lansing was closer to fair comment than many of the other statements which go unchallenged.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing may have been unfortunate enough to know in what they would regard as their private character a great deal more than they were intending to admit into their official understanding. Balfour very likely did embarrass Mr. Wilson by chatting about things his host did not care to know officially. The President may have eased his mind by considering that the disturbing revelations were off the record.

Mr. Nye, by poetic justice, catches the devil and is driven from the floor to seek the protection of his office because he made the Wilsonian Democrats mad.

If it is the prerogative of a senator to put an average citizen on the rack, twist his bones, display him to public ridicule, blacken his reputation, and then throw him to the hyenas, it would seem that that prerogative easily might extend to making comment upon the official acts of present or former high officials of the American government.

The senate takes the one outrage very easily, and so long as it does the fair minded public will not start a fever because some partisan criticism raises a windstorm at a session of the Conscript Fathers. Their indignation will be more respectable when it is started by more important occasions.

KIPLING.

Did Kipling close the volume of his works so long before the end of his day because he felt that a real recessional had ended the Britain of his legend? What France was to Shakespeare's kings the empire was to Kipling's full fleshed heroes. They marched. Swagger stick in hand they ruled. Native princes and elephants were in their train.

In Kipling's legend they penetrated jungles as medicos and givers of law. They made the head hunter cease, they rescued the widow from the funeral pile, they caused the wicked to flee and the virtuous to be happy. All the lesser breeds knew the law and Kipling sang the magnificent story. The Briton was the greatest of all men, the superior person, the sun god. The glory of old Rome was dimmed. The British legions were smaller, their roads farther flung.

The source of this majesty was the noblesse oblige of a governing caste. When the England of Henry V., of Drake, of Clive, of Elizabeth, and Victoria became the Britain of Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald, Kipling's story was ended. His trumpets could not herald in the dole.

When Lloyd George went to Berlin for ideas and substituted opiate for opportunity the day when an Englishman would prefer hardship on a frontier to slum life on a government ticket saw its twilight, dusk, and night.

WOMEN AGAINST GANGLAND.

Senator Schall was the tireless enemy of the socialist gang in control of Minnesota politics. He was killed by an automobile. His widow has now announced her candidacy to succeed him. She has dedicated herself to the task which he left unfinished.

Walter Liggett, a courageous editor, dared to denounce Minnesota's racketeers and corruptionists by name. Week after week, he charged that the hoodlums in the statehouse and the hoodlums who profiteered from booze, vice and gambling were in close alliance. He dared any or all of them to sue him for criminal libel. Instead, the attempt was made to silence him by indicting him for unprintable depravities. After a jury had set him free, Walter Liggett was assassinated. He was silenced, but his wife is carrying on his work. She has inherited the full measure of his vigor and fearlessness.

The killing of Liggett, preceding the killing of Schall by only a few weeks, seemed to deprive the forces of honesty and decency in Minnesota of their two ablest leaders. The outlook seemed almost hopeless. Events meanwhile have proved that there was no occasion for despair. These two women have the requisite fire and courage. Hope for the eventual regeneration of the state lies with them.

When American women were given the right to vote and hold office it was in the hope that they would bring with them into public life the standards of decency and honor which belong to American womanhood. Law-abiding citizens, not only of Minnesota but of the nation, will welcome the appearance in public life of these two women, willing to devote themselves to the war against a socialist corruption in league with criminals.

Minnesota has fallen through demagogy into corruption, political assassination, and rule by gangsters. Minnesota's women may redeem her. Upon them rests the state's hopes for the future.

CENTRALIZATION OF POWER LEADS TO RUIN.

The preservation of home rule by the states is not a cry of jealous commonwealths seeking their own aggrandizement at the expense of sister states. It is a fundamental necessity if we are to remain a united country.

The doctrine of regulation and legislation by "master minds," in whose judgment and will all the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce, has been too glaringly apparent in Washington during these last ten years. Were it possible to find "master minds" so unselfish, so willing to decide unhesitatingly against their own personal interests or private prejudices, men almost godlike in their ability to hold the scales of justice with an even hand—such a government might be to the interests of the country, but there are none such on our political horizon, and we cannot expect a complete reversal of the teachings of history.

Now, to bring about government by oligarchy masquerading as democracy, it is fundamentally essential that practically all authority and control be centralized in our national government. The individual sovereignty of our states must first be destroyed, except in mere minor matters of legislation. We are safe from the danger of any such departure from the principles upon which this country was founded just so long as the individual home rule of the states is scrupulously preserved and fought for whenever it seems in danger.

Editorial of the Day

THE NEUTRALITY MUDDLE.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The administration's neutrality bill differs in two vital respects from the neutrality act it is intended to supersede.

The existing act requires the President to proclaim an embargo upon the exportation of arms, ammunition and implements of war to any and all countries at war; but it neither requires nor authorizes him to place an embargo upon the exportation to them of such materials as coal, oil, cotton, copper, etc., which can be used in the manufacture of arms and ammunition or otherwise in the prosecution of war.

The bill now in congress gives the President power to ban the exportation of such materials to belligerents and also to prohibit financial aid to them.

And then it provides that any such embargo "shall apply equally to all belligerents, unless the congress, with the approval of the President, shall declare otherwise."

The purport and language of this discretionary provision are both significant.

Administration spokesmen have been telling the world that the policy of this country is to remain neutral in all wars not of immediate concern to the Americas.

And yet by this section of the neutrality bill the administration gives notice that, if Europe blows up again, and if the partisans of one side or the other can bring enough pressure upon the government in Washington, then we will throw the weight of our vast resources into the balance on that side.

That the administration realizes that such action would mean war is apparent from the language of the section.

As a rule it is the President who does things, with the approval of the congress or the senate.

Authorizing congress, which alone can declare war, to take a certain step, with the approval of the President, suggests in advance that that step is equivalent to a declaration of war.

The whole neutrality muddle in Washington raises the question if the safety and security of this country has been promoted by departing from the ordinary law and practice of nations.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

AND SUPPOSE that instead of his wonderful stories Rudyard Kipling had written after the style of our detective writers who make up a large percentage of our best sellers today. Well, it would have been just too bad because then he would have had to start out with Kim coming home one night and finding Mrs. Hauksbee murdered and the Naulahka, which she always wore around her neck, missing. Suspicion at once fell on Wee Willie Winkle, as he didn't know Mrs. Hauksbee and was of a sweet and gentle disposition. But the police also suspected Gunga Din because he had the Naulahka in his pocket. Then it developed that the diamond necklace had been slipped into Gunga Din's pocket by three soldiers, Privates Terrence Mulvaney, Stanley Otheris, and John Learoyd, all very drunk and with blood on their hands. So it would seem that these soldiers are the murderers and yet the book hasn't gone more than four chapters. Wait, the soldiers prove that they had been painting the barracks with red paint and got it all over their hands. They say they had seen a man named Fuzzy Wuzzy prowling around the house with another low character known as Boh-da-Thone. There, those must be the villains who killed Mrs. Hauksbee. The police try to find them, but run across a schoolboy named Stalky who is said to have asked the nearest shopkeeper how many lollypops and bottles of ginger beer he would trade for a big diamond necklace. Stalky is of course put on trial at once, English justice being sure and certain, and sentenced to die that very day. But just then it turns out that Mrs. Hauksbee was slain by Rikky-Tikky-Tavi, that no reader ever suspected of being so darned mean as to do a thing like that. Yes, that's the way Mr. Kipling would have had to write if he wanted anybody to read his books today. It's so nice that he wrote his stories many years ago. Somehow I like Mr. Kipling's stories better the way they are and not in the modern fashion.

AH, PATIENT TREE!

The tree is such a patient thing,
Both in winter and in spring,
Never fearful of the cold,
Mourning not if it be old;
And when the heat of summer smites
The tree remains through days and nights.

Under the tree we quickly bury
(The living are over in a hurry);
But it goes not when others go,
Whether swift or whether slow,
Standing forever near the place
Where black earth covers form and face.

Long, long after flowers fade
There will be a healing shade—
When the snows come to cover all—
For winter follows golden fall—
The tree, now naked, will not forsake
The dead whose hearts would surely break.

ABORIGINE.

AND TO A VERY SWANKY lady wearing a million dollars' worth of simple little sables and getting out of an imported thirty cylinder car at a fashionable club I said yesterday, "I see you haven't got 1936 licenses on your car yet." And she said, "Of course not; mercy, you don't waste your money for those silly new licenses, do you?" And as I walked away I counted twenty 1935 licenses on the cars parked along the street or that passed me during one block and I decided that probably she was right.

LOOK AT THAT POOR, timid man, afraid to cross the street with so many automobiles whizzing by. Do you know who he is? No! Then I'll tell you—that's Speedy Speelox, who never drives his car at less than eighty miles an hour.

THE ONLY TROUBLE with Joe Louis is that when we go to one of his fights he finishes up the other fellow so quickly that we have hardly time to get in our seats when Joe slaps him down for the count of ten and the fight is all over. It might be well to have young Mr. Louis fight five cauliflower-eared boys at one and the same time. Before he knocks all five through the ropes or places them unconscious on the mat we should have time to take off our overcoats and pick out which one of the fighters is Mr. Louis before it is all over.

WINTER DISCIPLINE.

There is something in the snow
That warns against indulgence
Of idle ease, unlike the flow
Of summer's soft refulgence.

Sinews stiffen, and the will
Is roused to battle when
The north wind rises with a shrill
Discord to challenge men.

A sort of mockery it seems,
Derisive with intent
To shatter all the frailer dreams
Of finer filament.

But mark you now, the barren tree
Preserves the living root,
And from its stubborn energy
Shall spring the promised fruit.

Let us make the most of this,
Thereby deserving, after
A winter's discipline, the kiss
Of spring and summer's laughter.

LOGAN KEAN.

NEW SIMILE: He looked like the kind of man who would pass the car ahead of him on a curve, drop a match in a kerosene can to see if it was empty, try to beat the train to the crossing, or put his fingers in a lion's mouth to see how many teeth it had. R. H. L.

THE SCARLET FEVER SEASON

THE streptococcus germ has a lot to answer for. Among infectious diseases it is public enemy No. 1. Rheumatic fever, erysipelas, endocarditis [inflammation of the lining of the heart], and scarlet fever all owe their existence to some strain of this organism. Unlike the outlaw who seeks to disguise and hide himself, this bacterial bandit makes no attempt to escape. He and his progeny—billions of them—are readily found and identified in the nasal passages, the tonsils, and the throats of infected persons. All too often they exist in the blood itself. The difficulty lies in finding an efficient antitoxin or neutralizing serum against the poison produced by these virulent bacteria.

Fortunately we know the cause of scarlet fever, due largely to the studies of George and Gladys Dick, who have proved a definite relation between a certain strain of the streptococcus and scarlet fever. As a result of their efforts a skin test showing susceptibility has been devised as well as a vaccine that will produce immunity in a high percentage of nonimmune persons.

The disease is generally communicated by direct contact following which the symptoms may appear in from one to eleven days. Occasionally the organisms can live for weeks on garments, toys, or other articles handled by a scarlet fever patient. Milk is a particularly good culture bed, and a single dairy worker with a scarlet fever sore throat may contaminate a sizable milk supply.

As a rule the onset is abrupt. The child may waken in the morning feeling perfectly well; he may even go to school, only to be seized suddenly with nausea and an acute sore throat accompanied by a temperature. There is a peculiar reddening of the cheeks with a blanched area [marked pallor] around the mouth and nose. Usually within 24 hours a rash begins to appear on the neck, behind the ears, and on the chest.

This spreads until the body is fairly well covered. In some cases the skin will look as though it had been smeared with bright red paint. In mild cases the rash is not extensive. In fact, it may be restricted to areas beneath the arms, at the bend of each elbow, on the lower portion of the abdomen, and on the inner side of each thigh. The tongue is frequently covered with a heavy coating, although there is a bright red area at the tip. Sometimes tiny spots on the surface of the tongue give it a strawberry appearance.

As the disease subsides peeling of the skin follows. In some cases this appears as fine flakes; in others, considerable areas of the skin will loosen and be thrown off. Some weeks may be required before the palms and the soles are entirely clear.

Whenever the disease is mild it is not in itself dangerous, although serious after-effects often follow what appears to be a light infection. Abscesses may form in the tonsils or in the back of the throat and involve glands in various parts of the body. The ears should be watched carefully for signs of pus formation with possible rupture of the ear drum. Acute swelling and disease of the kidneys is one of the most important complications. The patient may have been free from fever for several days when suddenly acute kidney symptoms may make their appearance. The feet, legs, and face may be swollen and the urine be dark in color due to the presence of blood.

So far as possible every child should be tested for susceptibility with the Dick test and be rendered immune with appropriate doses of scarlet fever toxin. If the disease appears, convalescent serum should be used it available. In many cities convalescent serum centers are maintained for the purpose of supplying this valuable remedy.

While we must regard the disease as serious, assiduous nursing and good medical care—meeting complications as they arise—will insure recovery in a high percentage of cases. If good results from serum are expected it must be used early and in sufficient dosage.

DYSENTERY.

M. J. N. writes: I have been a sufferer with amebic dysentery for several years, but was not able to find out what my trouble was until last year. I took several treatments to rid myself of these parasites and was told by my physician that they were completely gone. Although I feel much better I am still far from well.

1. Does this disease cause serious after effects?
2. If the colon remains inflamed what should be done?
3. Are the digestive upsets caused by ameba serious?
4. After the parasites have been discovered how long does it take for complete cure?

REPLY.

1. If it is not cured, yes.
2. Your physician can best advise you.
3. Digestive upsets may be present even in mild cases.
4. Entamebic dysentery is a chronic disease and may extend over a period of months or years. However, once the organism has been discovered and treatment instituted the outlook is quite favorable, especially in the absence of complications.

STEAM INHALATIONS.

B. S. C. writes: Some time ago you recommended the inhalation of steam in the treatment of chronic bronchitis. What drug did you advise adding to the water?

REPLY.

The inhalation of moist air [steam] from boiling water to which compound tincture of benzoin has been added, is a simple and efficient way of allaying bronchial irritation. Steam inhalations also aid in promoting drainage from the sinuses and may be used plain or impregnated with menthol, benzoin, or eucalyptol.

SUPERSTITION.

M. S. writes: Would wearing storm rubbers or rubber soles on the shoes harm the eyes?

REPLY.

Not the slightest. This is a popular superstition entirely without foundation. On the other hand, wet feet may affect the general health and hence the eyesight.

ACNE SCARS.

T. E. writes: What treatment is advised for clearing scars caused by an attack of acne?

REPLY.

Little can be done if the scars are deep other than to invoke the aid of a skilled plastic surgeon.

From Across the Sea

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT SAID, Egypt.—In the harbor of this northern terminal of the Suez canal stands a huge statue representing a little man of generous girth, in the frock coat and pantaloons of two generations ago. His right hand is stretched out in a gesture of guidance, showing the way south into the canal for the ships of all nations.

That statue represents Ferdinand de Lesseps, the constructor of the Suez, and it is a symbol of almost all the troubles which this country has had within the last 70 years.

"I want the canal to belong to Egypt, not Egypt to the canal," said Ismail Pasha, the khedive in whose reign the canal was completed [1869]. His patriotic wish showed that he foresaw the danger. It expressed a prophetic fear which has come true. The canal made British control of Egypt inevitable.

Strangely enough, the British before the canal was built opposed the idea. They did their best to hinder other people from building it. Only when the scheme could not be thwarted and the work was completed did they see its vital importance to themselves and appropriate it—for all practical purposes.

On practical grounds the British opposition had a good case. Steam navigation was in its infancy. The sailing vessels of the British fleet, given fair luck with the winds, would make almost as good time from England to India around the Cape of Good Hope as they would with the usual luck of being becalmed in the Red sea.

That 1,000 mile long sleeve of water was, besides, infested with pirates, for whom becalmed boats were easy prey. If there had to be any shortening of transportation time between Europe and India the British proposed it should take the form of a railway, for which they would get the concession, from Alexandria to some port on the Red sea. Freight would be unloaded from a boat at the former and reloaded on another boat at the latter.

Despite British growling, the canal project was promoted by De Lesseps, who had been French consul general in Egypt. The work of scooping sand, which was all there was to do, began in 1859. British anger did not cool, and soon they had a chance to deal the canal what they thought would be a death blow. The American civil war had run up the price of Egyptian cotton in Europe to fantastic heights [our southern states then being blockaded], but Egyptian production was seriously curtailed by the levies of forced labor which had to be dispatched to the canal every three months.

Khedive Ismail hinted that he wanted to get out of the provision of the contract which provided De Lesseps with forced labor. The British pounced on this. They raised a great outcry over "slavery in Egypt."

De Lesseps finally had to let the contract be broken, but Emperor Napoleon III. stood behind him in his claims for indemnity, and Egypt was assessed for £3,360,000.

This was but one of the many debts which hung like a millstone around Egypt's neck and finally brought it to the bankruptcy which made British occupation plausible. The debt was paid off by rickety financing in 1869, and in that same year the canal was opened.

Having failed to stop construction of the canal, the British determined to do the next best thing—get control of it. The chance came in 1875, when Khedive Ismail, insolvent as usual, had to put his 177,000 shares on the market. They were promptly snapped up by the astute empire builder, Prime Minister Disraeli. To make things complete, the Egyptian share in the profits—15 per cent—had to be ceded to a French financial group in payment of a $3,500,000 debt. Within seven years the group had collected more than double the amount of their original loan.

In the period 1870 to 1932 the canal paid over $485,000,000 in dividends, practically none of which went to Egypt. The country can only wait patiently till 1968, when the canal becomes its property—provided some shift of power in the world has not by then altered the present status, and the Egyptians find the canal snatched away from them.

BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We filed bankruptcy last year, going through all the necessary procedure [1] with the exception of being discharged. For some unknown reason my husband neglected this. He started procedure again this year, but we have learned from what we believe to be reliable authority, that we cannot file again for six years. 2. Is this correct? 3. Has all the former procedure and money spent been of no value? Can anything be done? 4. We have received two "notices of first meetings of creditors." He says they are of no consequence as bankruptcy cannot be filed again now. Is this true? C. E.

1. It has been held that if the bankrupt fails to apply for a discharge, the result is equivalent to a judgment by default in favor of the then creditors and is binding as such in subsequent litigation involving the same issue so that he cannot later obtain a discharge as to those debts. See 161, Fed. 588, and other cases cited in 11 U. S. C. A. 11.
2. We find no rule to prevent you from filing a new petition as to new debts.
3. Not only that. It has done you a disservice.
4. It is not clear whether you mean involuntary proceedings.

Your experience should demonstrate the unwisdom of attempting such matters without employing an attorney.

TITLE TO PROPERTY.

Des Plaines, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the oldest of four sons, two being minors. 1. Our mother, who was a widow, died last February. The only property left was a brick bungalow encumbered by an $1,800 mortgage due next March. This property has not been probated. 2. As we don't have title to this property [3] can we renew this mortgage? 4. How can this property be sold without probate? Could the minors' share be held in trust for them until of age? D. G.

1. We assume that she left no will.
2. We would not agree with you as to your not having title. The only difficulty is that until probate has been completed your title is not salable.
3. Depends largely on the attitude of the mortgage holder.
4. Take the matter up with an attorney.

THE PROCESSING TAXES.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Already there is much controversy over the refunding to processors of the processing taxes held in escrow.

It is obvious, in the face of present reductions in prices of foodstuffs, that the consumer actually paid the taxes and therefore the processor is not rightfully entitled to the refund. It is equally obvious that the refunds cannot be returned to all the consumers.

If the processors take it they will play right into President Roosevelt's hands and support his demagogic utterances about money gougers, entrenched greed, etc. It is very apparent what good use he could make of this in his campaign for reelection. As a way out it is my thought that the processors, after making deductions for attorney fees and extra expenses entailed in making tax payments, turn over the balance of the refund in the form of a bonus to their employés and those who lost their jobs through curtailment of production.

C. E. WREN.

A CONTRIBUTION TO THE NEEDY.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—As one of the millions of American housewives who, through the inflated prices of foodstuffs the past year, have paid our government the processing taxes for the packers and millers, I protest the repayment of one penny of such taxes to them.

A child knows that pork gravy is very slippery and easily spilled and that dough has a tendency to stick to the fingers, so in order to forestall any waste of such important gravy and dough as fifty million dollars, let us leave it where it will help the many who paid it and not distribute it to further swell the individual fortunes of the few who collected it.

Let this fund represent a contribution from the housewives of America to the many needy of our country at a time when it is still badly needed. If this course is not followed there are many ways in which we can show our disapproval. MARGUERITE M. WOLF.

OLD STUFF.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Last night I was approached in front of my home by a colored lad "from Vicksburg, Miss.," who had come to Chicago to chauffeur for some old friends of his Vicksburg employers. His story went on to say that upon arriving here he learned that they had moved to Gary, Ind., and he didn't have enough money to get there. The heart appeal in the story is that he tried to get something from our Chicago colored friends, but they disdained their southern cousins and he was forced to beg from the white folks [all this in a deep southern drawl]. Well, being soft hearted in general, I finally gave him a quarter to get to Gary.

Upon going upstairs I related the story to my folks, and imagine my surprise when I learned that my father fell for the same story to the most minute details exactly three months ago.

If this keeps up the Chicago district is going to be flooded with southern chauffeurs. Take heed, you philanthropists, and profit by a sucker's experience.

IDEA FOR DR. BUNDESEN.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Herman N. Bundesen, M. D., is a Democratic candidate for governor. As a medical man he's in a position to place Illinois in the rank of modern states. By modern I mean he can sponsor a eugenic law. Twenty-seven states in our Union have a definite eugenic program, legalizing state control—to a certain extent—of marriage. This control would avoid large numbers of undesirable or disgenic people, which would ultimately result in abolishing relief and a definite decrease in our penal population and the mentally deficient.

MARTIN W. GRAU.

THE LAW OF THE LAND.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Since the decisions of the Supreme court recently handed down are the subject of so much discussion, let us look deeper into the matter. It is not my intention to discuss the merits of the act under consideration, but the significance of the decisions.

The government of the United States is not only constitutional, but also representative. In this case we have an act of congress passed by both branches of the legislature, and signed by the President, thus making it a law of the land. These men were all duly elected by the people. On the other hand we have nine politically appointed justices of the court. In their selection we have no voice whatever. They may be selected for their political views as well as their ability. If we hold elections just for the kick we get out of the excitement of it, let us find some other way of amusing ourselves and save a lot of money.

This seems to me a much graver threat to our democratic form of government than any of the bogies raised by THE TRIBUNE. We are to be ruled by the Grand Council of Nine! Shades of Mussolini! READER.

SURPLUSES FROM DEFICITS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Walter O. Wilson asks in today's TRIBUNE that "some expert" will explain the words in the President's budget message: "It is the deficit of today that is making possible the surplus of tomorrow."

I am not an "expert," but I occasionally read the business pages of the newspapers. If Mr. Wilson will turn to these pages he will see the growing list of railroads and other businesses which a couple of years ago were showing deficits, borrowed of the government through the RFC, and are now showing surpluses. It was that borrowing, resulting, of course, in increased deficit, which made possible the surplus today.

Why should the same system, when used by government, be found strange?

I should like also to comment on a recent headline in THE TRIBUNE; "New Deal Foes Named Tyrants and Autocrats." I think you made a mistake. This should have read: "Tyrants and Autocrats Named New Deal Foes." I listened, and that is the way it sounded to me. F. A. C.

AS FOR INSTANCE?

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 10.—President Roosevelt has been criticized for not sufficiently stating the state of the Union in his last message to congress. Perhaps he hadn't the heart to do it. The President, undoubtedly a good-hearted man, probably couldn't bear to awaken us from our blissful dream that we are still a self-governing people to the bitter realization that constitutional government, as defined in Lincoln's "government by the people, for the people" has actually perished from our part of the earth; that the long era of ever increasing legal lawlessness has culminated in the absolute dominance of the legal technicality over such legislative wisdom and ability as we have been able to develop during our national life. Possibly he also knows that it will be up to him to take the lead in cleaning up this tragic mess and, knowing what a big, unpleasant job it will be, dreads to start before it is absolutely necessary. Who can blame him? J. W. FARR.

CROWDED CARS.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—I am a working man who rides the street cars morning and night. The cars are so crowded you are lucky if you ever get a seat. I think a person is entitled to a seat for 7 cents. There are plenty of men out of work. They would welcome the job of operating a street car. Also it would improve health in the city of Chicago if the street cars were not packed full. ART MURPHY.

LAVAL'S POLICIES CONDEMNED BY PARTY LEADERS

Expect Resignation of Six to Wreck Cabinet.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The probability that France will have a real political crisis and not merely a formal one this week became very strong today when the executive committee of the Radical Socialist party voted condemnation of Premier Pierre Laval's foreign and domestic policy. Edouard Deladier, a foe of Laval, was chosen head of the party which is the largest in the chamber of deputies.

Though the executive committee did not formally order the six Radical Socialist ministers to withdraw from the Laval cabinet, it was generally expected that all would hand in their resignations as soon as Laval returns from Geneva Wednesday.

According to dispatches from Geneva, Laval, when informed of the Radical Socialist executive committee's decision on his arrival in that city tonight, declared that he would hand in his resignation to President Albert Lebrun and not try to patch up the cabinet by replacing the Radical Socialist ministers.

Will Wait Out Rivals.

This indicated that the crisis will be profound and possibly long drawn out. It does not mean that Laval will not eventually organize a new government, but the indications are that he will wait until all his potential rivals have exhibited their powerlessness to solve the crisis.

Eventually in forming the government, some political observers suggest, Laval may well detach individual members from the conservative element of the Radical-Socialist party and use them as the left wing of a new national union cabinet.

Bearing out this possibility came the news late tonight of the resignation of Paul Marchandeau, former cabinet minister, from the Radical Socialist party due to dissatisfaction with the party's decision to withdraw support from Premier Laval. It was rumored Marchandeau's resignation will be followed by those of a dozen other conservative members of the party who are supporters of Premier Laval.

Perils Financial World.

The impending cabinet crisis is bound to have a highly disturbing effect on public opinion and to react very unfavorably on the financial situation which already is far from brilliant.

The Radical Socialists' resolution, which was adopted unanimously barring one dissenting vote, praised the "high conscience which caused Edouard Herriot, minister of state, to quit the Laval cabinet." Further it declared:

"The ideas and methods of Premier Laval are in absolute opposition to the Radical Socialist doctrin as formulated in the latest party convention, notably regarding the defense of international peace through the league of nations pact, peace within France through effective disarming of factions—meaning the Fascist and semi-Fascist organizations—and the fight against the economic crisis by the substitution of the rights of labor for privileges of the money powers."

Forbid Votes for Laval.

The final provision required:

"Henceforth all the party's senators and deputies must show a unity of action and practice discipline in voting." In other words, they are no longer free to vote for Laval if they choose. This last provision virtually makes it impossible for the Radical Socialist ministers to remain in the cabinet.

Herriot said that his own design to resign from the cabinet was prompted by attacks in the Nationalist press on his honesty. Daladier attacked the Bank of France as a "gold storehouse accessible only to the rich."

TRACE TWO GUNS SEIZED IN QUIZ ON PRIGNANO DEATH

Two .38 caliber pistols seized by the police investigating the slaying of State Representative Albert J. Prignano, who was shot to death in front of his home at 722 Bunker street Dec. 29, were sold by the Palace Loan bank in Gary it was learned yesterday.

One pistol was found several days after the murder in the rear of 740 Bunker street where it apparently had been thrown by the assassins. The other was found in the home of Angelo Lazzia, who was questioned as a suspect in the case because he was the seller of the car abandoned by the killers. The abandoned pistol was sold six years ago by the Palace Loan bank and the Lazzia pistol about a year later. The dealer said the buyers gave different names and he could not identify them as the same person.

FARM BANK PLAN WINS APPROVAL OF SENATE BODY

Substitute AAA Measure Expected Tomorrow.

Washington, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Chairman Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.] claimed the solid support of the senate agriculture committee today for his contention that a "permanent" solution of the farm problem lies in establishing a federal agriculture bank system.

He added, however, that "with the cotton planting season coming on us, amendment to the soil conservation act might furnish some sort of stability until a permanent program is enacted."

Senator John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] has announced he will introduce legislation, probably Tuesday, to permit a good crop control program through soil conservation measures administered by the present AAA personnel.

350 Million Fund Sought.

The Bankhead plan calls for an appropriation of 350 million dollars which the Alabaman said he might seek as an amendment to the independent offices bill passed by the house and pending in the senate.

However, Chairman Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] of the senate appropriations committee said nothing had been said to him about such a move—apparently intended to speed the enactment of an at least temporary AAA substitute so as to govern 1936 crops. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday said legislation should be effective Feb. 15 to affect this year's planting.

Smith's agricultural bank proposal was embodied in a bill he introduced last session. It would set up banks in each state to lend money against crops and other farm security.

Seen as "Heart of Problem."

The South Carolinian said his colleagues "seem to think with me that it is the heart of a permanent solution of the present demoralization. I am going to fight for it on the floor as soon as it comes up."

The question of financing a new farm program remained unsettled, although there have been indications that reënactment of the old processing taxes as excises would be sought.

Senator Alben Barkley [Dem., Ky.] told the senate yesterday in debate on the bonus that there was no certainty the government would have to refund one billion dollars it has collected, explaining that the Supreme court has not passed on the question of recovery.

KILLS SELF IN SHOE SHOP.

August Zullo, 50 years old, 1109 South Ashland avenue, who had been a shoemaker with a shop at 1549 West Van Buren street for nearly 30 years, shot himself to death in the shop yesterday. He had been despondent over financial difficulties.

Calls New Deal Farm Helps 'Hokum' and 'a Sock on Nose'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The New Deal is purportedly helping the farmer with one hand and with the other is giving him "a little sock on the nose," through allowing the importation of millions of gallons of blackstrap molasses, according to Representative Everett M. Dirksen [Rep., Ill.]

"I have always consistently supported farm legislation," said Dirksen, "but cannot escape the conviction that it is the very acme of hokum to reduce acreage and reduce production with one program and then destroy the farmers' markets with still another program, which lets down the bars on blackstrap imports which are directly competitive with grain."

Pre-Repeal Promises.

Dirksen declared that prior to the repeal of the 18th amendment people "went up and down the land" and promised the farmers that if they would march to the polls and help end prohibition that it would expand the industrial outlet for grain by making possible the use of millions of bushels of corn and rye for the manufacture of bourbon, rye and Scotch whisky.

The federal alcohol administration has permitted the distiller of beverages which contain neutral spirits made from "a thick, dirty, scummy sirup, known to the trade as blackstrap molasses," and imported from Cuba, Puerto Rico and other offshore islands to use the words "cane products" to inform the consuming public of the materials from which the beverages were produced, according to the Illinoisan.

To the average citizen the term "cane products" means sugar and nothing more, Dirksen contended.

Obscure Section Used.

This beguiling term, the congressman charged, was used through an obscure section of the revenue act of 1918 which provides that there shall be no discrimination between distilled spirits taxable under the law because of a difference in the character of material from which they were produced.

Dirksen has a repealer for this section pending before the house.

TWO PRICE PLAN URGED TO SOLVE FARM PROBLEM

Vandenberg Favors Full Tarif Protection.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, frequently-mentioned Republican presidential possibility, presented today his plan for solving the farm problem—a two-price system.

Under Vandenberg's "two-price system" the government, instead of offering subsidies to encourage or restrict production, would:

1. Provide complete tarif protection for crops sold for domestic consumption.

2. Offer government leadership in storing and ultimately marketing surplus crops at the price they would bring on the world markets.

Food Now Imported.

Vandenberg said this proposal was "squarely counter to the administration's tarif policy, which is admitting millions of dollars in foreign farm commodities, including food for the first time in 150 years."

"Reports disclose," he continued, "that the total farm income from crops and live stock increased $844,000,000 in 1935 over 1934. Of this amount $448,000,000, or more than half, is increased income on commodities entirely outside of this particular AAA control.

AAA Crops Produce Less.

"The increased income within this particular branch of AAA control [processing tax crops] was $396,000,000, which included $480,000,000 of benefit payments.

"Therefore, it would at least superficially appear that the crops within this particular AAA control actually produced $84,000,000 less income than the year before, while crops outside increased nearly half a billion dollars.

Answer to Problem.

"My view is that if the American farmer can be given the benefit of the two-price system his problem will be answered largely. This means that if the farmer can be completely protected in a domestic price at home and a world price for his exportable surplus, instead of a world price for all of it, he will most nearly approach an effective parity of opportunity.

"I recognize the existence of submarginal and erosion land problems, but it certainly is ridiculous to retire millions of acres of farm land at public expense, while simultaneously creating millions of new acres by reclamation and irrigation at public expense."

SEEKS WHITE HOUSE AID IN PASSAGE OF 30 HOUR WEEK ACT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—An effort to obtain White House support within a fortnight for legislation to place American industry operating in interstate commerce on a thirty hour week, was announced today by Chairman Connery [Dem., Mass.] of the house labor committee.

"I am hoping to take the matter up promptly with the President and present views which I hope will obtain his support," Connery said. The legislation has the backing of the American Federation of Labor.

The labor committee has approved a measure that would license all interstate business and withhold licenses from firms which work employés more than thirty hours a week, fail to provide a wage sufficient to maintain a decent and comfortable standard of living, deny workers the right to join unions or bargain collectively, or employ persons under 16 years of age.

Anti-Crime College Here Urged by Boys' Club Head

Attorney David B. Gann, president of the Chicago Boys' club, urged yesterday that the "anti-crime college" proposed by President Roosevelt for the training of prosecutors in court work, grand jury procedure, and the work of federal bureau of investigation operatives be located in Chicago. Mr. Gann said Chicago would be a logical location for such an institution because of its scientific crime-fighting facilities and because of the record made here in recent years by federal agents and prosecutors in smashing organized crime.

SLAIN BELMONTE MAY BE LINKED TO BANK BANDITS

Agents of the department of justice and Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan are attempting to link the murder last Monday night of Eugene Belmonte, "42" gangster," with the frustrated robbery last Sept. 30 in the University State bank, 1354 East 55th street, it was learned last night. A prisoner, whose identity was not disclosed, has been held since Saturday at the detective bureau for questioning.

Through this man, it was reported, the police and federal agents were seeking to determine whether Belmonte was one of the nine bandits who were routed by tear gas in the bank raid, during which a woman and three men were shot. The bandits got no loot.

The police, it was learned, were considering a possibility that Belmonte may have been killed for fear he would turn informer. He was known to have been a friend of Michael Detente, identified as driver of one of the bandit cars. Detente has been named in a federal warant charging him with attempting to rob a bank which is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. He is in the county jail awaiting trial for two other robberies.

The gunman fired one shot at Grosham and escaped with $50.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By FRANK RIDGWAY

Shelling Is a Saving.

January 19, 1936.

LABOR required in handling feed has been found one of the important elements in making cattle feeding pay on the Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville. Skilful management saves many dollars in handling tons of grain and hay fed each week to hundreds of cattle now on feed at the farm.

Last week, for example, men at the Yorkville place began shelling corn for the steers as a means of saving labor and also to make it possible for them to be more accurate in the amount of concentrated feed allowed in the daily ration. More than 1,500 bushels of Will County Favorite corn were shelled last Wednesday.

As a means of saving extra labor in hauling the shelled corn out to the feed bunks, it was all elevated direct from the sheller to three separate, overhead bins. Each bin is provided with a spout. With this arrangement a grain box on a wagon or truck can be filled within a few minutes without shoveling a single scoopful of the corn.

The corn was shelled by Albert Dierzen, a local commercial sheller, at a cost of 1 cent a bushel. The manager of the farm, who has been crushing the corn fed to the steers this season, finds that shelling will save money. Shelled corn is much more satisfactory in concocting finishing rations for cattle.

More corn will be shelled from time to time as it is needed.

Labor is saved also by hauling soy bean hay on sleds directly from the field to the racks in the feed yards. The hay is in small cocks. Although the soy bean hay cocks are covered with a hard crusted snow men are able easily to break the crust on top and around the edges with their forks. The hay is still bright and is relished by the cattle. They do not seem to object to the small amount of snow that clings to the hay.

The soy beans harvested for hay with a binder last summer are standing still in shocks in the open field. This hay will be left until last because it is expected to keep better in shocks than in cocks. Recent examination of the shocks revealed that the plants have retained practically all of the foliage and beans. Here again labor is saved because extra handling is avoided by hauling the roughage directly from the field to the feed yards and the bundles are easily and speedily handled.

The "nameless mule" at the Tribune Experimental farm is still keeping up her end of the double tree, answering to queer noises made by the driver who refuses to call her "Kate," the name used by her former owner. Readers are sending in their best mule names.

The first received was from Mrs. Della Miner of Monticello, Ill., who suggested by telegram that the mule be named "Mae."

B. M. Mertz of Downers Grove, Ill., writes, "Why not call the silky-coated, brownish-colored, mealy-nosed mule just what she is—'Mate'."

Among others sent in was from an unknown reader who thinks "Jess" would be a good name—but that's enough. How do you like these names? If you don't like them send in your nomination soon for men at the farm are becoming impatient and want a name for the mule. The most appropriate name will be selected by a committee from the various suggestions.

HEART DISEASE

Don't let a venereal disease lead to heart trouble and early death, but go today to a capable doctor or to the Public Health Institute

DOCTORS have known for years that long-neglected syphilis is a common cause of heart disease. But it remained for a leading Eastern venereal disease clinic to discover that almost half of those who foolishly persist in putting off proper treatment for syphilis eventually develop some form of heart trouble.

Of a large number of cases of "late" syphilis studied, 42% were found to have a heart complication! Some showed symptoms of heart disease within 3 years after infection, indicating that many comparatively young men and women are afflicted with this greatest of all causes of death.

Thus it is apparent that syphilis is a dangerous thing to trifle with. For, if it does not lead to heart trouble, it may result in failing sight, deafness, apoplexy, paralysis or even insanity! Gonorrhea, too, should never be neglected, for it may in time be the cause of sterility, crippling rheumatism, or serious prostate, bladder and other troubles.

Disaster can be avoided!

Fortunately, modern medical science can prevent heart disease and other disastrous consequences of venereal infections, or can benefit them if they already exist. But extreme care must be taken to avoid quack or self treatment, and to consult a capable physician such as your family doctor or one of those on the staff of the Public Health Institute.

The friendly men and women physicians of the Public Health Institute are licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners, and are thoroughly experienced in the latest methods of treating venereal diseases and their various complications. In addition, the Institute has available all necessary mechanical aids to proper treatment, including an X-ray department equipped to make fluoroscopic and electro-cardiographic studies of the heart action.

To date, the Public Health Institute has helped more than 225,000 Chicagoans to avoid the disability or premature death so often caused by neglected venereal infections! Each patient is promptly treated in a private room, and for the sake of even greater privacy is known by a number instead of by name.

Treatments as low as $1.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute specializes in venereal diseases at remarkably low fees. A complete examination for syphilis and gonorrhea, including urinalysis and Wassermann blood test, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

Hence there is no longer any need for a venereal disease sufferer to fear heart trouble and other serious consequences. For not only can virtually all such complications be prevented or benefited, but the very best of treatment is now available at nominal cost. Even persons temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

Business Men's Symphony Plays Ably in Concert

Shows Gain Under Dasch's Leadership.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

More than a hundred business and professional men of the city forgot ledgers and briefs and grosses yesterday afternoon to assemble on the stage of Orchestra hall and play standard symphonic music in a manner that suggested definite professional interest in the art. The occasion was the fifteenth anniversary concert of the Chicago Business Men's Symphony orchestra.

The program was wisely chosen. Every item was a work of genuine moment. To George Dasch, the conductor, goes credit for the orchestra's wise policy of keeping clear of things which demand more rehersal time than these busy musicians can spare from other duties and at the same time choosing so discriminatingly from among many hundred repertoire possibilities that the music which finally comes to a hearing is acceptable in high degree to the audience and of inestimable benefit to the men.

Aside from a lack of certain very subtle dynamic effects, and a tempo in the second movement which some musicians [including Schubert, I think] would not cordially approve, the big Tenth Symphony went off very well. The orchestra is precise and workmanlike at all times, and if these very qualities occasionally forbid a delectable saunter down a flower-strewn bypath—which only a confident freedom of the rhythmic scheme can open up—their value for a clear presentation of the great beauties of the direct highroad is considerable.

In the "Egmont" overture, and especially in "Les Preludes," the Business Men's orchestra demonstrated its remarkable sonority and technical accomplishment. The symphonic poem is a test for any group, with its long-breathed fortissimo phrases and the exacting demands it makes on the brass. This last division, usually so weak in a nonprofessional unit, is lusty and true. The problem of intonation has driven many a conductor to an anguished end, so Dasch evidently tackled it early—and successfully.

In the light of the immense progress the orchestra has made it is not too optimistic to believe that the minor obstacles which still strew its road will be easily surmounted. These obstacles, in my opinion, are the too strict literalness which sometimes mars the poetry of the music, and the necessity for occasionally passing up an opportunity for a melting pianissimo effect in strings or woodwind because of the difficulty of getting the long rehersal time that would permit the director to work out such effects and relate them to the line of the music.

Parthenia Vogelback appeared as soloist in the Grieg piano concerto. Her tone is not brilliant enough to cope at all times with the opulence of her instrumental background, but in the more moderately pitched passages she succeeded nicely in getting some bewitching effects out of the piano. She is a good musician with an excellent rhythmic sense and a satisfactory measure of technical dexterity.

The words "amateur" and "dilettante" are too often thought to imply reproach. There is no better index to the genuine interest in music in any given city than the number and quality of its nonprofessional organizations. A rich town can buy the best musicians in the world; it cannot buy a business men's symphony orchestra. Units of this type are a good indication of the fact that the city's musical sense is more than skin deep.

A delay of forty minutes marred the Chicago debut of Trudi Schoop and her comic ballet. A simple explanation of the reason might have avoided a great many frayed tempers at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon, and the public might have been in much more receptive mood when the show finally did start.

Why was no announcement made as to the cause of the delay? One of the pianists had gone to the wrong theater and the average crowd is good natured enough to sympathize with the management of a theater in troubles of this sort. For a while it looked as if there would be no afternoon performance.

In the evening things went very smoothly. The ballet drew genuine laughter, not the self-conscious kind that often goes with humor suspected of a taint of culture.

Trudi Schoop and her Comic Ballet caricature life. Their methods have wit and a certain trueness. The situations and stories in the two and a half hours of excellent entertainment grow naturally out of the types of person the canny leader has chosen for her troupe. The dramatic values are inherent in the people.

Schoop is supposd to build her ballets from the stuff of everyday experience. In a limited way this is true enough, but she has the shrewd touch of the born caricaturist and is able to distort reality almost as much as the creator of "Aurora's Wedding." Whatever the technique, the result is irrepressibly gay.

A bewildering number of familiar types pass before you in the course of the evening. Most of them are rather obvious, the stock-in-trade of the caricaturist since before the flood, but they are transformed by Trudi Schoop's glorious humor.

She herself is a miraculous mistress of gesture, capable of getting a laugh and a gasp of recognition out of a twirl of her hands. Special mention must go to Meta Krahn for her very clever miming in the part of the ambitious chorus girl in the first sketch, and to Ellen Liy for her skill in the neglected art of grimace. Among the men, one thinks first of Otto Ulbricht, who danced the chorus instructor in "Want Ads" and Leopold and the father-in-law in "Fridolin."

Winter Sports Enthusiasts

Genie Anne Gerard and Jimmy Garard, children of the James L. Garards of Glencoe, were among those who enjoyed an afternoon of winter sports at the Skokie Country club's winter carnival Saturday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to the wearers of best costumes and to the winners in various skating events. Before every one retired to the clubhouse for refreshments the members and their children and guests watched an exhibition hocky game.

Jane M'Murray Is Engaged to Robt. G. Walker

Mary Alden Taber to Be Bride of Canadian.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements of interest were announced at parties yesterday afternoon in town. The young people who gathered in the drawing room of Mrs. George Norton McMurray's apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue at the cocktail hour heard with pleasure of the engagement to be married of Mrs. McMurray's daughter, Jane, to Robert Giles Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy Walker of 5430 Sheridan road, and at the same time Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Taber announced at a party in their home at 190 East Chestnut street the engagement of their daughter, Mary Alden, to Emil W. Neukranz of London, Ontario, formerly of Evanston.

Many of those who drank a toast to Miss McMurray and Mr. Walker were not at all surprised to be congratulating them, for Mr. Walker has been one of Miss McMurray's most serious suitors since she and her mother moved to the "900" from the south side. Miss McMurray is a graduate of the University School for Girls and of Wells college, where she was president of her senior class. She now is secretary of the Chicago Wells club, and also is a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league and a member of the Kenwood Social Service club.

Mr. Walker is a graduate of the Chicago Latin School for Boys, and of Princeton university, where he was a member of Tiger inn.

Miss McMurray to Wed May 2; Miss Taber in March.

Two of Miss McMurray's best friends are visiting her over the week-end, Miss Emily Torrey of Scarsdale, N. Y., a former classmate at Wells, and Miss Mary Posten of Columbus, O., and undoubtedly they will come to Chicago again on May 2, when Miss McMurray will become Mrs. Walker.

Miss Taber and her fiancé, who is a son of Mrs. Oscar Neukranz of Sandkaas-Allinge, Bornholm, Denmark, plan to be married late in March, and they will make their home in London, Ont., where the young Dane is engaged in business. He left for Ontario last night after having spent the week-end with the Tabers and meeting his fiancée's closest friends at tea time yesterday.

Miss Taber attended the Shipley school at Bryn Mawr, and the Art institute. Her sister, the former Starr Taber, was married to Lawrence Y. Crump last Oct. 12.

Junior League to Set New High in Art Exhibits.

More exhibits than ever before will be hung in the Casino club Thursday for the Chicago Junior league's annual arts and interests exhibit, and many of the paintings, photographs, drawings, and sculptured articles have come from artists who never before have exhibited in a league show. Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, head of the arts and interests department, and her committee are delighted that so much new talent will be on view, and the judges, Mrs. Harold Stark, Walter S. Brewster, and Shepard Vogelgesang, will have a busy time awarding ribbons.

Mrs. Horton Conrad, Mrs. Howard Peabody, Mrs. Austin Zimmerman, a transfer from the Detroit league; Mrs. Daniel Leonard, Mrs. Sanger Hinchman, Miss Betty Durham, Miss Jean Schweppe, Mrs. Stewart Harvey, Mrs.

Lyle Talbot Rents Home with Big Living Room for His Games

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Lyle Talbot has rented the Charlie Farrell Toluca lake home, out of which George Brent has just moved. "It's the only house with a living room big enough for my games," Talbot explained as he hauled a load of his pet possessions from his former bungalow to the new place. Parlor games are Talbot's weakness.

He has installed a ping-pong table, three marble games, and endless tables for checkers, chess, backgammon, and cards in the living room. He has room for a miniature archery set. The garage houses his three bicycles and the patio he turned into a court for playing badminton.

"Dancing Pirate," a musical romance co-featuring Steffi Duna and Charles Collins, is to be produced as the next full length all color feature backed financially by Jock Whitney. Bob Benchley is doing its dialog.

After "Dancing Pirate" Whitney will produce "The Life of Custer."

The soprano voice sweeping the set of "Sissy" at Columbia with the inevitable "Whoa, oh, oh, oh, oh, and it comes out here" belonged to Grace Moore. Miss Moore said it was not for her to comment on the merit of "The Music Goes Round and Round," but that it had an infectious lilt.

Sir H. Hamilton Harty in U.S.; to Conduct in Chicago

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Sir H. Hamilton Harty, composer and conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, arrived today on the liner President Roosevelt for a six weeks' stay in the United States. He will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra for two weeks.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

This is the fantastic story of Tweedledum and Tweedledee in everybody's Wonderland. Fair-haired Alice, the heroine, is suddenly blessed with an illegitimate baby; and the two Tweedles, whose sense of humor works the wrong way, put the gurgling infant into the movies, where he learns to ride a horse and becomes famous.

No, I'm getting this thing mixed up. Hold everything until my head clears—this is the story of "Boy Meets Girl," the play that came to the Selwyn theater last night as the latest New York hit, staged to parallel its current Broadway run. It contemplates the inner life and business methods of the motion picture industry, as it flourishes in Hollywood, with the mocking eye of travesty and the antic spirit of the Marx brothers.

There is a tradition among the wits, satirists, and intellectuals of the land that motion pictures are written, manufactured, and exploited in a manner that approaches lunacy; that all human values in the business are distorted into absurd shapes, and that any sane person who observes this marvel closely will be stricken with a hysteria of uncontrollable laughter. This is the point of view of the authors of "Boy Meets Girl"; they have taken what they regard as crazy material and fabricated from it a daft and droll amusement, pungent with smartly ironic dialog.

People who have had some experience in the inner sanctums and libretists' cells of Hollywood and who have come away muttering Hollywood's favorite adjective to themselves ("screwy" is the word), assert that "Boy Meets Girl" catches the tone of the place perfectly. I myself cannot testify that this is pure realism, but if Hollywood is "screwy," the play matches it. It deals with eccentricities of conduct which are so farcical that they always are teetering on the brink of incredibility.

Two mad librettists, whose impish conduct recalls the stories that are afloat in movie and stage circles about Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, are the characters that make the wheels of "Boy Meets Girl" go 'round and around. They are close copies of the Hecht-MacArthur legend, and they do their work in a series of ironic brainstorms. The story is mainly devoted to their exploit in making an international favorite out of a newborn illegitimate baby, and to their downfall when the infant's origin is exposed. It is too bizarre and flighty to be retold in cold-blooded detail, but while it is running in circles, trying to catch its own tail, it makes a lot of wisecracking fun.

The casting of the various types is adroit; the stage direction by George Abbott, a master-hand in dealing with such material, is keen and brisk; and the acting is skilful and merry. Polly Walters, appearing as the young mother of the child prodigy, a studio waitress who becomes a high school student after her confinement, is a winning and adept comedienne. The Hecht-MacArthur imitators are plausibly acted by Eric Dressler and Harold Vermilyea.

A MRS. FEREE SARGENT of Lincoln, Ill., vouches for this tale. Mrs. Sargent was a delegate to the continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington in 1935. One day she took a sightseeing bus that arrived, eventually, at the Lincoln memorial. A mother and daughter were among the passengers, and the mother inquired, when the bus stopped, what was to be seen here. A fine statue of Lincoln, she was told; also his first inaugural address and his Gettysburg address.

"Let's not go in," said the daughter, upon hearing this. "We're not going to Gettysburg and don't need his address."

DELAYED Christmas card and bigamist note: A young man was selecting a "To my sweetheart" card at the greeting card department of a Chicago store. He was undecided between two cards, but after having finally come to a decision, he discovered that the salesma.. had misunderstood him and wrapped up both of them.

"What on earth would I do with two of them?" he gently chided.

The clerk gravely answered that since a man had purchased three "To my wife" cards a few days before, nothing could surprise him.

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT'S visit to Chicago to autograph "The Woollcott Reader" brings to mind a story told by Gladys Finn, a University of Chicago girl. Miss Finn, returning from Italy last year when "While Rome Burns" was a best seller, met a young man on the boat who had difficulty getting the book into Italy. He was detained for more than an hour while Fascist customs inspectors conferred on whether "While Rome Burns" was permissible baggage.

IN the morning mail: "You spoke of the long hospital nights, and as I read the paragraph rather hastily, I thought, 'Isn't that odd? I've been in the hospital twice, and each place I thought they were about three times as short as other ones.' Then I read the paragraph again and saw that I had read 'it 'nighties.' STENO."

And that is probably the last mention of the hospital, because we're home now, and our thanks to all the wellwishers for their kind letters.

Shop Displays New Magic in Black-White

Distinctive Necklines One of Style Features.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

New black and white dress magic is on display in the corner of a shop which hangs only distinctive clothes on the racks! There are black dull crêpe dresses with spanking white accents, such as unusual necklines and deep cuffs outlined in snowy white piqué.

Black and white prints with tiny designs of white look crisp and fresh when contrasted with a scarlet lether belt. An outstanding winner in the clean looking prints has plaits both on the chest and in the full skirt. The chest plaits are cleverly radiated up to the high puckered neckline. The skirt has plaits for fullness, and these are pressed flatly into position.

Another all black has long sleeves that fit trimly, a trickily gathered skirt, and its buttons are the most amusing finds of the week—a row of life size bumblebees in shiny black enamel, with glittering rhinestone wings buzzing up the front.

A stunning sheer of black has a tucked white chiffon top, a slim black sheer skirt and a perky bolero top giving the appearance of a braided black and white affair. Besides having a collection of unusual clothes for the slight and younger shopper there are outstanding models for the mature woman, interesting and distinguished clothes without a trace of dullness even in the large sizes.

One model has a lopsided tucked collar and shaped pointed cuffs also of the tucked white. The streamlines are perfect, slicing inches away over the hipline and around the waistline. The famous apron dress models are here, also, with small patterned black and white printed silk fashioning the detachable apron effect to the black dress itself. For distinctive black and white combines try this shop.

Fashion photograph. . . . Flowered silk print in big blooms and small leaves is used for this short sleeved afternoon dress. The high neckline is tied in place with a collar of spaghettilike strands of the silk. The puff sleeves are pushed well above the elbow. It is available in a Chicago shop.

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack is murdered in his home, Hillfoot, in Callingham, England. Two days previously, Torrance Esdale, childhood sweetheart of Gerald Saranack, the murdered man's nephew, had appealed to her American employer, Hartsmyth Massiter, to give Gerald an engineering job in Mexico. Gerald is to return from Spain in two days. Though they had quarreled before he left, Torrance writes Gerald, in care of his uncle, her plans for their marriage. Then Torrance learns that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. She secretly gains entrance to Hillfoot and retrieves the letter. Then she hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl secretes some jewels behind a brick in the fireplace. When the girl and her companion leave Torrance calls the police, then leaves, not wishing to explain her presence. When Gerald brings his bride to see her next day she recognizes Annabelle, his wife, as the same girl she had seen in Uncle Julius' house and at the hour it was later discovered he was murdered, though she keeps silent about it. Alone with Torrance Gerald confesses he still loves her. He married Annabelle out of pity and thinks she needs his protection. Massiter unearths a motive for the crime. In his youth Julius Saranack befriended John Ellister, who was accused of theft. Later Prof. Ellister grew enormously wealthy through Mexican mines and made a will leaving everything to Uncle Julius. Through the American consul in Paris Mr. Massiter learns that Prof. Ellister has disappeared. Torrance tells Mr. Massiter about Annabelle. They fly to Paris. There Torrance is followed by a rat faced man with a falsetto voice and huge hands.

INSTALMENT XIII.

A SECOND MURDER.

Torrance pulled the door shut and leaned against it. Every muscle was shaking; she had hardly strength to handle the directory and find the consulate number. She fumbled with the unaccustomed coins and the slightly different mechanism. Everything seemed misty.

"Consulat Americain!" announced a crisp voice. It gave her back some of her oozing courage—heavens, she must be near a breakdown if the sight of a man's hands could shatter her nerves to pulp like this! She demanded the general office and was presently answered by an American intonation that reminded her of Mr. Massiter's.

"Who's speaking, please?"

But again her voice had died in her throat. Through the side of the box she had seen the man approach the postoffice counter. One huge hand tendered a coin—picked up a stamp—the other hung apelike at his side, the fingers crooked . . .

"I think Prof. Ellister has been strangled, too!" Torrance cried wildly into the receiver. She heard an explosive question before she hung up, but she was too near collapse to care. Groveling on the floor for her bag and gloves, fighting down nausea, she muttered that she could never, never go back to the Jorice alone.

Then a curious blank descended on her mind. Afterwards, she supposed that fear had wiped out memory—at any rate, her next point of conscious time was the sitting room of her suite at the Jorice, Mr. Massiter's gaping concern as she lurched in, and the sting of the brandy on her tongue.

"What in hell happened?"

Mr. Massiter asked it several times before she was able to answer collectedly. And then, in actual words, there seemed no answer to give.

"I got frightened. No more brandy, thanks!"

She shook her head in her hands and tried to explain.

"Yes, he followed me. No, he didn't speak or stop me—absolutely nothing happened, really. But he has a face like a rat and hands like—O, terrible hands! Like a gorilla's. And my nerves all went to pieces—I don't remember what I said to the consulate. I suppose he must have left the postoffice before I did, or I should be cowering in that telephone box still. But I don't remember walking back here. . . . I'm very much ashamed."

Mr. Massiter was pacing the room.

"Now what I suggest is this. You'll need all your strength and right now you have none. Get to bed and to sleep and I will go out to the Ellister villa by myself. In many ways it's better, for we don't know what——" He checked himself, his face grim. "No, I shan't be followed. For one reason, because I shall hire a car to come to the manager's private entrance—O, he'll have one all right!—and for another, because whoever it is we're up against has no reason to believe I know a thing about your affairs. Now, Torrance, will you do that—rest and relax?"

"If you'll swear on your honor to wake me when you get back?"

"I'll do that."

"Then I'll go to bed. I suppose it's the sane thing."

. . . . . .

Some one knocking on the door . . .

Torrance, at the bottom of the deep, black pit of sleep, stirred and began to climb out. Up and up she climbed and every now and then she would slip back a step and sleep would drag her down. Then the knocking was continued and she fought herself free and tried to move and speak.

And then, abruptly, she was awake and the room was both chilly and stuffy and Mr. Massiter was pounding at the door.

She hurried into a dressing gown and admitted him.

"You got me scared," he remonstrated. "I thought—all manner of things. You're all right?"

"I'm splendid," Torrance assured him. She was, indeed, entirely herself again. "I've never slept so deeply in my life!"

"Fine! We shall need steadiness. Can you talk, Torrance, or is it too late?"

She glanced at a clock. Past midnight? She had slept for hours and hours! And what had been happening to Mr. Massiter? She switched on a high light and the gray shadows in his face shocked her.

"It's you who are exhausted now," she said. "I've been terribly selfish, letting you undertake all this. Will you wait five minutes? And isn't it your turn to have some brandy or something?"

"I could do with it. I haven't had time to think of food or drink since I left here. Would it be within the bounds of propriety, do you think, if I had a little supper served up here for us both?"

"O do! I'm ravenous!" She caught him by the arm as he turned. "Mr. Massiter?"

"Uh-m?"

"Is the professor found?" And as he nodded gravely—"Dead?"

"Yes."

She forced herself on.

"Strangled?"

"Yes."

The huge hands of the ratman moved before her eyes. She groaned. But she could control herself now, she was strong again. A couple of minutes later she was sitting beside him.

"I got out to the villa all right," said Mr. Massiter, attacking cold chicken. "I told the manager I was dodging a press reporter and he smuggled me out like a parcel of dope, and the chauffeur pulled all the stuff he knew to make sure we weren't being followed. Well, the villa was quiet enough when we got there—a couple of elderly servants still on the lookout for the professor to come home and a dog lying around on the mat. That sort of got me, fearing what I did. I was just making myself known to them when a car rushed up—the police. They began questioning the servants and me—everybody—and the chauffeur translated for me. Seems they had been given reason to think Ellister might have met with foul play. They wouldn't say more."

Torrance passed her hand over her eyes. Her memory of her expedition to the postoffice was hazy but beneath the haze trouble stirred.

"Apparently it's one thing to track a living man in Paris and quite another to find a corpse. What I mean to say—it's two separate departments and while the first takes quite a while over its duties, the second hustles. Well, they know he'd had a dinner appointment——"

"With Gerald!"

"They didn't know that then, naturally. I didn't help them any. But they combed out the villas along the route Ellister would take to get to the Metro station and in another two hours they found him in a locked and empty garage. They saw him through a window and hacked the door down. He was in his tuxedo, with Gerald's letter in his pocket, accepting the dinner invitation. He'd been strangled, probably in the villa garden."

"They—they can't imagine that Gerald——"

"Food for Small Folks," a booklet of directions for the feeding of pre-school children, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

If January sales are tempting you beyond the reaches of your budget, you probably are interested in a little first class economizing on the food bills. Or maybe, like us, you always are agog for suggestions on cutting down said bills without letting your meals suffer, either in variety or goodness. If such be the case, for you, my friends, a fish story!

No matter what the season or weather, there's one spot where a few minutes' fishing nets a good catch. Your market right now probably is pushing the sale of a number of kinds of fish—fresh, cured, pickled, dry salted, smoked, frozen, or canned. With prices the way they are now, it isn't hard to make a thrifty purchase, an especially thrifty one if you pick our today's suggestion and go in for the salt or smoked fish.

Let's start with a review of the good dishes you can turn out with the salt fish. How about some old fashioned codfish cakes served with hot tomato sauce? Or creamed codfish with green peas, served in a nest of hot boiled rice? Or, for real economy, how about a main dish casserole of codfish, macaroni, and tomatoes?

Also on the list of money savers is salt mackerel. More versatile than the codfish, salt mackerel may be broiled, cooked in water, fried, baked, or creamed. And, for both the codfish and the mackerel, don't forget the trick of extending them in substantial, inexpensive scalloped dishes, au gratin combinations, and fish chowders!

These dry salt fish need freshening in water before cooking, naturally. Diced salt codfish needs to soak in cold water for two hours or longer. Salt mackerel takes longer because it comes in a larger piece. Some people say 24 hours of soaking, others as long as 48. That's something you have to settle for yourself, depending on how well you like a salty taste.

The actual soaking of the mackerel is done like this: Put the piece, meat side down, in a large amount of cold water. If possible lay the fish on a rack, so that it will be soaking above the strong salt water in the bottom of the pan. To hasten the process you can cut several gashes in the flesh. If the mackerel is to be fried or broiled after freshening, it needs a longer soaking than if it's to be prepared with milk in a cream sauce or in baking.

One of the best ways we know of serving salt mackerel is to bake it in milk or cream. With baked potatoes, hot julienne carrots in parsley butter, and a baked dessert of some sort you have a good dinner that's saving of your money, time, and even oven heat.

This method of baking the salt fish is our favorite: Freshen salt mackerel for 24 hours. Lay it in a lightly buttered casserole and [for a medium sized mackerel] cover it with one pint of milk or thin cream. Bake this at a moderate heat until the milk is nearly absorbed. Just before serving dot the fish with a small amount of butter and serve it with the resulting thin sauce.

Some System Should Direct Child's Work

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Shall children's chores be systematically or spontaneously done?

Each mother's answer to that question probably lies in her own temperament. If she's naturally a methodical person she believes in the set task required each day, perhaps even to be done at a given time. If she's an unsystematic person she probably tends to ask for chores or help to be given at the time the need for it arises.

Or—maybe I'm wrong about that second mother—and the first one too! —for you can't safely go around making sweeping assertions about human nature. In any case, mothers use one of the two approaches toward getting their children to partake of the family work. You have to work it out according to your own temperament. But in doing so don't overlook the temperament of your child—or perhaps I should say his response to your system. Some children take to routine as a duck to water—and some don't.

I think we could quite reasonably say that some measure of regularity oils the wheels on which a household runs, regardless of temperaments. It doesn't hurt boys or girls and it certainly relieves the housekeeper if, for instance, they form the habit of keeping their room in a fair amount of order. We can't lay down rules for all these things, but we should find some working basis—decide how much or little we want done—and see that it is done with the least possible friction. Don't battle your way day by day.

The working basis of the family I have known most intimately has been this: No set routine of chores, but a willingness expected to run errands or work on request—with the unspoken assumption that in sickness or any emergency the children would rise to the occasion. An assumption which was always verified.

Tomorrow—Should children be paid for chores?

"Tips for Tired Mothers," a fully written leaflet, will be sent out on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sweat Bath Is a Simple Way to Renew Pep

Restores Drooping Spirits and Vitality.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The latest thing the debs are confiding one to the other as the real pickup to see them through another dinner party and a long, long evening of gayety is the new Swedish sweat bath. They whisper that there is delivered to the door, late in the afternoon, something that looks like granulated soap. It is tossed into the tub half filled with water as hot as can be endured, and stirred up until it foams. Then you, with bathing cap protection, hop in with a long glass of cold water handy for swallowing down after you're in the tub.

The sweat bath ingredient inspires a heavy perspiration. Although you come dragging in on limping feet, premature lines of fatigue shadowing the pretty brow, if you stay in the tub for twenty minutes you'll arise feeling the evening ahead isn't going to be half long enough for your revitalization. O, but before you dress, you must lie down for a while, making the leap from tub to couch with draft or cold dodging speed.

It's an old idea, girls, dressed up in the modern, tantalizing manner! Some women have been performing this rejuvenating rite for dinner and late evening occasions for a long time. The hot bath rejuvenator has any number of followers. But it is a gorgeous idea to introduce it with the new twist to it, since some women go on refusing to recognize the healing power of water, unless it is presented with trimmings. More power to the originators of the new idea!

Some of the debs have fought their way through a terrific season in a more Spartan manner. Indeed, some of those bright eyed, firm cheeked, and firm bodied young women who never saw a deb reception line have been protecting themselves against chap and cold, blue lips and scarlet noses, by this Spartan rite. It's simply the old idea of lifting a chest to icy water running full force from the shower faucet. If you come in dog-gone tired, nerves pounding, try letting the force of cold water hit the back of the neck. But you may have to be a special breed of Spartan to react with the wanted vim, vigor, and vitality. If you shiver and shake and feel cold for minutes after the rub, it's not the cocktail for you, girls. But if you can take it, it's great.

Pert Chic for Hours at Home

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Even if you never have made a dress for yourself, you will find this frock delightfully easy. It is cut on the simplest possible lines, but is not lacking in any of the chic touches which glorify a house dress out of the ordinary class. The pert tomboy collar, simple kimono sleeves, and patch pocket are artfully embellished with ready-to-use bias binding, giving the smart finishing touches with a minimum of effort and skill required. The sash ties in a graceful bow. Added smartness is gained through the buttoned backline, possessing a special degree of fashion in itself.

The original of this frock was created in navy and white cotton print, with plain navy binding. In any of the smart cottons and linens, this frock would be a simple but perfect answer to the summer sports dress problem.

Style No. 3402 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with 11¼ yards of bias binding and ½ yard of 1 inch ribbon for the bow.

Devotion for Uninterested Man Is Futile

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I met a man two years ago and I am desperately in love with him. It hurts because he doesn't seem to know I am on earth. I told him once that I couldn't stand it with him being so indifferent to me. My confession didn't have a bit of effect on him. I can't forget him, so do not spring that silly advice on me. I've tried and can't. I burn up when he takes another girl out, which he does. LORETTA."

You're honest about the situation, Loretta. But you're not honest with yourself! That's wherein your trouble lies. You keep on imagining that this one sided devotion eventually will create a reciprocal love interest. I don't say it won't, but it will be a miracle if it does, and only after the man has received a rebuff or two elsewhere. He may come back to you for solace. But, as hinted, this is more likely to happen in books and movies than in real life.

Two years is a long time to sit by idly hoping for fate to lend a hand. It wasn't clever of you to unfold your emotions, but that's been done and is over with. Don't do it again. But here's where you fail with yourself. You won't look a plain fact squarely in the face. It's a little too hard for you to take, recognizing the fact that you're wasting good time on a futile dream. Your pride won't suffer it. Now, if you exercised the brains and honesty your letter reveals, you'd say: "Well, girl, you're simply trying to work a mine that has no gold in it for you. How about staking out a new claim?" That's what a smarter girl than you would do, for the unforgivable sin among young moderns is chasing a man who won't give a tumble.

Then, you say, you can't forget. You can't, either, as long as you don't want to forget. But if you made up your mind just as firmly that you would forget, you would. And there's no quick and sure forgetting remedy like a substitute interest in your heart. And, indeed, if you got some other boy interested in you, this one for whom your heart's moaning might sit up and see you in a far more desirable light.

According to CULBERTSON

Monday is Student day in Ely Culbertson's column. Write your bridge troubles and questions to him, care of The Tribune. Remember to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

REBIDS BY THE OPENING BIDDER

When your partner has given you a single raise in your bid suit you should count your winners, according to the table of honor winners and table of long suit tricks. [These tables have been shown and discussed in this column.] With five winners or less you should pass. With five and one-half winners, bid three in your suit. This invites your partner to raise you again to four, unless he has given you a shaded raise, in which case he now may pass. With seven winners or more you should bid four immediately.

Holding the required strength for a rebid, you may instead show a second biddable suit, or bid two no trump.

You have bid one heart. Your partner has raised to two hearts.

Bid three hearts with:

♠ K 7 4	♠ 10 4 3
♥ A Q 6 5 3	♥ J 7 5 4 2
♦ A Q	♦ A K Q
♣ 9 4 2	♣ A 10
5½ winners	6 winners

Bid four hearts with:

♠ 2	♠ J 10 9 8
♥ A Q 10 7 5 4	♥ A K J 4 2
♦ K J	♦ A J 10
♣ Q J 10 9	♣ 9
7½ winners	7 winners

♠ 10 3
♥ A Q J 5
♦ A Q 6 2
♣ K Q J
7 plus winners

A double raise is forcing to game. Unless you wish to try for a slam, simply bid game in your suit, or [with 4-3-3-3 or 4-4-3-2] bid three no trump.

Value of the 4-5 No Trump Convention.

A hand played in a recent Crockford club duplicate match proved the indispensability of the 4-5 no trump convention in its negative phase. Of a total of sixteen pairs that played in the North-South position, almost all of whom were experts, exactly four pairs either were not playing the convention or failed to use it on this hand, and exactly four—the same—reached an unmakable slam as a consequence. This is, to my mind, the most remarkable bit of testimony possible.

Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K Q J
♥ K Q 10 9 3 6
♦ A K
♣ A 6

WEST	EAST
♠ 10 9 8 5 2	♠ A 7 4 3
♥ None	♥ A 2
♦ 9 8 4 3	♦ 7 5 2
♣ J 9 7 2	♣ 10 5 4 3

♥ J 7 5 4 3
♣ K Q 8

At four tables the bidding was:

North	East	South	West
2 hearts	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Double [final bid]

At all the other tables the bidding was equally uniform, but with a different result:

North	East	South	West
2 hearts	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
Pass!

Here it was simply a question of locating aces—or, rather, the lack of them. North, with his four no trump bid, asked South a specific question and South's answer, being negative, held the contract to the safe five level.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner bid one spade, first hand vulnerable. Next hand passed. I held: ♠ K 10 8 5, ♥ None, ♦ A 10 8 7 4 3, ♣ K 8 6. What should I bid?

Answer: You should bid four hearts—two more than necessary under the Culbertson void showing convention, to show a fitting hand with good honor values and a void in hearts. Your later responses depend on your partner's rebids.

Tomorrow's Hand

♠ K 6
♥ A 7 5
♦ Q J 6 4 3
♣ 8 6 2

WEST	EAST
♠ 5 4 2	♠ 9 3
♥ Q J 8 6 2	♥ K 10 9 3
♦ 9	♦ 10 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A Q J 10 8 7
♦ A K 8
♣ A 7 3

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

"Lily Basket" Is Favorite Block in Quilt Realm

Lily Basket.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Almost every quilt fancier, in a large or small way, has at least one basket pattern among her treasures. There are literally dozens of them, but the "Lily Basket" block illustrated today is the favorite among women who show a partiality to any of the lily designs. An unusual treatment of this particular block lies in the plain squares between the applique blocks. A triangle of color matching the triangles of the applique blocks is set into all four corners, affording a most interesting arrangement to the entire quilt.

Wayland Brooks Speaks to G. O. P. Women Today

Wayland Brooks, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, will talk on "Politics in the Home" at a public meeting of the Illinois League of Republican Women at 2 o'clock today at the Morrison hotel.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Please, madam, consider the case of the soiled powder puff. It's a conclusive case against your own reputation as a fastidious woman and a whale of a case against your complexion. The dingy puff daintily rushed to the pretty nose isn't a pleasant sight, as any male and lots of females will tell you. What's more, it isn't doing that skin of yours any good, even as a makeup accessory. A clean puff powders better than a soiled one.

It's agreed, then, that one of the cardinal beauty sins is toleration of the dirty puff. But we must admit that keeping them pristine is something of a chore. The solution, though, is plenty of puffs. So we hasten to tell you this morning of a lamb [no pun intended] of a fluffy wool puff that's so inexpensive there isn't any reason for not having a clean one for every day of the week.

This puff is made of the softest, fleeciest lamb's wool, ideal for fluffing on powder in the way it should go. It doesn't go limp on you as it ages, either; it retains that thick, deep pile. Moreover, it washes beautifully. A few whiskings in warm, sudsy water and it snaps back a good-as-new puff.

This is a moderately sized puff—just right, we'd say. And it's a bargain. ELEANOR NANGLE.

When you are weak, pale, worn out, half sick and always tired—when you are nervous, cross, all-in and irritable, science says that the real cause is often glands starving for iodine. Women who are inclined to be skinny or underweight—even those who have huge appetites—are the most likely to suffer with this dangerous shortage.

When the tiny, hidden glands (which control weight and strength building) fail because of a lack of this sea plant iodine, assimilation falters, metabolism is irregular and the food you eat fails to give you nourishment, build strength and the rich, red blood that keeps you well. Indigestion, constipation usually follow, and, in turn, are followed by "nerves."

Now, however, with Kelpamalt, the world's richest source of sea plant iodine (don't confuse this with ordinary liquid iodine, which is sometimes toxic, but the same iodine found in tiny quantities in spinach and lettuce) you can quickly get right down to the cause of the trouble. Besides providing sea plant iodine and the minerals that assure good digestion, Kelpamalt helps the system convert your food into rugged strength, tireless energy and builds the calm nerves, lasting endurance and the extra pounds of good, solid "stay-there" flesh that make you feel so well.

Try this amazing new mineral-iodine concentrate for one week. Notice how much better you feel, how well you sleep, how your appetite and digestion improve. Notice how worn out, exhausted nerves quickly calm and grow strong. Over 4,000,000 people annually use Kelpamalt. Costs but little at all druggists. Be sure to get the original Seedol Kelpamalt Tablets.

MEXICAN TOWN STILL LIVES AS IT DID 400 YRS. AGO

Scenes Recall the Days of Spaniards.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PACHUCA, Mexico, Jan. 19.—A mechanical failure, such as might strand a pan-American highway tourist in barbaric environment, fortunately has merely delayed THE TRIBUNE roadster for twenty-four hours on its return drive from Mexico City. With a metallic groan from a broken pin in worn out drive shaft gears, the car limped into this ancient and once notorious silver camp, five miles from the main highway.

While a mechanic who learned his trade in south Michigan avenue, Chicago, is repairing the automobile, an anthropologic pageant in the narrow street below is enjoyed from the wrought iron balcony of a hotel room. Costumes in the trafic portray a four century drama, 400 years of ore digging by various races that still retain identifying characteristics.

Not a Staged Parade.

It's not a staged parade. It's a typical day in this mountain city off the tourist trail. Pachuca, capital of the state of Hidalgo, has a population of 40,000. With an elevation of 8,000 feet, it is in a canyon between two peaks fifty-five miles north of Mexico City.

A barefooted charcoal vendor, with a broad straw hat, white cotton pants, and wrapped in a blanket that covers his nose and most of his face, guides a burro that has carried his wares from some Indian village in the hills. He is one of the people who have progressed little since the Spaniards came here in 1534.

A business man, with an American coat and vest, wears a broad hat with high, pointed crown, and charro pants with embroidered seam, form fitting around the knee and calf and with a strap under the insteps of boots to hold bell bottoms in place. A Spaniard, or at least part Spaniard.

Spurs and Tassels.

A small horse, spirited by jingling spurs, prances under a burden of fancy saddle equipage and a large man. He wears tassels on the edge of his broad hat, embroidery on his exposed vest, and tight fitting charro pants. Over the rump of the horse is a polished and carved lether skirt with tiny silver bells along the bottom edge. A politician of mixed blood, I was told.

With the present price of silver, the mines on the edge of town, first worked by Indians and now operated by foreign capital, are prospering and even the laborers, through their revolutionary party unions, are benefitting. The minimum pay is $3.60 Mexican, $1 United States currency, a day.

J. L. LEWIS OPENS DRIVE FOR UNIONS IN AUTO INDUSTRY

Assails "Reactionary" Court Decisions.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, labor leader, opened an organization drive for industrial unionism in the automotive industry tonight with a fiery attack upon major automobile companies and the craft union structure championed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

He also criticized recent decisions of the United States Supreme court and told Cleveland automotive workers that industrial unionism would give sufficient political power to obtain legislation in the face of a "reactionary" tribunal.

"Autocracy" Is Assailed.

"No industrial group in America, with the possible exception of steel," he said, "has been and is more autocratic, reactionary, and anti-social than those banking and financial interests which today control the motor industry and its policies."

He asserted he knew of no occasion on which the Ford Motor company conceded it had any obligation to deal with its employés. He described the company as "100 per cent autocratic, supplemented by a smug paternalism."

Lewis said General Motors, "likewise autocratic," had been "more subtle and indirect" in its antagonistic methods toward labor.

Charges Company Evasion.

"Instead of directly refusing to comply with its obligations to labor under the recovery act," he continued, "it sought to evade them through the establishment of company unions and by inserting modifying phrases in the labor causes of its code of fair competition."

He said "a majority of the Supreme court obviously is seeking, through a series of technical and reactionary decisions, to uphold the tottering and discredited capitalism of former years."

"At the present time, it would seem that an amendment to the constitution which would empower the congress to enact uniform laws for the regulation of agriculture, manufacturing, and mining is inevitable," he continued.

15,000 SEE SVERRE ENGEN WIN SKI TOURNAMENT

Hill Is Champion in Class B.

The Engen brothers of Salt Lake City dominated the 30th Norge Ski club tournament yesterday at Fox River Grove. Alf, 26 year old foreman at a CCC camp, who formerly held the professional championship, broke the slide record when he sailed through the air for 194 feet. Brother Sverre, whose form was considered superior although he didn't go so far, won the class A title.

Sverre leaped only 180 and 185 feet, as compared to Alf's more robust efforts of 183 and 194, and the 15,000 spectators gathered around the huge slide on the banks of the Fox river went home, or wherever they were going, with the impression that Alf was the winner. Officials, however, went into a huddle with micrometers, slide rules, and other mathematical machinery, and several hours later found that Sverre had won with 217.5 points as compared to a mere 216.8 for Alf.

Record Broken Ten Times.

Fresh snow, which fell in the Chicago area early yesterday morning, was packed solidly on the remodeled slide and hill and enabled the jumpers to put on one of the greatest exhibitions of skiing in the history of the tournament. The former record of 182 feet, established by Kaare Walberg of the Norwegian Olympic team in 1932, was broken seven times by class A and B jumpers and three times in exhibition leaps.

Among the record breakers in the class A competition was Leonard Bietila of Ishpeming, Mich. Bietila leaped 191 feet in his second attempt, but a spill in his first jump of 182 feet dropped him from consideration. Nineteen spills occurred in the class A tournament.

Tregillis Is Third.

Third place in class A went to Harry Tregillis, Red Wing, Minn., who had leaps of 172 and 184 feet and earned a rating of 210.9. Lamoine Batson, Canton, S. D., member of the United States Olympic team in 1932, was fourth with 206.8. He had jumps of 171 and 178 feet.

Paul Bietila, 17 year old high school student and brother of Leonard, stole the spotlight from the big time skiiers. The 140 pound rider broke the record three times in exhibition jumps, soaring 197 the first time, 190 the second and 201 the third. Paul was ineligible to compete because of the age limit.

Hill First in Class B.

Ernest Hill, Detroit, Mich., took the class B championship when he jumped 171 and 181 feet and was rated at 197.8 points by the judges. Martin Wingness, representing the newly formed North Shore Ski club of Chicago, was second with 189.0 after leaps of 153 and 166. Jorgen Johanson of Rockford, Ill., won the senior class title, leaping 151 and 162 for 191 points.

Ingvald Bruseth of the Norge club seemed on the way to the senior title after the first round of jumps, but on his second attempt he fell and collided with a newsreel cameraman, who was grinding out pictures of the meet on the hill. Bruseth fell after making a jump of 162 feet.

Fall Stops Coast Champion.

John Elverum, Los Angeles, Cal., holder of the Pacific coast championship, failed to finish among the leaders. Elverum soared 176 feet in his first try on the tall slide and fell. He returned for the second attempt and went 179 feet. A spill also ruined the chances of Guttorm Paulsen, Chicago's leading contender for the class A title. Paulsen fell both times after completing jumps of 179 and 185 feet.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—King Gustaf of Sweden is 77 years oft but he won a hard tennis match today, even though a tennis ball hit him in the eye. The king was playing doubles with Lesueur of France against Pelizza of France and Moeller of Sweden when the ball flew into his face and knocked off his glasses. The injury was painful and play was postponed for five minutes. The king insisted on continuing, however, and although his eyesight was temporarily blurred he won the match.

OTTO STROHMEIER, University of Chicago end coach, says that an athlete's chief memories are of the mistakes he made or the times he just missed doing something spectacular or smart. . . . While making a turn on the south end of the track, Lewis collided with Chuck Niesel and tipped over with terrific force.

GAMES TONIGHT.
Indiana at Wisconsin.
Iowa at Michigan.
Northwestern at Minnesota.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Indiana leads the Western conference basketball race this morning if you wish to be technical and refer to the Hoosiers' four consecutive victories as compared to three victories for Purdue's Boilermakers. But by 10 o'clock tonight Indiana may have vacated first place. It all depends on Wisconsin.

Rather than emphasize Indiana's narrow margin of conquest—an offensive average of 31½ points as compared to a defensive average of 28 points—now is the time to pay respects to Indiana's varsity which has won two of its games by timely, clever ball handling which throttled opponents' rallies.

Wildcats Get Lesson.

Northwestern discovered, after losing the lead to Indiana in the second half, that Coach Everett Dean had taught his boys to control the ball and make the most of a few points lead. Indiana stalled in the restricted area for three minutes to finish in front of the Wildcats, 27 to 24.

Saturday night Indiana again resorted to a stall when Minnesota pulled up within two points, and again for three minutes the Hoosiers held on successfully to win, 33 to 31. The score at the half was 21 to 21. This game was Minnesota's best bid so far to escape last place which is shared with Chicago. By coincidence Chicago last Monday night made its second best effort of the season against Indiana, losing 33 to 30.

Tough Games Coming Up.

Now, having paid respects to Indiana's consistently good basketball, it should be added that defeat looms in the near future for the Hoosiers. It appears that they cannot continue the pace, but if they do, mark it down as one of the greatest exhibitions in conference basketball. Wisconsin and Ohio State and return games with Northwestern and Michigan present formidable barriers. Tonight the Badgers, who rested Saturday, engage Indiana and will have the advantage of the home court. Indiana will be faster and in Fechtman has a counter irritant for Stege, Badger center. But Wisconsin is favorite to win.

Wildcats Come Along.

Purdue does not play until Feb. 1 because of semester examinations. During recess the Boilermakers may reflect on their present record as a point a minute team. Purdue's offensive average of 40 points leads the conference and its defensive average of 27 points is fourth in the list, but only two points higher than that of Ohio State which tops the conference.

The feature of the week was Northwestern's attack which netted victories over Minnesota and Illinois. The Illini, staggering from the impact of a licking by Ohio State, 18 to 13 [13 points is record low for the season], were tripped by Northwestern at Champaign, 40 to 28. The Wildcats finally have bested the Illinois jinx and tonight, in a return game at Minnesota [they whipped the Gophers a

COACH DIES

DAN E. M'GUGIN.

Dan McGugin, Ex-Vanderbilt Coach, Dies

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Dan E. McGugin, athletic director at Vanderbilt university and long known as the dean of southern football coaches, died unexpectedly late today of a heart attack. He was 56 years old.

He succumbed at the home of his law partner, John R. Aust. Aust said McGugin had complained about a pain in his chest, which he attributed to indigestion. Mrs. Aust gave him a home remedy and the famous coach went out on the back porch to get some air.

Dies on Porch.

He was joined there a short time later by Aust, who suggested he go to bed.

"I can't come," was the response. He fell on the porch and was dead when members of the family carried him inside the house.

McGugin, athletic director at Vanderbilt for more than two decades, served at head coach for 31 years, beginning in the fall of 1904 and continuing through the 1934 season when he was succeeded by one of his most prominent pupils, Ray Morrison.

He came to Vanderbilt from the University of Michigan where he was a guard on the famous point-a-minute eleven of 1901.

Born in Iowa.

He graduated from the Michigan Law school, and combined his law career and football for the next three decades. He was a member of the Tennessee state senate for one term starting in 1921.

McGugin brought southern football into the eastern limelight with sensational successes in intersectional games. He attended Drake university before going to Michigan, working his way partly through both schools.

He was born on an Iowa farm, July 29, 1879, near Tingley.

At Drake he played varsity tackle. He earned a guard position at Michigan under Fielding Yost who later became his brother-in-law.

Unbeaten First Year.

In his first year his team played eight games, winning them all by one-sided scores. For the next few years his Commodores were the scourge of southern gridirons, in addition to branching out with intersectional feats, including a 4 to 0 victory over the Carlisle Indians, a 6 to 6 tie with Navy in 1907, and a 0 to 0 tie with Yale team in 1910.

One of his proudest accomplishments was a scoreless tie with a mighty Michigan team several years ago when the Wolverines still were coached by Yost.

He was president of the National Football Coaches' association in 1933.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Virginia L. Fite, and three children, Mrs. Pugh C. Moore, Dan E. McGugin Jr., and Leonard McGugin, all of Nashville.

At the time of his resignation as coach at Vanderbilt a little over a year ago McGugin said "football coaching is hard work. It draws pretty heavily on the physical, particularly on the nerves. I believe one should cease this arduous service while still in good health."

During his régime Vanderbilt won 193 games, tied 19 and lost 52.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Louie Trudell, who had been kept at work as a regular in the Blackhawk cast although he had a grand total of one goal, last night rewarded managerial patience by netting the goal that gave the Hawks a victory over the Boston Bruins, 2 to 1.

Johnny Gottselig, assisted by Mush March, Tommy Cook, and Doc Romnes, had scored the first counter of the evening late in the first period, but had seen the score knotted by Cooney Wieland after one minute and a half of the third period. The deadlock prevailed until the game went into the last five minutes. Then, in 15:45, Trudell skated around the Bruin defense and beat Goalie Tiny Thompson for the deciding goal.

Hawks Move Up.

The Hawks not only moved farther from the American division cellar, which had them engulfed a week ago, but moved up within a half game of the idle New York Rangers, current occupants of second place.

Mike Karakas, the Hawks' rookie goalie, who went into the lead for the Vezina trophy when Toronto made five goals over Thompson, increased his edge last night. Karakas now has been scored upon only 39 times, while Thompson and Normie Smith of the Detroit Red Wings are tied for runner-up honors with 41 goals each.

The Hawks tomorrow night will engage the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden in a battle for second place. Thursday night they will play the rising Canadiens in Montreal, and next Sunday night they will be at home for another clash with the Rangers.

Gottselig Gets One.

The lads tried hard enough in the first 17 minutes of the first period, but there were no really lusty threats until Gottselig notched his goal in 17:04.

The sally which resulted in Johnny's counter was precipitated when Kaminsky, to no especial advantage of his team, tripped March in the center of the rink. When Kaminsky was locked up, four forwards as well as Seibert of the defense moved up.

Just as Kaminsky had stood up near the close of his two minute penalty, March went behind the Hawks' cage to pick up the puck, which had been golfed. The three other forwards, Gottselig, Romnes, and Cook lined up and went into the Bruin defense zone. The quartet passed the rubber hither and thither until Gottselig got it in a spot where he figured he could score. With a scooping technique, he hit the nets from a point 15 feet out and at an angle to Goalie Thompson's right. March, Romnes, and Cook were awarded assists, and

Jack to Referee Tonight at Coulon's Gymnasium.

The spotlight which has been focused on Joe Louis will be switched to Jack Dempsey today. This became certain last night following information that while the former champion will be moving into the city this afternoon Louis will be preparing to move out of it.

Dempsey, one of the greatest heavyweights in the history of boxing, has had a heavy program lined up for him during a brief stay here, but the program is not so heavy that he cannot attend a boxing show. He will go to Coulon's gymnasium, 1154 East 63d street, tonight and will referee at least one of the eight amateur bouts carded there.

Joe to Referee Freeport Bout.

Louis, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion, whose record of twenty-seven victories in as many professional appearances is the best ever compiled by a heavyweight, is booked to referee a six round bout between Adam Smith, the Rockford baker boy of Golden Gloves fame, and George Vallas, Chicago, at Freeport, Ill., tonight.

Joe, who will be paid $1,000 for the assignment, then plans to head for Detroit to see his mother, Mrs. Lily Brooks, who has been ill.

The card at the Coulon gymnasium follows:

Benny Miller vs. Jack Agnes, Mike Krismun vs. Walter Palm, Bob Murphy vs. Jimmy Scorza, Charles Rodriguez vs. Ray Garcia, John Cosgrave vs. John Borgelund, and Nick Amianto vs. Bob Wiley.

Milt Aron, Dubuque welterweight, will make his third appearance in an eight round contest tonight against George Engel, Plymouth, Ind., at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Edwin Waling, the Detroit junior lightweight, who won his three previous Chicago starts by knockouts, will be opposed by Charley Mack, Racine, Wis., at five rounds in the semi-final. Preliminary matches at four rounds involve Young Mickey Walker and Sammy Scoglio, Joe Wiley and Tommy Howell, and John Brown and Johnny Milen.

Nango Singh and Al Williams will meet in the main event of the wrestling show tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Semi-final principals will be Tony Falletti and Lefty Pacer. Ken Fenlon will meet Jim Landis, Jack Root is paired with Toots Culver, and Tiger Nelson will encounter George Schwab.

PACKERS DEFEAT COAST ALL-STAR ELEVEN, 24 TO 14

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Putting together three swift scoring drives in the first quarter, the Green Bay Packers of the National Professional league, defeated a team of Pacific coast stars, 24 to 14, today before 20,000 fans.

The Packers made touchdowns three out of the four times they had possession of the ball in the first period. Each time a pass led to the score.

Arnold Herber, right half, was on the throwing end, first to Don Hutson, left end, then to Hank Bruder, quarter back, and finally to George Sauer, left half.

The coast players came back in the second period to score twice. Frank Sobrero, left half, passed to Hal Pangle, quarter back, for the first touchdown, and to Bob Rowe, right half, for the other.

In the third quarter, Packer Full Back Clark Hinkle, placed kicked from the 30 yard line.

2 Day Stadium Ice Carnival Opens Jan. 31

More than twenty acts already are on the program. Evelyn Chandler, long recognized as the champion of women acrobatic and fancy skating stars, was one of the first signed. She has just returned from a six month engagement at the king's jubilee in London. The program will include comedy acts, fancy and acrobatic skating champions in solo acts, pairs, quartets, ballets, and group dancing on ice, novelties, and children's numbers.

New lighting effects that have never before been used for an indoor skating carnival will be introduced, including indirect lights from above, flood lights from the bank boards around the rim of the ice, and spot lights to pick up the featured acts. The regular overhead lights of the Stadium will be colored in blues, reds, and amber shades to avoid glare, and a new dimming device will be used for the first time.

As the Stadium engineers prepare the rink for the carnival special coloring effects will be created, blocks of blue and silver designs being frozen into the skating surface.

Two Girl Skaters Forced Out of Coliseum Derby

Two more girls dropped out of the roller skating Derby in the Coliseum yesterday. Katherine Nehls, who was teamed with Al Pierz, and Doris Neubert, who was paired with Jerry Owens, were victims of bad spills. The withdrawal of the two girls leaves Owens and Pierz skating as solos. As the thirteen teams and three solo skaters enter the 2,000th mile, four duos are tied for the lead. The teams are John Rosasco-Gene Vizena, Wes Aronson-Elizabeth Hoover, Joe Kleats-Esther Runne, and Joe Laurey and his partner, Ivy King.

Winter Hunt for Pheasants Is Real Sport

BY BOB BECKER.

Midwinter upland game hunts with all the "trimmings" that go with a shooting trip at this season, such as a bobsled, plenty of snow and even snowshoes, still are on the program in southern Wisconsin, although it is nearing the end of the season. According to Wisconsin's game code it is possible to hunt pheasants on licensed shooting preserves until Feb. 1, so sportsmen who don't mind leaving the steam radiators and "mushing" around in the snow behind good dogs can have a lot of fun on the preserves these days.

We have just tried this type of hunting near Portage, Wis., on the Beyer shooting preserve. Although we have spent many weeks in the woods during the winter, this is the first time we ever tackled the smart ringnecks when there was five or six inches of snow on the ground, and we could climb into a bobsled and ride behind Old Dobbin over the river and through the woods to the cover where the pheasants are found.

Bobsled Adds to Pleasure.

After a few days of this kind of midwinter hunting we are willing to admit that the bobsled and snow shoes can add more fun to a pheasant hunt than we ever dreamed of.

But the bobsled doesn't compensate wholly for the tough walking in snow that has a crust on it. After you haul your feet out of holes in the crusty snow for about two miles, you have had a real workout.

On this trip we would take a stretch of woods or swamp and walk through it, both men and dogs sinking down in the snow. After one of these walks, often in heavy brush, you are ready to give three cheers for the old bobsled and a chance to catch your breath.

The hunting in the thick second growth of scrub oak and poplar trees was more like partridge shooting than pheasant hunting such as we know in Illinois. As Lyman Barr, one of the Chicago hunters in our party, pointed out, there were times when you drew on a bird zooming skyward through the brush and just trusted to luck,

Get Those Flannels Out.

We had two dogs ahead of the guns. One was Tippy, a close working Gordon setter owned by Barr, and Don, a smart old Irish setter belonging to Otto Beyer. Just to see these dogs work on birds running on the snow, or hidden down deep below the snow line in clumps of cattails in the marshes, was a sight to make any sportsman want to put on his red flannels and sally forth for a January hunt.

CRANE AND HERZL ENTER TEAMS IN GOLDEN GLOVES

Need Place to Train? Here Are Some Suggestions.

Two west side schools, Crane Tech High school and Herzl Junior college, have entered teams of amateur boxers in THE TRIBUNE'S ninth annual Golden Gloves tournament which opens Feb. 10 at the Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street. In all probability these boys will box in this section, since their entries have been made at this time.

Later they might have been assigned to the south side or north side tournaments, for at the final physical examinations the entry list must be apportioned so that no tournament is overwhelmed.

Ten high school boys from Crane have entered. Their names were submitted by Milton Falk. One of these boxers, Holman Ingram, will compete in the open division. The others have entered the novice division.

Need Some Competition.

In making team entries coaches and trainers are urged to give the home address of each boxer so he may receive his instructions to report for examination. Entries will close Jan. 31 and the final medical examination will be held on Feb. 5. Four examinations are scheduled prior to the closing of entries.

Wayne L. Davis wrote yesterday that 18 boys would represent Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas boulevard. Davis also said "our efforts to develop a good team have been slowed up by a decided lack of school competition. Boxers from our school have done well in Chicago's amateur shows and we would like to challenge any high school, university or college boxing team."

Places to Train.

Many contestants inquire where they can train for the tournament. The experienced boys who will fight in the open division generally have gymnasiums in which to work. The novices find it difficult to train. For north side boys the Young People's Keenan club of the Forty-ninth ward will be glad to help solve the problem. Jerry Heffernan will supervise training for the boys of the Rogers Park and Edgewater areas. Boxers may train on Tuesday and Thursday between 4 and 6 p. m. at the Broadway armory, Broadway and Thorndale. On these same days the rooms at 6443 Sheridan road [second floor] will be available between 7 and 9 p. m.

More than 1,200 entries for the Chicago sectionals now have been received. All entries sent in this week will be assigned to the third medical examination at Trafton's gym on Thursday, Jan. 30. The C. Y. O. examination is scheduled for Jan. 29.

Mail Order Sale Open.

There is no advance ticket sale for the 13 nights of sectional bouts in Chicago. No reserved seats will be sold. Prices for admission will be 75 cents [including tax] for adults and 40 cents for boys and girls 15 years of age and under.

Ticket orders now will be accepted for the Tournament of Champions [Feb. 24, 25 and 26] and the finals [March 6] at the Chicago Stadium. Send money order or check to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. Prices for the Tournament of Champions: 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. Prices for March 6: $1.10, $1.65, $2.20 and $3.30.

Hawks Whip Bruins, 2-1, in 3d Period

properly so, it may be added in these days of phoney point tabulations.

Aside from a stirring solo dash by Seibert which failed to count because of Tiny Thompson's fine artistry, the players spent the first nine minutes of the second period warming up for some exciting hocky.

It started with little Mr. March and big Mr. Shore becoming embroiled on the boards at the east end of the rink. Fortunately the fight was delayed while March ripped off Shore's headguard so he could get at him properly. And while he was doing this, the officials and other players came up and separated the belligerents. After a consultation the referees decided to do no bouncing.

That Busy Third.

The Bruins tied it up in 1:30 of the third period through the inability of the Hawk defense to handcuff Wieland as he waited for developments in the mouth of the Hawk cage. Beattie got the puck on his right boards, ten feet inside the blue line and hugged the boards while Wieland took his position in the nets. Beattie circled, still close to the boards, until he got abreast the cage, then he passed to Wieland, who bumped in the tying marker.

The winning goal was virtually a solo by Trudell, although Cook was given one of those assists. Trudell got the puck from Cook in middle ice, carried it over the blue line, and when Babe Siebert came up to check him Louie glided around him and proceeded to glide right up to Thompson's boots before cutting loose with the winning shot.

Weighs 145 Pounds, but He Lifts 235 to Set Record

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A 26 year old office clerk hoisted 235 pounds above his head in a two-hand snatch lift and set a new world's record today. Bob Mitchell, who beat the existing record by two pounds, represented a York, Pa., team in the lightweight class. He weighs 145 pounds. The limit for the class is 148 pounds.

NORWAY SKATERS BEAT AMERICAN OLYMPIC TEAM

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Outscoring the United States by a wide margin in the second day of an international speed skating meet, Norway easily defeated America's Olympic team today, 49 points to 95.

Scoring was computed on the cross country system in which the winner in each race is awarded the lowest point rating and the low total determines the team victory.

A heavy snowfall hampered the skaters and prevented a repetition of yesterday's record breaking. Only one mark fell. Ivar Ballangrud of Norway set a new Norwegian record of 4:57.9 to win the 3,000 meter record after Mathieson had bettered the old mark with 4:58.8 to take the second.

Potts Is Beaten.

Michael Staksrud of Norway finished third in 5:04.9, and Haraldson of Norway fourth in 5:05.5, followed by three American skaters, Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, Bob Peterson of Milwaukee, and Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee. Schroeder's time was 5:13.8, Peterson's 5:19, and Lamb's 5:22.8.

Another race, skated at 3,000 meters, instead of 10,000 as originally scheduled because of the heavy snow, saw Hans Engnestangen of Norway defeat Allan Potts of Brooklyn in 5:09.7. Potts' time was 5:38.8.

Miss Klein Beaten.

Norwegian skaters won both other events on the day's program, the 1,500 meter races for men and women, but despite her defeat today Kit Klein of Buffalo, America's only woman entry, captured the international women's series with two victories in the three events. Undis Blikken of Norway, won today's 1,500 meter race with a time of 2:43.3, while Miss Klein was clocked in 2:47.4 to take second place. Synnoeve Lie of Norway was third in 2:50.2, and Tako Minaki of Japan fourth in 2:55.7.

Indiana Risks Big Ten Lead at Wisconsin

Capt. Duke Vance gave Northwestern a scoring punch from center court Saturday night, scoring eight points, and Elmer [Tug] Blume, now frequently used at forward instead of guard, ripped through for 11 points after substituting for Fred Trenkle. Minnesota's infrequent rallies [against Notre Dame and Indiana] offer chance for an upset and Northwestern must remember that after 20 minutes of last Monday's game the score was Northwestern, 20; Minnesota, 18.

Iowa Visits Michigan.

Iowa concludes its week-end trip tonight at Michigan. The Hawkeyes now have lost two road games [Wisconsin and Ohio State] as compared with two victories at home [Illinois and Ohio State]. The Buckeyes won from Iowa Saturday night, 34 to 26, with a closing rally by Earl Thomas and Warren Whitlinger. In Michigan, Iowa meets the second high scoring team of the season, but the Wolverines' average of 37 points is due largely to their 51 to 33 victory over Chicago Saturday. Fifty-one points is the season's scoring record.

Figures indicate a closer game than might be expected. Iowa's offensive average is only 25 points as compared to Michigan's 37 points, but on defense Iowa has allowed an average of 27½ points as compared to Michigan's defensive average of 34 points. Iowa may expect to lose a closely fought game, or, in winning produce excellent defense in stopping the floor play of Michigan's John Townsend.

Look Ahead to Saturday.

If Michigan and Northwestern win tonight they will find opportunity again at hand Saturday to assert that they must be considered the logical contenders to the position now held by Indiana and Purdue. On Saturday Michigan plays Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Wolverines hold one decision, 38 to 28. Northwestern plays Chicago at Patten gym and except for the ever present menace of Capt. Bill Haarlow may reasonably anticipate victory.

Notre Dame concludes its road trip tonight at Syracuse. The Irish, led by Johnny Moir, who scored 14 points, bumped Penn Saturday, 37 to 27. On Saturday night Butler clashes with the Irish at Notre Dame.

Mehlhorn, Cox Tie in Golf at Sacramento

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two veteran campaigners, Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Louisville, Ky., and Wiffy Cox, Bethesda, Md., tied for first place in the 72 hole Sacramento open golf tournament today with 286 strokes each.

Mehlhorn, who led the $3,000 tournament for the first two days, slumped to a 74, two over par, on the first 18 holes of the final 36 today, but made a gallant comeback with a 70 on the last 18. Cox shot two consecutive 70s today.

A stroke back of them came a brilliant youngster from Ridgewood, N. J., Byron Nelson, who might have tied the leaders but for an eight foot putt that barely slipped by and knocked him out of a birdie three.

Two strokes behind the winners was the veteran Horton Smith, Chicago. Smith led Mehlhorn by a stroke at the end of 54 holes, but could do no better than 73 on the afternoon round.

Laffoon, McSpaden Tie.

Tied at 289 were Ky Laffoon, Chicago, and Harold McSpaden, unattached. Each finished with a 71.

Mehlhorn, who put together rounds of 71, 71, 74 and 70, blasted Nelson and Smith, with whom he was playing, out of the picture after they had taken the lead away from him on the first 18 today. Nelson and Smith finished the 54 holes with 215 strokes each. Mehlhorn was trailing at 216, tied with Cox.

Mehlhorn, getting a birdie on the first hole of the last 18 by sinking an eight-footer for a three, turned the nine in par 36. Coming home, Wild Bill was anything but wild. He hit a mashie niblick six inches from the pin on the tenth hole and got a birdie four, and at the twelfth hole, ran down a 20 footer for a birdie three.

Wild Bill Snares Another Birdie.

Mehlhorn's card for the last 18:

Par—Out	453	434	544	—36
Mehlhorn—Out	353	434	554	—36
Par—In	544	543	443	—36—72
Mehlhorn—In	443	544	433	—34—36—70

Cox's card:

Out	453	444	544	—37
In	534	533	422	—33—37—70

The tournament committee announced Mehlhorn and Cox would play off tomorrow afternoon in an eighteen-hole round for first and second money. The winner will get $750 and second $475. Nelson collected $350 for third, and Smith $250 for fourth.

LIONS DEFEAT ALL-STARS, 42-7; PLAYERS FIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions, National Professional football champions, bowled over a team of all-stars at Gilmore stadium today, 42 to 7. Ten thousand saw the game.

A couple of unscheduled fights between rival players broke out in the closing minutes of the game, and Coach Patsy Clark hurriedly sent in reserve material to avert further trouble. All-stars trailed down the field from their bench when Ox Emerson, former Texas player, and Kermit Plipzke of Loyola of Los Angeles exchanged blows after a play. A moment later another near riot halted play for an instant.

MISS DICKINSON RETAINS A. A. U. SWIM CROWN

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Leading from start to finish, Dorothea Dickinson of the Women's Swimming association successfully defended her metropolitan A. A. U. senior 500 yard free style indoor championship today. The time was 6:34.

Dolores Smith and Mavis Freeman, teammates of Miss Dickinson, were second and third, respectively.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ON THE SCENE.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, here we are where you sent me to improve the breed of thoroughbreds at Hialeah and to work hard getting you a lot of human interest stories. My health is better already although not entirely rid of that bronchial thing but I'm typing these few lines in my undies and too warm at that.

The next step is a nude sunbath place two doors away but they charge you 30 cents a half hour or 50 cents an hour for basking in the sun in the altogether, and you know how conservative I am in money matters. Besides from what I can see of the other cottagers in this section most of the money would be wasted anyway because they don't wear any surplus you can notice, especially the ladies.

The trip down was uninteresting but I spent most of the time sleeping and reading "Life with Father," which just shows how far behind I am in my reading because it was a book of the month I don't know how long ago.

The old family bus, of which I told you, was here on arrival. The Evanston agent did get a "junk" rate for shipping it, which I suggested although he didn't like it at the time. The old bus still wheezes a bit, but I'm sure the health giving sun—see chamber of commerce bulletin No. 28—will cure that.

Tell Jimmy to file my address in the book for mail. It's P. O. box 3385, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; for telegrams, in case you wish to reach me suddenly for anything, it's Coccolobo Cottages, Cottage No. 8, 109 South Atlantic boulevard.

These Coccolobo cottages haven't anything to do with coconuts. The wife of the owner is a horticultral or floricultural expert, or whatever the term should be, and she picked out the name and what could he do about it? As I understand it, it means some sort of seaweed, indigenous to the parts. I haven't seen any and I don't know whether any appears except after a hurricane or when the ocean backs up into the living room.

I haven't been here long enough to know the other Coccolobians very well. I'd say offhand I'm going to like the ladies better. Anyway, they're not hard to look at.

Certainly I'll be better able to give you an estimate soon. We're invited to a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon because a lady Coccolobian is having a birthday party. You know how it is, Arch, one can always tell so much better after the first birthday party. If the guests go home early and still thirsty, it's a bust. If they go late, still crying for more it's a success. From what I've seen of the lady, a next door neighbor, I fancy we'll be going home late.

I don't know, Arch, whether you're interested in this personal gossip when I really have something serious on my mind. It's my expense account. As you know I never use a portable typewriter unless I'm out on an office assignment. Well, the ribbon on this machine doesn't go so good and it costs 75 cents for a new ribbon. Do you think I ought to pay the 75 cents personally because I use the typewriter some to write the newlyweds who are keeping the home electricity burning in our Evanston apartment, or charge it to the office because most of its use will be Wakes and Wake correspondence? Please let me know.

Remember when I phoned you on departure, you said perhaps it would be better for me to take a week of my vacation at the start getting in touch with things before starting all the hard work I intend to do for you here, especially with my bronchial tubes or bronxes acting badly. I think you're right so I'll try to get the situation under control. I'll take these next few days off but you will hear from me again in about a week. Please remind Miss Stone not to forget my pay check as I'm running a trifle short in jingle. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

C. Y. O. Beats Detroit, 4 to 1, Before 8,901

The C. Y. O. Shamrock hocky team defeated the highly regarded Detroit Tools sextet, 4 to 1, yesterday afternoon at the Chicago Stadium before 8,901. It was the first triumph at home for the unbeaten Shamrocks.

Detroit had numerous opportunities to score due to the fact that C. Y. O. players spent much of the contest in the penalty box.

The third Shamrock goal, scored unassisted by Tony Beda, struck Goalie Jack Jewell of Detroit in the eye.

Eddie Janelli, C. Y. O. wing, made the fourth goal in the final period, assisted by Tony Beda on a well timed play.

Early in the second period Ken Begin scored for the C. Y. O., but the goal was not allowed.

Zeke Dorn made Detroit's only goal in a wild rush in the first period in 12:05. Frank Dugan received an assist.

MAROONS WIN, 2-1

New York, Jan. 19.—Lionel Conacher, Canada's leading all-around athlete, contributed a sensational individual effort tonight to give the Montreal Maroons a 2 to 1 victory over the New York Americans in a National Hocky league game.

The victory sent the Maroons into first place in the international division of the league, one point ahead of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Maroons scored first, in the opening period, when Ward counted on a combination play with Smith and Northcott. The Americans tied the score after 13:20 of the third period when Eddie Wiseman carried the puck down behind the Maroon goal and lost it to three Maroons. Schriner stole it again, however, and passed to Chapman, who drove it home.

CROWDS JAM ART INSTITUTE TO SEE REMBRANDT SHOW

Loudspeaker Innovation Is Boon to Throng.

Crowds of a size and eagerness more frequently associated with ball parks and motion pictures peacefully stormed the Art institute yesterday to see the Rembrandt exhibition. The attendance figure for the day was estimated at 16,000.

It was to have been the farewell day's showing of the three century old paintings by the Dutch master and his pupils, but arrangements have been made to extend the exhibit through today and tomorrow, officials announced.

Public appreciation of the exhibition was heightened yesterday by a soft spoken interpretation of pictures and artists transmitted through loud speakers installed by THE TRIBUNE. This was an innovation in art galleries, according to the institute officials.

Crowds Create Problem.

This successful effect, however, proved a handicap in one direction. The throngs inside the Rembrandt section lingered longer than usual in order to absorb the comments of George Frederick Buehr, painter and lecturer, as they viewed the paintings and etchings. Consequently from the standpoint of "marching them through" it was a handicap, although artistically a success.

Mr. Buehr spoke into the amplifying system from the balcony of the Spanish gallery through which the line moved, six and eight abreast, toward the Rembrandt section.

The moving line listened attentively to the speaker's vivid sidelights on and interpretation of the Rembrandt treasures.

Lectures Again Today.

There was no semblance of sightseeing ballyhoo since Mr. Buehr's voice came clear and mellow and his comments added an enrichening note to the display.

A special attraction of yesterday's showing was Rembrandt's etching of Clement de Jonghe made in 1851, a gift of the Buckingham family. Large groups of spectators were clustered before it all afternoon. It was taken from the safety vault for the occasion. The etching bears in an inset a note of praise by James McNeill Whistler, considered the greatest etcher since Rembrandt.

The amplifying system will be in operation again today and tomorrow.

The famous "Christ at Emmaus," which was loaned by the Louvre in Paris, will be sent to Worcester, Mass., for an exhibition there. Of the 113 seventeenth century pictures on display 70 are "undoubtedly" by Rembrandt, the others by his circle.

BISHOP URGES REFORMATION, NOT MORE LAWS

America is not in need of more laws, but of a moral and spiritual reformation, declared Bishop James E. Freeman of the Episcopal diocese of Washington, in an address last night before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

"Washington is a city of passion, of unreasonable thinking, and intemperate speaking," the bishop asserted, "and never more so than now. I warn you not to be taken in by the avalanche of foolish, vulgar political orations which are about to be let loose before the coming election."

Bishop Freeman said that the three essentials for a satisfactory life are: a guarantee of peace, more unity in religious organization, and more of the spirit of religion in human affairs.

"Political buncombe will get us none of these," he averred. "Since 1918 I have been listening to messages on international peace, yet not a statesman in the world can say when a spark from Ethiopia may start another world war. Yet there is a universal demand for peace."

In listening to speeches during the coming campaign, said Bishop Freeman, the people should hold in mind that our troubles are not economic, but moral.

$20,000 INVESTOR ON STAND TODAY AT DRAKE TRIAL

Among the defense witnesses who are expected to take the stand today when the Sir Francis Drake estate mail fraud trial is resumed before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan is Newcomb Wildman of Stuart, Ia. Wildman reputedly has invested $20,000 with the Drake estate promoters and it has been indicated he will testify that he still believes in the mythical Drake estate and expects it to pay handsome dividends.

A recess of the trial was taken a week ago to permit Judge Sullivan to attend a conference in Washington. Twenty-one of the 41 defendants have been dismissed on a directed verdict. The remaining 20 defendants are striving to prove that there was no fraud in connection with their collection of a fund to fight for title to the Drake estate.

Oscar M. Hartzell, leader of the collecting forces, who was previously convicted of fraud at a trial in the Federal court at Sioux City, Ia., is expected to take the stand some time this week. He and his agents, it is alleged, obtained $1,350,000 through their scheme.

MINISTERS AND LAWYERS URGE BIBLE READING

Columbus, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A group of lawyers and ministers set themselves up today as a nonprofit, nonsectarian corporation "to promote more general reading of the Bible."

The new organization, which its founders say they expect to spread to every state of the union, has applied for incorporation in Ohio as "Bible Bond, Inc."

"There are only about 20 of us so far," declared Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, lawyer, churchman, and temperance leader of Westerville, O. "But we already have received notice from 100 or more clergymen that they wish to enroll.

"Actually, the idea was promulgated by a number of attorneys and designed to start on the 400th anniversary of Coverdale's publication of the English Bible some time in 1535."

Dr. Russell said the corporation's constitution would permit membership by "any person who will promise to read some portion of the Bible every day."

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Popular music really goes round and round—that is, popular music moves in cycles. This fact probably explains the smash success of Red Hodgson's "The Music Goes Round and Round" at this moment—though nobody paid any attention to it when he sang it with Earl Burtnett's orchestra two years ago at the Drake hotel. Burtnett thought so little of it then that he wouldn't let Hodgson sing it on the air. The vogue then was—as it had been for almost a decade—for the sweet, velvety music which brought fame and fortune to Wayne King, Guy Lombardo, Abe Lyman, and many another.

Breaking away from the hot jaz of the post-war days these men specialized in straight melody. But now there is apparent a trend in the other direction. "Swing" music is on the upgrade and bands that specialize in rhythm are edging into the public favor again. "Round and Round" is a good example of "swing" music. A satisfactory definition of "swing" is somewhat difficult to get. I asked Harold Stokes of W-G-N about it.

"A swing tune," he explained, "is one in which the rhythmic construction of the melody creates a pulsing beat that is felt throughout the entire number. The rhythm in a swing tune is more important than the melody." Mr. Stokes thought the popular number from Harlem, "Truckin'" a pretty good illustration of what he had in mind.

The leading prophets of swing music are probably Benny Goodman, a Chicago lad now playing at the Congress hotel and over NBC, and Glen Gray, also a native of Illinois, of "Casa Loma" band fame.

All popular dance bands play some swing music now but the most popular interpreters are the hot bands. "Hot" jaz, as opposed to "straight" jaz, calls for improvisation—that is, departure in one way or another from what the composer wrote. Thus hot bands depend a lot on individual virtuosos. Among these must be mentioned the late Leon [Bix] Beiderbecke, Frankie Trumbauer, and Jack Teagarden [now with Whiteman], the Dorsey brothers, Tom and Jimmy, who both now have bands of their own, Goodman—all of these are experts on brass—and the colored Louis Armstrong, Fats Waller, and Duke Ellington.

Leading hot bands in addition to the two first mentioned are Ellington's, Waller's, the Dorsays', Will Osborne's, Louis Prima's [a great favorite with other bandsmen], Cab Calloway's, and Earl Hines'. Sometimes Ray Noble and Hal Kemp show a decided leaning toward the swing or "bounce" direction, as it is sometimes called. Art Kassel, by the way, recently wrote and introduced a song which he called "I'd Like to Bounce Around with You," which reflects the new rhythm influence.

If, as a listener, your attitude to all this is "So what?" the revival of blow torch jaz and swing music is nevertheless of possible import. The recordings of Goodman, Glen Gray and Fats Waller are reliably reported the most popular on the campus this year. And collegians have considerable to do with setting the fashions in popular music as well as clothes.

It is not inconceivable at all that the sweet, suave, and graceful melody that surfeits the air nightly now will be replaced in a year or two with snappy, sizzling jaz.

Right now the fans of torchy music are busy organizing "Hot clubs" all over the country. Hot music is the hobby of many a Joe College and Betty Coed this season. It is even making some impression on oldsters. One Sunday afternoon Goodman gave a recital—for which nearly 1,000 persons most of whom never would think of darkening the doors of a night club paid good money—of swing music in the oxyacetylene manner.

COUNTY POLICE CHECK REPORTED $25,000 ROBBERY

County highway policemen of the Morton Grove station admitted last night that they had been unable to find any trace of the persons who, according to his own statement, robbed Herbert Waltke of Woodburn, Ind., of $25,000 Friday evening in the northwest part of Cook county.

Waltke said that he had received $13,000 in cash and a cashier's check for $12,000 in Elgin from Arthur E. Scott of Houston, Tex., to whom he had sold 16 used trucks and 27 used automobiles. The robbery took place, he added, after he suffered an automobile accident while driving from Elgin to Chicago. The holdup was not reported to the police until Saturday morning.

Three Indiana state highway policemen, led by Lieut. Walter Metzler, questioned Waltke last night at the Morton Grove station, to which he returned after spending Saturday night with a relative in Highland Park. They were unable to learn from him the name of the bank on which the cashier's check was drawn. It was announced that Waltke would return to Woodburn, which is 15 miles from Fort Wayne, with the state policemen.

PREDICT LOWEST WHEAT RESERVE IN LAST DECADE

Expert Sees Supply of 111 Million Bu.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The supply of wheat in the United States will be reduced to the lowest point in the last decade by July 1, the beginning of the new crop year, according to present indications.

Wheat remaining from the 1935 harvest will be cut to about 111 million bushels in the next six months at the present rate of consumption, it is estimated by Nat C. Murray, one of the leading crop statisticians. On July 1, 1935, the beginning of the current crop season, stocks of wheat carried over from preceding years amounted to 153 million bushels. The largest carryover on record, 393 million bushels, occurred in 1933. Not since 1926 have stocks fallen to the 111 million bushels forecast for the end of the current year.

More Wheat Being Used.

Disappearance of wheat in the last six months of 1935, Murray points out, ran 20 million bushels ahead of the corresponding period of the preceding year. Consumption during the remainder of the year is expected to exceed last season by 38 millions. This suggests total consumption of 675 million bushels for the year, compared with 636 millions in the year ended last July.

Depletion of the country's wheat stocks has been brought about by three years of short production. With production running below current domestic requirements, the reserve has been reduced in the space of three years to a point which is regarded as more nearly normal. The part played by the Agricultural Adjustment administration in the process was insignificant compared with effects of drouth and black rust.

U. S. Policy Causes Surplus.

The abnormally large wheat reserve was built up during the period when the government was attempting to peg prices at a high level. Abandonment of the stabilization efforts came only after heavy losses to the government. Under pressure of the excessive supply, prices in the Chicago market fell to the lowest level since the time of Queen Elizabeth. After three years of crop failure the situation has been corrected and prices once more are at a comparatively high level.

During the last week there was little change in the level of wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade. Closing quotations for the week were approximately the same as prevailed a week earlier.

Week's Range of Prices.

Middle West Lawyers Ask Pay by Hours

J. H. WILKERSON.

Lawyers involved in the reorganization of Middle West Utilities company valued their time at $21 to $100 an hour, examination of the requests for fees aggregating more than $1,600,000 indicates. Middle West investors and lawyers, both in and out of the case, are awaiting with interest an expression of attitude toward the fees from Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has presided over the case.

Judge Wilkerson warned the attorneys to make their requests reasonable, indicating that he would act quickly if he thought the fees reasonable. If, however, they should total 2 or 3 millions, he added, the court might hold up payment for some time while investigating the merit of the various requests.

Several Figure in Court Quiz.

One fee claimant, who figured in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' inquiry into alleged recruiting of clients for reorganization cases, is asking $65,000 for "many thousand" hours of work as an "authorized agent" of creditors and stockholders and at the "request of attorneys." His lengthy petition states he had devoted essentially all of his time to the case since August, 1934.

An attorney, who called him as an expert, asks $150,000 in fees in a petition of 109 pages which does not list hours. This lawyer, also named in the Barnes inquiry, states that "many millions of theretofore undiscovered latent or unknown assets were brought forth" because of his efforts.

A firm, one of whose members also was named in the inquiry, is asking $15,000 for 152 hours' work, or approximately $100 an hour.

Lawyers Explain Their Worth.

Another attorney, mentioned in the Barnes inquiry, asserts he was forced into bankruptcy because of money spent in obtaining for the court "the true financial condition" of Middle West. He leaves the amount of fees to the court, urging, however, that the allowance be based on his discovering $67,000,000 in assets for the company in more than 1,000 hours' work.

Essington & McKibben left its fees to the discretion of the court, but listed 570 hours of work and expressed opinion that it ought to receive at least $15,000.

One firm, in asking $37,500 for 1,100 hours of work, said it had raised "novel and unusual" legal issues.

One firm, in asking a fee in six figures, said the legal profession is a "branch of the administration of justice and not a mere money-grabbing trade." It said fees might be thought high were it not that "counsel's ideas made the estate $1,400,00."

Still Other Fees Asked.

In instances where legal firms represented committees and lumped committee compensation with their own, no hourly pay rate could be established. Figuring lawyers' time only and the total fees requested showed estimates of $21 to $67 per hour. A firm which already has received $77,000 is asking another $148,000 for work during receivership.

Some of the principal firms in the case, asking compensation in six figures, list from 1,783 to 4,735 hours spent on the case, charges being made for everything down to talks with reporters, 10 minute phone conversations, and trips to the printer.

Computations show following hourly pay bases: $21, $26, $29, $34, $35, $50, $57, $67, $83, $100. All stress the complicated nature of the case and the difficulties experienced in the long period of receivership and reorganization.

Chicago Mail Order Co. Reports $806,298 Profit

The Chicago Mail order company yesterday reported a net profit of $806,298 for 1935, the equivalent of $2.33 a share on 346,181 shares of capital stock. E. M. Schnadig, president, said the 1935 profit was the second largest in the company's history and compares with a net profit of $697,555 or $2.02 a share in 1934. Current assets on Dec. 28, 1935 were $5,168,487, including $2,735,219 cash and government bonds, and current liabilities were $1,263,248.

RISE IN STEEL OUTPUT SLOWER THAN EXPECTED

Rate Is 52½%; Auto Plants Buy Less.

Steel mill operations in the United States rose 1 point to 52½ per cent last week but steelmakers assert the rate this month has not reached expectations, according to the magazine Steel. Releases from the automobile industry are being curtailed but in other respects the steel market is reported to be showing a fairly good tone.

Steelmakers say December's high record for steel operations was apparently made at the expense of January. An operating rate of 62 per cent in each of the two remaining weeks of this month would be necessary for January merely to equal the 55.6 per cent average for December.

This is improbable unless there is an unforeseen bulge in new commitments, the journal says, and will be the first time since 1921 that steel production in January has failed to exceed that of the preceding month. Since Jan. 1 there has been a rise of 3 points in steel production, compared with a gain of 8½ in the like period of 1935.

Auto Plants Reduce Output.

"Curtailment in new steel commitments is confined mainly to the automobile industry, which last week reduced assemblies 3,000 units to 95,000, or 8,600 below the high point in November-December," the magazine says. "The decline in production is expected to continue until late February or early March, but the industry as a whole still is confident that total assemblies will be at least 10 per cent above 1935.

"While for the present steel appears to be under a severe handicap from the loss of automobile tonnage, in other directions the markets still exhibit considerable buoyancy. Practically no reaction has been experienced in steel from the AAA decision. The farm implement industry is operating at 75 to 90 per cent of normal—the 1928-'30 average—with orders in hand to continue so for six months and dealers stocking more extensively than in several years."

Wire Products in Demand.

Wire demand and buying of wire products are at the highest rate for any January since 1929, the journal says. Steel bar specifications are larger than in December, tin plate is fairly strong, scrap prices are higher and the purchasing of plain structural material has improved. These are some of the favorable elements in the market.

Operating gains last week included 1 point to 52½ per cent at Chicago, 2 points to 64 per cent at Youngstown—which is scheduled for 61 per cent this week—1 point to 41 per cent at Pittsburgh, 1½ points to 37 per cent in eastern Pennsylvania, 6 points to 67 per cent at Cleveland, and 10 points to 93 per cent in New England. Buffalo declined 5 points to 45 per cent and other districts were unchanged.

The magazine's iron and steel price composite rose 1 cent to $33.34 a ton and the scrap composite gained 5 cents to $13.17 a ton, but the finished steel index held at $53.70 a ton.

SPALDING HEAD SEES UPTURN FOR ATHLETIC GOODS

A. G. Spalding & Bros., in the annual report for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1935, shows a net loss of $648,534 as compared with a loss of $672,301 for the preceding year. Net sales amounted to $13,326,017 as against $12,738,997. Current assets as of Oct. 31, 1935, were $7,106,814, of which $1,210,293 was in cash, against current liabilities of $662,348.

Julian W. Curtiss, chairman of the board, in his letter to stockholders, states that "For the first time since the beginning of the depression in the athletic goods industry, in the early summer of 1931, it is now possible for the management to make the statement that in its best opinion our company has reached the turning point." During 1936 the company will resume making public quarterly reports of sales and earnings which were discontinued about eight years ago.

FORD OFFICIAL CALLS CURB ON PRODUCTION ECONOMIC SUICIDE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—(AP)—William J. Cameron of the Ford Motor company said tonight in a weekly address that the United States has "never come within 20 per cent of its production capacity," and termed "economic suicide," any philosophy that seeks improvement through the "production of less wealth and the selling of fewer goods."

"There are people," he said, "who say that we have produced too much, lived beyond our means, and made too many goods. We need a million new houses; 25 per cent of existing houses are without the simplest sanitary arrangements."

There was reassurance, he said, in the fact that "the greater part of the national income goes to those who have less than $5,000 a year," but he added that 60 per cent of American families have less than $2,000 a year. He said also that the national income during the last 30 years has increased at the rate of only 1.3 per cent a year.

"We cannot improve our condition by producing less wealth and selling fewer goods," he said. "The only business ideal worthy of production engineers and financial engineers now is the bringing of our present insufficient supply to a sufficiency. No profit can ever be so profitable to us as a citizenry strongly rooted in economic plenty and independence. When we arrive within sight of that—as we shall arrive—it will be the first glimpse we have ever had of a prosperity that brings no poverty in its train."

CHICAGO'S TRADE VOLUME LARGER THAN YEAR AGO

Retail and wholesale volume in Chicago last week exceeded the same period of 1935, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday.

In the wholesale field out-of-town, buyers, attending several trade shows in Chicago, continued to place sizeable orders. Evidence that demand for spring and early summer wear will be much larger throughout the country continues to pour across local desks, the association commented.

Chicago mail order houses are still enjoying heavy sales despite fears that the AAA death decision might curtail demand from rural areas.

GENERAL MOTORS OVERSEAS SALES RISE 28.9 PER CENT

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Overseas sales of General Motors cars and trucks from all sources in December, totaled 284,281 units, representing an increase of 28.9 per cent over the 220,560 units sold in 1934. The volume for last year marks a full return to the pre-depression levels of 1928 and 1929, it was stated.

Sales overseas last month totaled 25,998 units, a gain of 14.3 per cent over November, and a gain of 58.3 per cent over December, 1934. The total is the highest ever recorded for December, reflecting partly the introduction of new models two months earlier than usual.

Continental Insurance Gets Telescope Contract

The Continental Insurance company has been awarded the contract for insuring the 200 inch telescope disc, made at Corning, N. Y., against all damage until it is loaded on the train bound for California. It will be shipped to the California Institute of Technology in a specially constructed freight car, standing upright in the sunken well of the car. The disc weighs twenty tons.

DETROIT EDISON CO. REPORTS SHARP GAIN IN PROFIT DURING '35

The Detroit Edison company yesterday reported a consolidated net income of $9,677,957 for 1935 after all deductions, equal to $7.61 a share on 1,272,260 capital shares, comparing with $5,448,331, or $4.28 a share, reported for 1934.

Alex Dow, president, says in his report that gross earnings were $49,616,606, compared with $45,109,067 in 1934, a gain of $4,474,456, to which each of the services offered by the company has contributed. Domestic service, including service to farms, shows an increase in average use from 719 to 761 kilowat hours per customer, and a gain of 21,386, or 4.5 per cent, in number of customers.

Expenses were $19,289,855, against $18,340,101, and despite an increase of efficiency in consumption, coal cost rose $641,028 owing to an increase of 15 cents a ton in the freight rate, which made average coal prices $3.66 a ton, against $3.49 for 1934.

Current assets at the end of 1935 were $19,905,731, including $4,971,771 cash, and current liabilities were $8,843,054. Earned surplus amounted to $22,044,624, compared with $19,018,400 the year before.

New National Bank to Open Next Saturday

T. H. GOLIGHTLY. [Wallinger Photo.]

Next Saturday is the opening date of the Madison-Crawford National bank at Madison street and Pulaski road, President T. H. Golightly announced last night after the completion of nearly a year's organization work actively sponsored by the Garfield Park Business Men's association.

The bank not only is the newest in Chicago but is the first national bank chartered in the United States this year. It is also the largest bank opened in Chicago since the 1933 banking moratorium, having paid-in capital and surplus of $250,000 and $50,000 contingent reserves. Capitalization consists of 2,000 shares of common capital stock, $100 of each share going into capital account and the remaining $50 being divided equally between surplus and contingent reserve.

Uses Old Street Name.

In its name the bank will retain the old name of Pulaski road, which was Crawford avenue before being changed in 1934 by the city council.

An experienced staf, said Golightly, will operate the bank. Both he and Vice President E. B. Knudtson will be directors. Glenn M. Johnson is vice president and cashier, while Emerson J. Morris is assistant cashier.

Business Men Are Directors.

On the board of directors are men well known in business on the west side. They include William M. Druley, manager of the Druley-O'Brien Coal company; Harry A. Finney, faculty member of Northwestern university and associated with Baumann, Finney & Co., certified public accountants; William I. Gibbons, vice president of Bunge Bros. Coal Co.; Isadore J. Goldberg, president of Isgo Wall Paper corporation; Morton Hague, director and vice president and treasurer of International Cellucotton Products corporation; Ray McCarthy, real estate and insurance dealer, and Otto L. Pruitt, president of Pruitt, Inc., office equipment firm.

Golightly has had 20 years of banking experience, joining the old Chicago Trust company after service in the world war and rising to a vice presidency both there and in the old National Bank of the Republic.

Low Priced Issues Feature Trade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Notwithstanding uncertainties under the head of such important matters as the soldiers' bonus, a substitute for the farm plan thrown out by the Supreme court, new taxation and the extent of the New Deal expenditures over the next few months, Wall street speculative sentiment continues to show a high degree of confidence.

Prices held within a range of less than two points last week and wound up within a fraction of their level of the preceding Saturday. Numerous issues were able to register substantial improvement, some of them going to new highs.

Low Priced Shares Active.

Low priced stocks were particularly favored, accounting on some days for the bulk of the market turnover. In many cases these "cheap" stocks are issues of companies showing no attractive current earnings and having no apparent prospects. At least one favorite of the moment is stock of a company that has virtually suspended business.

Play of this character, brokers say, represents nothing more than "flyer" speculation as opposed to investment buying of companies enjoying improved earnings such as have characterized the market over the last few months. The idea of these buyers apparently is that there is little to lose anyhow and there is the possibility of quick gain in the event of some "unforeseen happening."

Inflation Possibilities.

Possibilities of inflation admittedly are responsible in a very large degree for the continued bullish sentiment after the long advance of last summer and fall. Apart from these expectation of monetary and credit expansion—as a result of the soldier bonus, the mounting public debt, etc., the market continues to enjoy the benefit of favorable trade activity. The new year is beginning with rising railroad freight car loadings, higher output of electricity and only a mild tapering in steel production.

Low Priced Issues Feature of Market Activity.

The distribution of merchandise continues to expand, orders placed in the wholesale markets last week being estimated by trade agencies to have run 15 to 20 per cent above those of last year.

Some concern is felt over the spring outlook for the automotive industry, but the belief is widely held that money from the soldier bonus will find its way either into new cars or into used ones of which dealers are now so heavily stocked. This prospect is relieving to some extent the fears frequently expressed that the spring buying would show a dip from that of previous years owing to the change of time from spring to autumn for the introduction of new models.

Expect Steady Market.

Brokers believe that unless the seasonal rise in business activity be unduly delayed, or unless it be discovered in the next two months that the expansion has been pretty small, the markets ought to hold well over the next several weeks. The investor in sound securities need not worry overmuch, they say, but the speculator, many believe, seldom has had to take longer chances than at present.

Silver shares made the worst group showing of the stock list over the week, having been upset by the down plunge of silver bullion, a plunge which carried the price of the white metal down 5 cents an ounce below that of the preceding week on the New York market. Oil shares, particularly those of the lower-priced division, were prominent on the upside in several trading sessions. Their renewed popularity was the result of the price advances on gasoline and crude oil.

Warner Bros. Pictures Has Large Profit Rise

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Net operating profit of $1,258,359 after all charges including interest, amortization and depreciation, but before federal income taxes, is reported by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., for the thirteen weeks ending Nov. 30, 1935. This compares with net profit of $16,249 for the corresponding period in 1934. Net profit after federal income taxes amounted to $1,031,316.

On June 30, 1935, current assets, including cash of $815,000, totaled $5,286,000 and current liabilities were $887,000. The $805,000 of notes payable appearing on the June 30, 1934, balance sheet, was liquidated.

Capitalization consists solely of 886,888 shares of no par stock. The stock paid 30 cents a share in 1930, but nothing from then until July 31, 1935, when 25 cents a share was paid. Another 25 cent dividend was paid on Dec. 28.

Associated Electric.

Investors' Guide: Please inform me regarding Associated Electric 4½s, due 1953.—Mrs. A. T.

Answer: Obligations of Associated Electric company are more a speculation than an investment. As the unsecured obligation of an intermediate holding company, part of the Associated Gas and Electric system, they rank in effect junior to about $35,000,000 of subsidiary obligations. Earnings do not cover interest charges by a wide margin.

About half of gross income comes from its Pennsylvania subsidiary which operates in a highly industrialized section, dependent mainly on steel, coal, and other heavy industries for its prosperity; about one-fourth from Manila Electric corporation [Philippine Islands], and the remainder from relatively small scattered subsidiaries.

During the 12 months to Sept. 30, 1935, fixed charges were earned 1.28 times. In 1934 fixed charges were earned 1.31 times, against 1.26 times in 1933, 1.44 times in 1932, and 1.76 times in 1931. Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, were $4,245,000 and current liabilities were $4,786,000, leaving a working capital deficit of $540,000.

Allied Mills, Inc.

Answer: Allied Mills, Inc., manufactures live stock feeds, soy bean products, field seeds, and, through a wholly owned subsidiary, Continental Distilling company, distillery products, including gin.

Increased demand for feed and seed following the 1934 drouth, rising inventory values and contribution of its distillery division helped boost earnings for the year ended June 30, 1935, to $2,091,000, or $2.36 a share. This compared with $888,000, or $1 a share, for the preceding year, $362,000 for the year ended June 30, 1933, and $210,000 and $22,000 for the two preceding years.

On Aug. 5, 1935, the management announced that operations were running at about the same rate as the year before.

On June 30, 1935, current assets, including cash of $1,030,000, totaled $3,100,000 and current liabilities were $1,100,000, leaving working capital of $2,000,000.

BANKERS DIFFER ON PROBLEM OF FOREIGN FUNDS

1½ Billions from Abroad Pour Into Nation.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—In connection with the recent discussions of the problem of excess reserves, bankers here have been giving increased attention lately to the large volume of foreign funds that has come to this country in the last year, seeking safety in the dollar and profit in our stock market. It is estimated that foreign short term funds on deposit with banks in this country now total about 1 billion dollars, while additional large amounts, which cannot be estimated, but which probably exceed $500,000,000, have been invested by foreigners in our stock market in the last year.

The existence of these large foreign owned deposits and of security holdings which could quickly be turned into cash involves the possibility of a sudden large outflow of gold from this country should developments here or abroad change the prevailing attitude toward the dollar as the safest currency.

Seen as Threat.

While there is agreement among bankers as to the existence of this potential threat of a big loss of gold, there is complete disagreement as to what bearing the situation would have upon the monetary policies of the country. Public attention was first drawn to the matter by S. Parker Gilbert, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., in a letter published last month expressing opposition to suggestions that steps be taken at once to reduce excess reserves.

"These foreign holdings have a potential call on our reserves," Mr. Gilbert wrote, "and if and when political conditions in Europe become more settled and the foreign exchanges return to some kind of stability, there may be a substantial return flow of gold to Europe. Would it be wise in these circumstances to freeze recent gold imports into the federal reserve system by an increase in reserve requirments?"

Views of Aldrich.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, who had previously led in the advocacy of steps to reduce excess reserves, replied to this argument of Mr. Gilbert in his annual address to stockholders by arguing that "nothing would freeze the excess reserves into the banking structure more effectively than to build a vast structure of credit upon them."

He said that an outward flow of gold "would make an admirable opportunity for the government to use the gold profit safely in reducing public debt.

Other bankers suggest that the mere existence of the threat of a large outflow of gold at some future date is an argument for locking up some of the present excess of reserves and they argue that when and if a gold export movement should materialize the federal reserve system might properly meet the movement by open market purchases of government securities to restore to the commercial banks reserves being lost through the export of gold.

Difference of Opinion.

WORLD INDUSTRY CONTINUES RISE IN PRODUCTION

Gold Value Shown Highest Since December, 1932.

Industrial production throughout the world increased during last November for the fourth consecutive month, with substantial improvement for the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Belgium, Denmark and Australia, according to the national industrial conference board. The gold value of world trade in October was the highest since December, 1932, the board found.

World prices of foodstuffs and raw materials declined slightly in November and security prices in the eleven leading markets declined during the first half of December but advanced sharply later in the month.

South America Satisfactory.

Industrial conditions in most of the South American countries remained satisfactory, the board reports. Germany showed some recession in preliminary reports and a little improvement occurred in the European gold bloc countries.

Industries in Italy that were working on government contracts continued active but other branches of industry were forced to curtail operations, according to the board's survey. The rise in Japanese industrial activity showed signs of slowing down materially in the final quarter of 1935.

Index of Trade Advances.

The combined index of trade for 75 countries during October reached 38 per cent of the 1929 monthly average, compared with 34 per cent in September and 36 per cent in October, 1934.

A composite index of nine important commodities entering into world trade stood at 51 per cent of the 1923-'25 average in November, compared with 53 per cent in October and 48 per cent in November of 1934.

The general wholesale price level advanced during November in the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France.
